Riot Deaths Fuel Crisis In Trinidad

PORT OF SPAIN (Reuters) — Two persons were killed when Black Power demonstrators defied a government-imposed state of emergency in Trinidad Tuesday and police opened fire on rioting mobs.

A 16-year-old boy, Phil St. Louis, died of a gunshot wound in the head.

The other victim was identified as Clyde Bailey, 28, a member of the Trinidad and Tobago Regiment, which along with the police and coast guard, is the main security force at the government's disposal.

* * *

Reports said Bailey was also shot in the head as the whole country was put under dusk to dawn curfew.

Rioting erupted in the city as Black Power demonstrators defied a national state of emergency and paraded through Port of Spain's business section, smashing windows and looting shops.

Police clashed with the demonstrators several times and had to use tear gas and batons to restore order. But as soon as they restored order in one section, the demonstrators carried on with their smashing sprees in other parts of the city.

* * *

The state of emergency was declared in the face of a massive demonstration scheduled by the National Joint Action Committee, the main Black Power organization in the country.

Black Power demonstrations have been continuing here since late Febuary with the Black Power advocates demanding the resignation of the prime minister, more black economic power and a solution to the nation's huge unemployment problem.

Ottawa, B.C. Sign Agreement

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

A new national park on Vancouver Island — marking several firsts in the development of Canada's national parks system — was brought into existence here Tuesday with the signing of a formal agreement between B.C. and Ottawa.

● Ottawa will study effect on reserves. Page 32

The agreement, completed after many months of intensive study and negotiations, was signed by Indian Affairs and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien and B.C. Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

It provides for establishment of a national park on the west coast of Vancouver Island which includes Long Beach, the Effingham Islands, and a 50-mile swath of virgin coastline between Bamfield and Port Renfrew.

* * *

Among the firsts are:

● This is the 21st national park to be established in Canada but it is the first coastal park on the Pacific and it also has the longest coastline of any park in Canada.

There are 25 miles of shoreline facing the open Pacific at Long Beach, plus five miles on sheltered Browning Passage and four miles on nearby Kennedy Lake.

No attempt has been made so far to assess the shoreline of the Effingham Islands section of the park but B.C. officials said this area covers more than 60 identifiable islands in the space of 43 square miles of land and water.

There are also more than 50 miles of Pacific coastline along the Lifesaving Trail which runs from just south of Bamfield to a point near Port Renfrew on the south.

* * *

● This is the first national park established under an agreement by which the federal and provincial governments share equally in the cost of land acquisition.

Just before the formal agreement was signed in Kiernan's office Tuesday the

EXPO 70 FEELING JADED

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — A 24-ton block of jade, described as the heaviest jade stone in the world and valued at 500,000,000 yen (nearly $1,500,000), went on display today at the British Columbia Pavilion at Expo '70.

Legend has it that people who touch the jade stone, discovered two years ago near Ogden, B.C., will be assured of happiness.

Touching the stone, however, apparently was no help to the men who moved it to Expo

After a stormy crossing of the Pacific, in which the stone broke loose and damaged the freighter Hi King and some of its other cargo, the stone snapped the cable being used and made a hole in the pavement.

State of Siege In Colombia

BOGOTA (UPI) — The government declared a state of siege as serious clashes erupted in Bogota Tuesday night when mobs demanded that former dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla be named president over Misael Pastrana Borrero, the official candidate and apparent winner.

Outgoing President Carlos Lleras Restrepo warned the nation Tuesday night that it is now "under the rules permitted in nations at war" so it would be able to face the "danger of a general revolt in our country."

The president accused the movement led by Rojas of planning to overthrow the government.

Lleras reiterated his decision to carry on his duties as president of Colombia up to the expiration of his mandate on Aug. 7. "Before Aug. 7 I will never leave the presidential palace unless I am dead," he said.

Narcotics Trial

Offered $10,000 Says Juror's Wife

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver man has been ordered to appear in British Columbia Supreme Court today to face a charge that he tried to tamper with the jury in a narcotics trail.

Justice W. R. McIntyre Tuesday issued the order to David Galloway of Vancouver after being told that the wife of juror Herbert Grimley was offered $10,000 to persuade her husband to arrange a hung jury.

McIntyre is presiding over the retrail of Conrad William Gunn, Edward Ponak, Ido Zamai and John McKeoff, all charged with consiracy to traffic in narcotics.

The retrial was ordered after an earlier trial resulted in a hung jury.

McIntyre was told that Hilda Grimley was offered the money to persuade her husband to arrange a second hung jury.

She said a man told her one of the four accused was a friend of his who had been framed and that two witnesses in the trial were "stool pigeons" for the RCMP.

The jury in the second trial was discharged and a third trial has been ordered.

Escaper Killed in Battle

VANCOUVER (CP) — An escaper from the B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster was killed in a gun battle with police Tuesday night in the city's East End.

The man, whose name was withheld, was dead on arrival at hospital after exchanging shots with police near a community centre.

Police said the man, accompanied by an unidentified girl, opened fire on them after ramming a cruiser with his pickup truck.

The girl escaped injury, but was reported from suffering from shock.

The dead man was one of two escapers who fled the B.C. Penitentiary in January.

Inflation War

'Working Despite Jobless'

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons Tuesday that government policies to fight inflation are gradually working.

However, "nobody likes the very high rate of unemployment in the country" that accompanies the battle, he told New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas.

The rate of unemployment in March, 1970, had been equalled or exceeded in eight of the last 14 years, Benson said. The record was in March, 1961, under a Conservative government.

* * *

Prime Minister Trudeau told Douglas the government has policies for areas affected by high unemployment. Douglas had asked whether the government would end inflation restraints in cities hit by high unemployment.

Replying to George Hees (PC — Prince Edward-Hastings), Trudeau said the government is fighting inflation to prevent greater unemployment.

'No One Else Involved, No Money Left'

Robber Recants Conspiracy Story

By BRUCE LOWTHER

There was no conspiracy, no MPs, no MLA, no magazine and book publisher, no research assistant, no photographer.

And there is no money left.

Jon Donald McDermott, the 27-year-old Burnaby man who had admitted eight holdups of financial firms, said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court that he told two lies. That meant he went through an estimated $17,300 between Jan. 5 and March 31 of this year.

* * *

He pleaded guilty to a charge of public mischief laid by Saanich police and received from Judge William Ostler a two-year prison term to run at the same time as the seven 12-year concurrent Terms Ostler gave him last Thursday.

The former newspaperman and radio-TV worker pleaded guilty April 1 to four charges involving holdups at five banks and one financial firm in Victoria, Saanich, Vancouver and New Westminster between Jan. 5 and March 31.

Then he pleaded guilty April 10 to one charge involving two bank holdups in Calgary March 9, but Ostler threw out one charge because it was drafted improperly.

Money taken at the eight firms totalled $19,046 and Saanich police recovered $1,730 when McDermott was arrested March 31, a difference of $17,318.

* * *

McDermott told court April 10, under oath at his request, that he staged the holdups to get into prison so he could write a book about life there that might bring about prison reform.

He said the "group of people who support me in this venture" would be named shortly, including one member of the Legislature from each of B.C. and Ontario, two MPs, the publisher, the research aide and the photographer.

His lengthy statement was sprinkled with references to the others, including a lifetime deal with the publisher and photographs of every holdup. He also said all the money would be returned with interest "in the very near future."

* * *

That led Saanich police to investigate a possible conspiracy, the inquiry starting with questioning of McDermott by Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart in the Saanich cells. Police indicated McDermott made a voluntary statement.

A reference of the question to the country's highest court was made after a British Columbia court ruled the legislation invalid.

West Coast Park Established

B.C. minister produced a sheet which estimated the value of lands included in the park conservatively at more than $23,000,000.

Kiernan said, however, much of the land is owned by the crown and will be transferred to the national parks service. He said as soon as the agreement signed Tuesday has been confirmed by the B.C. cabinet, a formality only, an order in council authorizing an immediate start on acquisition of private property in the Long Beach area will be signed.

The initial outlays to obtain private property in the Long Beach area are estimated to be in the $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 range, Kiernan said. This cost will be shared by the provincial and federal governments.

Chretien, who flew in to Nitinat Tuesday morning and hiked for a total of about eight miles on the Lifesaving Trail before returning to Victoria by air to sign the agreement, was enthusiastic about the new addition to Canada's national parks system.

He told reporters the beauty of the rain forest and the grandeur of a five-mile stretch of Clo-oose Beach where the party stopped for "coffee and cake" while seated on a log, impressed him greatly.

"It is a great place," Chretien said. "The coast and the forest are beautiful. It's too bad I only had a couple of hours. I would like to have spent a couple of days there. Then I would return to Ottawa in better shape."

During the signing ceremony the federal minister said the new park will be "a great asset" to the national parks system and undoubtedly will become "one of the great tourist attractions in B.C."

He added: "I am just happy that it now belongs forever to the people of Canada rather than to some American citizens."

Chretien hastened to explain the problem of American acquisition of choice recreational lands was a problem in all parts of Canada and said that his mention in connection with the establishment of the west coast national park was "just a joke."

Chretien said later federal parks experts would begin planning establishment of campsites in the Long Beach area "within a matter of weeks." He said it was hoped the actual work would begin soon and that dedication of the initial section of the park to be developed — at Long Beach — could be held in conjunction with B.C. centennial celebrations next year.

David Anderson, Liberal MP for Esquimalt-Saanich who accompanied Chretien on his trail hike Tuesday, said final agreement on establishment of the new park came much sooner than he had expected.

"This is a real tribute to the conservation groups who converted people to the view that it was worth acquiring something over $20,000,000 in property values to establish a west coast national park," Anderson said.

But he warned against complacency. "We shouldn't rest on our laurels," the Liberal MP said. "This is an excellent start in the face of tremendous pressure by Americans to acquire property here. But it must be regarded as only a first step towards establishment of a real parks system to meet the future needs on Vancouver Island."

Still among "details" to be settled, however, is a proposal that a corridor be created through a narrow neck of the Long Beach section of the park to allow logging trucks from forestry operations beyond the park boundaries to reach tidewater to dump their loads.

Chretien said he was pleased the province had agreed to "maximum and minimum" boundaries to the Lifesaving Trail section of the new park.

"We have two goals," the federal minister said. "We cannot take too mich of the land because there are other interests. But we must ensure that those who walk this trail will be protected and that the scenery and natural beauty will be there for the enjoyment of all."

The agreement establishes a 28,000-acre parkland area at Long Beach. The 25 miles of beach fronting on the Pacific run from Cox Point southeasterly to Portland Point, Schooner Cove, Wickaninnish Bay, Quisitis Point, Florencia Bay and Wya Point.

On the inside of the peninsula the shoreline runs five miles on Browning Passage to the head of Indian Bay. There are also four miles of shoreline on fresh water Kennedy Lake.

The Lifesaving Trail section of the park covers more than 32 square miles — Kiernan quoted a figure of 20,480 acres — with more than 50 miles of coastline.

The trail section runs south from Mills Point and includes Cape Beale, Kenna Bay, Pachena Bay and Pachena Point. The tentative boundary then cuts southeasterly inland to include Cheewhat Lake, Clo-oose Point, Dare Point, Carmanah Point, Bonilla Point, Cuilite Cove and Camper Bay to the head of Port San Juan.

Ecology Disaster

IF EVERY family in China had an automobile, there would not be enough air left in the world to breathe. The pollutants would end our struggle in more devastating fashion than any hydrogen bomb could.

If one small fraction of that insidious nerve gas shipment was to escape, whole cities could be ghost-towned in a matter of minutes.

If some ecological disaster befell the South American rain forests, there would not be enough air left for us to breathe.

We marvel at the technological know-how that brought the three astronauts from the brink of disaster to a safe splashdown. We digest the $375,000,000 cost of this aborted moon stroll without so much as a soft belch.

★ ★ ★

THE LIVES of three men were at stake. The lives of the entire population of the world are at stake ecologically and yet the leaders of the so-called responsible nations haven't quite got it through their enormously thick heads that we are already in sudden-death overtime in the battle for existence.

The oil barons are allowed to continue their life-killing spillage from Santa Barbara to Chedabucto Bay to the Gulf of Mexico. They allow their oil tankers to flush their slimy holds at sea and they continue to upset nature's delicate balance with new and hazardous off-shore drillings around the world.

They would chance spillages of even greater magnitude and peril with fleets of huge tankers plowing through the Arctic ice. All in the name of increased corporate profit, to hell with the world.

★ ★ ★

THESE MEN are the pillars of society, fawned on by politicians and political hacks because of the huge contributions they make to political war chests. I suggest their polluting activities make them no less evil than members of the Mafia who maim and kill with dope. Throw in the industrial giants who knowingly pollute our waters with mercury and other poisons and who couldn't care less what they are doing to future generations. They have been guilty of such heinous crimes for years, but only cease and desist when tortoise-like courts finally clamp down.

The forest industry admits to the use of the chemical Endrin in seedling treatment, knowing that Endrin is just another poison being introduced into our lives. The benefits are at best debatable (by their now 15-year study) and yet nobody in government has had the temerity to holler "enough!"

I COMMEND Pierre Trudeau's pollution stand on the Arctic, but I would feel considerably more at ease if the same Trudeau would take a more constructive stand in other fields of pollution. Mines and Energy Minister Joe Greene seems sincere in his fight against phosphate content in detergents, but the club he is using is too small and may be, even now, too late.

Politicians are quick to mouth the excuses that industry must be given time to rectify their befouling practices. Given time meaning they will continue with half-hearted approaches until such time as government finally gets tough and to the devil with time limits. If these guilty parties are forced out of business as a result, so be it. But I would like to wager a bob or two that the majority of such enterprises would find ways and means to compete, within the strict law and still show the necessary profits.

★ ★ ★

THOSE LAND and water rapists who daily pollute the Great Lakes region, who have been literally killing lakes, rivers and streams for untold years, exact a toll from the public as great as extorted by organized crime.

Again, politicians weigh the ecological good against the almighty industrial dollar and the industrial dollar has been winning in a canter.

OUR province is an ecological disaster area regardless of the facts and figures supplied by government. Bennett is not now, and never has been, of conservationist bent. He is big business and I admire his big business acumen. But I put him down as short-sighted, stubborn, a non-visionary, when it comes to the future well being of his flock. I strongly suggest, as Prime Minister Trudeau has already done, that we — and this includes W. A. C. Bennett — must declare ourselves in favor of accepting a lower standard of living in order that the old world homestead be saved.

We are faced with ever-increasing automobile pollution, industrial wastes, all manners of life-robbing factors. They say 25 years may be the end of the lot of us on the face of this earth. Bennett, because of his advancing years, probably isn't concerned, but I put it to you this way — if Bennett was in his early thirties, you can rest assured his approach would be less dollars and cents and more ecological. He might even be in the forefront of the battle. I don't think the fire of such a struggle is in him any longer and it's a shame for all of us.

The statement, given to court Tuesday, reads in full:

"The events of the past few days have brought home to me a basic fact about our democratic way of life. That is, that to accomplish a major task like writing about prison life, prison systems and prison reforms, one must start with a basic fundamental called 'truth!'

"Therefore, and with apologies to the court and to Judge William Ostler, I would like to withdraw those statements I made on April 16th which specifically indicate reference to any other persons involved in the crimes I committed.

★ ★ ★

"Other remarks I made in court remain true. The professional background I mentioned is trust. My intentions to write books and articles detailing penal systems, life and reforms is true. The two untruths are that anyone else was involved and that the money will be returned. The money, unfortunately, is not available to be returned.

"Outside financial difficulties and a sincere belief that I will be able to write valuable enough works about an important, though little investigated, segment of our society were my true motivations in the commission of these crimes.

"It is only after a great deal of thought and discussion with Saanich Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart that I have come to the conclusion that, if my writings are to have any relevancy in this day and age, they must be based solely on truth, hence this statement."

Ostler called McDermott's action "the correct and manly thing for you to have done." He said the April 16 story received "very wide" publicity, "as you intended," and cast suspicion on persons named and unnamed.

"I commend you for being man enough to admit you committed perjury and therefore created public mischief," the judge said. "I do not propose to increase your sentence. What you have done now has undone the harm."

That closed another chapter of the McDermott story, but it was not the final chapter. Police sources said good behavior and statutory reductions might reduce McDermott's 12-year term to six or seven years, giving him freedom before he is 35.

Green Unveils Attack On Phosphates

OTTAWA (CP) — Resources Minister J. J. Greene's promised legislative base for banning phosphates in laundry detergents was unveiled to the Commons resources committee Tuesday.

The proposal to ban phosphates arises from a report to the International Joint Commission that says phosphate nutrients in lakes Ontario and Erie threatens to choke life in the waters by overstimulating growth of algae.

★ ★ ★

Greene proposed that the federal cabinet be given power to prohibit manufacture and import of any cleaning agent or water conditioner that contains more than a prescribed amount of nutrients. the penalty provided is a $5,000 fine and confiscation of goods.

Greene told the committee manufacturers were advised last February they must reduce the phosphates in detergents to 20 per cent by weight by Aug. 1.

"We are aiming at a near total elimination by 1972," he said. He told reporters later that a level of six per cent of phosphorus pentoxide is about as low as is necessary.

Air Dries Dishes Best

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been involved in a long argument with my mother about washing dishes and tableware with hot water and soap (Detergent), rinsing thoroughly with water, then drying with a towel (not drying in a rack by evaporation).

I believe that you wrote a column pointing out the importance of rinsing and drying because detergent residue can cause diarrhea. There was also a reminder that hot water "at home" was never at the boiling point, 212 degrees.—G.M.L.

Your recollection is part right. Thorough washing with hot soap (or detergent) and water is important, and so is rinsing, because any residue (germs, delaying food, soap) can cause diarrhea, and sometimes other troubles.

But I did not recommend drying with a towel, because too many tests have shown that the germ count is lower when dishes are rinsed in hot water and allowed to dry by evaporation.

So at our house we rinse with water as hot as we can get it from the faucet. No, it isn't at 212 degrees. I hesitate to think how many people would be scalded if tap water was that hot. Scalding is possible 60 or 70 degrees below that temperature.

Just hot — not boiling — water will let dishes dry rapidly and well. The easy way is the best way.

Giant 'tongue' in Sahara sandstone, formed by polar ice cap —AP

Hottest Once Coldest

Sahara Was South Pole

NEW YORK (AP) — The broiling Sahara was the icy South Pole of 450,000,000 years ago, a team of scientists reported Monday.

Scientists from 11 nations said they have concluded that the hottest part of the world today was once the coldest. They attribute this to continental drift.

★ ★ ★

"There is no question about it," said Dr. Rhodes W. Fairbridge, Columbia University geologist. "The territory that was the earth's south polar region in the Upper Ordovician geologic period is now the central Sahara."

Fairbridge announced the finding in a scientific paper read at the annual meeting of the American Geophysicial Union in Washington, D.C., and released in New York by Columbia.

★ ★ ★

The team reached its conclusion after a field expedition to southeastern Algeria last January.

Beneath the hot Sahara sand Fairbridge said, where the sand has been swept away to expose the rock, there are great parallel grooves running hundres of miles across the ancient rock — the result of glacial activity that occurs only under a polar ice cap.

According to the continental drift explanation, Fairbridge said, the South Pole made its 7,000-mile, 450,000,000-year journey to the Sahara because the crust of the earth moves, and "continents can float around the earth like icebergs."

★ ★ ★

At the beginning of the journey, Fairbridge continued, South America and Africa were one continent. So, apparently, were Antarctica and Australia.

On Lenin Anniversary

Red 'Attacks' Conciliatory

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev assailed China and the West Tuesday as foes of communism, but he offered conciliatory negotiations with both.

At about the same time, Peking blasted the Soviet government and called for its overthrow.

In a 3¼-hour speech honoring Vladimir Ilych Lenin, the founder of modern communism, on the 100th anniversary of his birth, Brezhnev lashed out at the Western world, declaring:

"Imperialism . . . is in our day inseparable from crimes such as wars of aggression, flagrant interference in the life of other countries and peoples, and the brutality of racists and colonialists."

But in another part of the wide-ranging speech, he called for peaceful co-existence.

"We shall continue our active effort to halt the arms race, which is ruinous to the peoples, secure disrmament and get outstanding issues between states settled in a reasonable foundation, by negotiation."

As for the Soviet dispute with China, he said:

"This situation is obviously the fruit of the nationalistic policy of the Chinese leadership and the result of its rupture with the principles laid down by Lenin.

★ ★ ★

"The enemies of socialism are the only ones who benefit by the virulent anti-Soviet campaign that has been conducted in China during the last few years."

The Soviet Union, he said, favors "the restoration of good relations between Socialist countries wherever they have been broken."

In Peking, the Communist Chinese government marked Lenin's anniversary with an 18,000-word editorial attack accusing the Kremlin of disgracing the Communist founder's homeland.

★ ★ ★

It urged the Soviet people to topple Brezhnev and his fellow "revisionists." The editorial in official Chinese newspapers was broadcast by Radio Peking.

A Chinese delegation was absent from the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses as about 6,000 Communists from the Soviet Union and abroad assembled.

Civilians Ask Peace, Slain in Cambodia

SAANG, Cambodia (AP) — A group of Vietnamese men, women and children, prodded by Cambodian troops, crossed "no man's land" here Tuesday pleading for the South Vietnamese guerrillas (Viet Cong) to leave the town. They were met by a hail of bullets.

Cambodian officers said the Vietnamese civilians had volunteered for the mission. But a seminary student who carried a white flag denied this and said the Vietnamese were rounded up in four villages.

When the bullets began to fly, the Vietnamese ducked for cover in banana fields along with correspondents who accompanied them.

At least two of the Vietnamese were wounded and 10 were reported missing.

Reuters news agency quoted eyewitnesses as saying that about 30 of the group of 90 Vietnamese civilians were killed or wounded.

Gen. Sosten Fernandes, commanding in this area, told correspondents:

"It was a good way to discover where the Viets have their automatic weapons."

★ ★ ★

At that moment, the Cambodian artillery opened up on the Viet Cong enemy positions.

The Vietnamese arrived in buses at this village 18 miles south of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital. The Viet Cong had taken Saang on Sunday, and the Cambodians said the Vietnamese civilians were asked to tell the Viet Cong to go away and let them live in peace.

Australia Following?

Withdrawal Given Mixed Reception

From UPI

President Nguyen Van Thieu praised President Nixon's massive troop withdrawal plan Tuesday but warned that South Vietnam would need more material assistance. Thieu's political opponents said the withdrawal of 150,000 soldiers in a year would wreck the economy.

In Paris, the Viet Cong delegation to the Paris peace talks Tuesday dismissed Nixon's plan as "nothing new . . . only a manoeuvre to mislead public opinion." Both the Viet Cong and North Vietnam have been demanding prompt and complete withdrawal of all American troops from Vietnam.

The Soviet Union denounced Nixon's statement as a "propagandistic pretext." The official news agency Tass said Nixon was just trying to get Republican candidates elected to Congress next fall.

The Nixon plan was expected to have a dramatic effect on other nations of the free world with combat forces in Vietnam. These include Australia, New Zealand, Thailand and South Korea.

Prime Minister John Gorton of Australia announced he would make a statement today on Australia's commitment of 8,500 troops. News reports from Canberra said Gorton is likely to announce a one-third reduction.

"The republic of Vietnam understands that in this limited and prolonged war it cannot demand the presence of too large numbers of allied armed forces for an indefinite time," Thieu said in a statement released in Saigon.

'Heavy Loss of Life'

Planes, Guns Rake Israelis

From UPI

Egyptian planes bombed Israeli positions in the northern Sinai perinsula, causing heavy loss of life, and Arab artillery shelled the entire length of the Israeli-held side of the Suez Canel, Egypt announced.

Israel said one Egyptian MiG 17 jet fighter was shot down and another driven off by anti-aircraft gunners without Israeli casualties.

An Egyptian spokesman said in Cairo that the Egyptian artillery barrage destroyed a number of Israeli tanks, artillery positions, ground-to-ground rocket sites, transport vehicles and half tracks. He said the shelling "went on until enemy positions were destroyed."

The Egyptian air raid, third in four days reported by Cairo, came on the first day of Passover, which commemorates the liberation from slavery in Egypt of the Israelites about 3,000 years ago.

Cairo said the planes caused heavy casualties among troops at Israeli administration posts in the Sinai near the Mediterranean coast. A spokesman said one plane was hit during the attack.

The Israeli spokesman said the Soviet-built MiG17 was hit by ground-to-air fire during low-level strafing attacks in the occupied Sinai.

Vandals Attack Mail Trucks

MONTREAL (CP) — Vandals smashed windshields and punctured tires Monday on 30 trucks used to transport mail on Montreal Island — another outbreak in the city's lengthy mail dispute. Shots were fired at a trucking depot.

It was the first day of work by the post office to replace temporary employees engaged after the mail transportation contract held by G. Lapalme Inc. expired April 30.

'Bugged' Prince Snaps at Snapper

GREEN ISLAND, Australia (UPI) — Prince Philip Tuesday drew in his knowledge of earthy language to describe a photographer as "running around like a blue-arsed fly."

The remark by Philip came while he was walking around this tropical isle with Queen Elizabeth and Princess Anne.

★ ★ ★

Apparently annoyed at the presence of a large number of newsmen and tourists, the Prince asked a photographer if he was getting enough pictures.

"I hope so, sir," the photographer replied.

"You should do, the Prince said. "You've been running around like a blue-arsed fly."

The expression is widely used in Australia to describe a person engaging in a lot of physical activity.

Death in Minds Of Astronauts

HOUSTON (UPI) — Apollo 13's astronauts told the nation Tuesday night there were times in their ill-fated moonflight they feared they might die in space.

James Lovell, Fred Haise and John Swigert said in a nationally-televised news conference they had no idea what caused an oxygen tank to explode and rip apart the aft section of their command ship four-fifths of the way to the moon.

They said they heard a loud bang and felt the ship shudder at the time of the explosion, then quickly learned how perilous the situation was when their electrical power disappeared and oxygen supplies in the command ship began to run out.

"My concern was increasing all the time," Lovell said. "It went from 'I wonder what this is going to do to the landing, to I wonder if we can get back home again.' "

Swigert said he felt the safe return to Earth after an emergency flight that lasted 86 hours, 59 minutes with jury-rigged equipment in a near-freezing spaceship was an answer to prayer.

"If you're asking me whether I prayed, I certainly did," he said.

Manson Cultist Must Die For Murder

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The first member of the "Manson family" to be tried for what the state charges was the opener of eight murders masterminded by the hippie cult leader was ordered Tuesday to die in the gas chamber.

A jury took only two hours and 45 minutes to bring in a death penalty verdict for Robert Beausoleil, 22, one of the weird assemblage of young men and women 35-year-old Charles Manson attracted to a sex and drugs commune at an old movie lot outside Los Angeles.

The same jury of seven women and five men Monday had found the babyfaced Beausoleil guilty of first degree murder in the torture slaying of Gary Hinman, a 34-year-old bagpipe musician who once befriended Manson.

Beausoleil took the death penalty finding with no outward show of emotion.

Hinman was stabbed to death in his Topanga Canyon home on July 26, 1969. On Aug. 10, actress Sharon Tate and four others were knifed or shot to death at her estate. The next night wealthy grocer Leno Labianca and his wife were killed at their home.

Manson, three of his female followers and another young man are scheduled to go to trial June 15 for the Tate-Labianca slayings.

Green Light for the Reds

AT THIS POINT IT MIGHT be expected there would be some sign of reaction in Peking with the prospect of a broadening of the war zone in Indo-China and the increasing political prominence of Hanoi which would result. Indeed sweeping successes by the North Vietnamese Communists could create a third power bloc in Southeast Asia which Peking and Moscow both might find embarrassing to their objectives in the area.

Although Peking has provided the deposed Cambodian ruler, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, with a sanctuary from which to attempt to organize a restoration, it has made no apparent effort at direct intervention. What goes on behind the scenes can only be imagined, but while it is quite possible Chairman Mao Tse-tung is feverishly manipulating what controls he can reach, the probability is that he will let the flood of violence reach its own level. For Cambodia up to now has had rather more tacit support from Russia than from China, in spite of Prince Sihanouk's cautious cultivation of nearer Communist neighbors.

It all seems rather complicated, but it is unlikely that China wants involvement which would increase the unfriendliness that already has manifested itself along her Russian frontier. The same thing holds true for the Soviet Union, always suspicious of conspiracies against her in the West and fearful of the deterioration of the position in the East.

The United States will use all its diplomatic ingenuity to steer clear of the reefs represented by Laos and Cambodia under attack from Hanoi, the United Nations so far has shown no sign of doing anything to curb aggression there, and the Geneva Convention powers are sitting on their hands.

So, unless there is a dramatic change of policy, and Russia listens and responds to British suggestions for a revival of the Geneva conversations of which these two were co-chairmen, only the frailest of obstacles block Hanoi's road to expansion.

It appears that a rather shocking indifference pervades the capitals where some initiative might be generated. Whatever the causes of inertia the result is a green light for the Reds.

For a Crime, a Tidy Profit

SOMETIMES events create a sneaking doubt about the truth of the well-worn adage that crime doesn't pay.

Take the case of Ronald Biggs, the elusive English train robber and prison escapee, whose exploits have been noted previously here. At last report he was supposedly in Gibraltar, then on his way to England by yacht. Now it transpires he never left Australia where police have been hunting him ever since he escaped their dragnet thrown about his hide-away in a Melbourne suburb seven months ago.

He and his agents, in fact, have been dickering with the newspaper chain owner, Australian-born Rupert Murdoch, for the sale of a manuscript of which Biggs is author that tells the whole story of his career of crime ever since he was invited to join the plotters of the great train robbery for a minimum $120,000 share of the loot. Actually his cut was probably more than $500,000.

Biggs originally approached a number of Australian newspapers through a third party, but nobody wanted the option because the police had warned them that to pay for such a story might be interpreted as assisting a criminal to remain at large.

But Mr. Murdoch, who also publishes The London Sun, called his agents in Melbourne with a suggestion that Biggs be offered "a sum in excess of £20,000" to be paid into a trust fund for his three children. Negotiations went on for two months but were completed a week ago. Biggs accepted the stipulation.

The deal was handled by the same firm of lawyers who represented Mrs. Charmaine Biggs when she was detained by police a year ago. Presumably it has been Mrs. Biggs who acted for her husband, because the legal people would have been bound to disclose any direct contact with the fugitive to the authorities.

And Mrs. Biggs has acted very competently in her own behalf. Recently she sold her story for a sum approaching $100,000.

Biggs and his family have suffered, no doubt, because a fugitive is hard put to find peace and relaxation and his wife and children can hardly know the happiness of normal circumstances. But the crime in this case has certainly paid handsome dividends in cash, to the confusion of the moralist so fond of the contradictory maxim.

"By the time this government's finished with it — they'll be welcome to the LOT . . .!

Earth Day Demonstrations

The Young Go in for Action

By JOYCE EGGINTON from New York

IN college campuses across across America there are groups of young people who have vowed never to drive automobiles, throw away paper or produce babies. They bury their kitchen waste in the earth rather than toss it into the garbage cans, and put bricks into their toilet tanks to reduce the amount of clean water which disappears into the sewage with every flush. In their spare time they picket industrial plants.

This latest generation of young activists is dedicated to a cause which, until recently, occupied only a scattering of older Americans who called themselves conservationists. While it was the conservationists' way to try to save the nation's natural resources by circulating petitions and lobbying congressmen, the young are going in for direct action.

The action is aimed at making other Americans aware of how disastrously they are despoiling their own environment, and how little time they have left to reverse the evils of 20th-century industrial advance. Americans consume and waste more than any other people in the world. They have polluted all their rivers and streams with their own garbage, destroying many species of marine life; they have turned green fields into graveyards for old automobiles, while the cars still functioning are putrefying the cities with gasoline fumes.

Against this background, many American experts say that their own vast land is already over-populated. This judgment is made not on the basis of people per square mile, as in India, but on the enormous amount of living space which every American takes up, the waste he creates, the atmosphere he despoils.

Most major cities are already facing up to the problem of having nowhere left to dump the tons of waste which accumulate every week — much of it material which, in poorer countries, would be considered too good to throw away. By collecting old tin cans and waste paper for re-processing, and by burying food scraps for compost, the students are attempting to show a little of what should be done.

Some of them go further. One of the many new ecology action groups which has sprung up (ecology having replaced conservation in the student lexicon) is called Zero Population Growth. This group maintains that couples should be restricted to producing no more than two children. On the premise that some people do not marry and some cannot procreate, it aims at actually reducing the population within a generation.

The inspiration came in a speech by a hitherto-unknown California girl, Stephanie Mills, less than a year ago. Chosen to make the valedictory address at her college, Stephanie spoke on ecology (the study of the relationship between living organisms and their environment) and its meaning for her. Classifying herself as "a potential ex-parent," Stephanie told a shocked audience that she had reached the conclusion that "the most humane thing for me to do is to have no children at all." Her speech made headlines around America.

Today thousands of students are coming to believe that motherhood, the great American virtue, is a dirty word. One couple who joined the Californian group Ecology Action, expecting a child, were so swiftly converted that they decided upon an abortion.

America's students of 1970 have taken up conservation as their predecessors campaigned against the Vietnam war, and as others fought for civil rights before that. Although the youthful enthusiasm may last no longer than it did for earlier causes — cynically speaking, three or four years — it has already scored where the others failed. Today there is scarcely a politician in the country, from President Nixon down, who is not polishing up on his ecology, gathering material on conservation and population control for his next campaign. Governors and legislative leaders in at least a dozen states have made the matter top priority; others are bound to get into the act before long.

Today, designated by the activists as Earth Day, all the conservationist groups will get together for demonstrations across America. While the politicians make speeches about ecology, students will attempt to block traffic in polluted city streets; they will organize clean-up campaigns for the countryside; they will attempt temporarily to close down industrial plants. In the smog-ridden heart of New York City they plan to scrub the sidewalks. In a small Ohio town they will hold a mock funeral for "the children of tomorrow."

At the same time there will be environmental teach-ins at thousands of high schools and colleges. Hopefully, the result will be a widespread national awareness of the enormity of the problem. Meantime, the students believe, it helps a little to return paper bags to the food stores which supplied them, to boycott farm produce sprayed with pesticides, to practise birth control, and to ride bicycles.

Washington Calling

Cautious Men Behind the Sparring

By MARQUIS CHILDS from Vienna

SOME 500 newspaper correspondents and at least 300 television commentators and technicians are here from all over the world to report on the Strategic Arms Limitations Talks (SALT). With the exception of the 10 Russian correspondents, in effect part of the official delegation from Moscow, the view of what may — or may not — be about to happen is as opaque as though seen through a thick London fog.

★ ★ ★

The prospect is for weeks of sparring as Washington and Moscow each seek to pry loose the other side's negotiationg position. The mystery is deep and dark. There is even doubt as to whether either side has a fully formulated negotiating position. In this obscure poker game both sides may be playing down the openers ready to react to any cards put face up on the table.

Behind this cautious sparring are two cautious men, neither of whom is really a free agent. One is Leonid I. Brezhnev, the 64-year-old general secretary of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union.

The recent rumbling out of the Kremlin is a foreboding of trouble to come. But any earthquake is almost certain to be postponed. It is the centenary of Lenin's birth, an all-important anniversary that would hardly be marked by the rise and fall of competing members of the hierarchy. Then for some time later in the year Moscow has announced a congress of world Communist parties with unity as the obvious goal.

As nearly as a cautious Communist leader could, Brezhnev the other day put his country's economic troubles on the line. In a major speech, much of it carried on television, he spoke of the shortages in food and consumer goods that are reported to have stirred widespread discontent within the Soviet Union. He went so far as to talk about the failures of the bureaucracy and the need for more efficient management and technical innovation.

Without putting it in just that way, this cautious man was saying that the cost of the arms race is depriving the Soviet people of the goods and services they have so long been promised. His position is curiously like that of the second cautious man sitting behind the players at the conference table in Vienna.

President Nixon and Brezhnev seem to be poles apart in almost every respect. Yet in their respective spheres they have come to positions of power conditioned in such a way that taking bold initiatives is difficult, if not impossible. Each has had to make compromises along the way. On both sides a powerful military bloc enforces caution and inveighs against taking any risk that might endanger what must seem in the objective view a wholly mythical security.

They are alike, too, in that each has the strongest possible motivation to get an agreement that would mean a pause and prevent a new and probably irreversible escalation in the arms race. If the Kremlin faces serious economic problems, the Nixon administration in Washington can hardly conceal the depth of America's troubles, both economic and political.

Whatever the actual military superiority in missiles and submarines, the United States can hardly be said to be negotiating in Vienna from a position of strength. The troubles on the home front — the war in Vietnam, crime, organized violence and nihilism — are too great. While the defence budget has been cut by as much as $10 billion it still, at $70 billion, takes far too great a toll from the surplus that might go toward correcting the profound disorders disrupting life in America.

That is the reason to hold out some hope for this beginning of a serious effort to go beyond mere appraisal of the vast stores of nuclear annihilation on each side of the divide. Plain, common sense would seem to dictate terms that each side could live with.

★ ★ ★

This would mean undeniably a risk — a risk, say, that a moratorium on deployment of the new many-headed missile, the MIRV, would be violated by the Russians. That risk must be weighed against the danger of a new round in the race and the accumulation of new and far more deadly weapons into an unforeseeable future. Surely, the military blocs in the Pentagon and the Kremlin cannot simply dismiss that risk.

No matter what the ultimate outcome, the side first to propose a bold course duly weighing the risks would win, in the view of this observer, a victory in public opinion around the world. It would be good to say that such a move is in sight. But it would not be true.

I Beg to Differ . . .

Gambling of Two Kinds

By FRANK LOWE

FOR the last few months all my affluent and wise friends have been going around looking and talking as though they had heard Gabriel tuning up to make that Last Call.

These friends of mine, it might be noted, are the ones who regularly "play the market." They are the hip members of the middle-aged mass who have learned how to make their dollars work for them, as the cliche has it.

Only lately, it seems, the cliche hasn't been all it is supposed to be. The market, I am told, is a mess.

★ ★ ★

On the other hand, I have friends who retain their general good nature. They are generally broke, but at least they are cheerful.

They are gamblers of another ilk. They are the horse players, the boys who can't resist putting down a deuce on a horse they have never seen running on a track they have never visited.

But if it is a horse race, they have to be in on the action.

What has always intrigued me — as I am neither a stock market speculator nor a race track bettor — is society's sharply differing approach to these two sporting types.

Actually, as you know and I know, for the average person it is just as risky to "invest" in the stock market as it is to "invest" in improving the breed.

In fact, many financial experts claim the average man has more chance of making money at the race track than he has on the stock market.

But that is not the way the social part of it goes.

I have noticed that society has one opinion of the stock market gambler, and a completely different one of the horse player.

★ ★ ★

If a man lets drop the information that he has "taken a little flier" by buying some shares of Frothy Broth Inc., everybody nods wisely.

"Fred's got a good head on his shoulders," they say. "He will get ahead."

But should a fellow let it be known that he regularly bets on the ponies, well, wow! The consensus is that he is a pretty unreliable person, and people go around feeling sorry for his wife and kids.

"Horse players always end up broke," they say.

If you think I am exaggerating about how society regards these two forms of gambling, try a little experiment. The next time you are on a crowded bus take out a copy of the Wall Street Journal and peruse it, or spend your time checking over the stock quotations in your local newspaper.

The man beside you will probably strike up a conversation and maybe even ask you if you know of anything good on the market.

The following day, on the same bus, shake out a copy of the Racing News and start going over the next day's offerings. The man beside you will probably edge away, convinced he is consorting with a shady character.

★ ★ ★

As far as I am concerned, I can't tell any difference between the stock market player and the horse player. Both are living in that euphoric world where they believe that one can get something for nothing.

Well, not quite nothing. But if one is lucky, a few dollars "invested" will bring back a bundle. With no effort on the part of the investor.

After all, what is the difference between the man who buys $100 worth of Frothy Broth Inc., stock because he heard this stock was due to triple in value, and the man who places $5 on Fleet Foot because he has been told Fleet Foot is a cinch to win the third, and return $25?

Mind you, I have nothing against either kind of gambling. If I did gamble myself, though, I think I would lean towards the horse racing side.

★ ★ ★

If I was interested in that form of investing, I could occasionally get to a race track, breathe some fresh air and actually watch my investment go down the drain.

Putting money in the stock market wouldn't seem, to me at least, nearly as much fun.

Yet it is more respectable, for some reason.

Enviable Oddity

From The Ottawa Journal

HENRI Pierre in his Letter from London in Le Monde, Paris, writes of a charming British eccentricity:

"Among the oddities of British life is what seems to be a tacit agreement between the guardians of the law and those who break it never to resort to the use of firearms. They exchange threats, they knock each other down, criminals run away and policemen catch them—but neither side shoots at the other. Only in very special cases are the police authorized to carry firearms. They have thus gained an authority and prestige that are the envy of European and American police forces . . ."

This must be heart-warming praise for the British who, we seem to recall, despite their dislike of firearms produce from time to time most gruesome and ingenious murders that rival best-seller mysteries.

The Le Monde reporter thinks that many of the [illegible] British have reached the point where they object to obscene plays, films and books and have lost patience with protest demonstrators. Still, they try to practise forbearance, and, this French observer remarks, they want above all to maintain the mutual trust and respect that exists between public and police. An "oasis of tolerance," he concludes.

Extravagance, Misuse of Talent Add to B.C.'s Colossal Health Bill

By JOHN MATTERS

About $290,000,000 will be spent trying to maintain the health of British Columbians during the coming year. It is a figure that the Economic Council of Canada says will compound at 11 per cent a year, a rate that will be faster than the growth of any other public service.

The fact that such a large sum is going into medicare, hospital insurance and public and mental health programs should not astonish anyone, however, because if we can't afford good health, what can we afford?

Of course, we MUST be able to afford good health.

But must we tolerate some of the glaring examples of duplication and extravagance, misdirection of medical talent and misuse of existing facilities that have come to light during the past two months.

B.C. Health Minister Ralph Loffmark three weeks ago underlined what he has been telling the health industry for at least a year: B.C. soon will reach the limit of its spending, he said before announcing that hospitals themselves will have to find 30 percent of the salary increases they have awarded since Jan. 1.

While Loffmark did not offer much of a philosophical basis for a position that he solidified much too quickly, he nevertheless delivered a thunderbolt to some public hospitals that have been behaving as if they were private clubs.

However, it was only a ripple when compared with the force of some of the recommendations of a three-volume task force report on the cost of health services in Canada.

That report, which still has not been widely publicized, is a wave that might capsize some of our medical-hospital fiefdoms.

It says things like this:

● It's time nurses were freed of ritualistic duties, such as taking temperatures three or four times a day whether a patient needs it or not.

● Hospitals have been perpetuating outdated, traditional concepts of drug purchasing, resulting in a serious lack of economy.

● Using work study methods that have been applied in industries to increase their efficiency, hospitals should be able to raise the productivity of their staffs between 10 and 30 per cent.

(It is interesting that earlier this month, after a meeting with Loffmark, T. C. Marshall, president of the 106-member B.C. Hospitals' Association, announced that his organization and other interests in the hospital industry are setting up a task force of their own for such efficiency studies in B.C.

Loffmark

feration of "single-disease" oriented agencies and getting them to confine their roles to gaps in services.

● More extensive dental services, regular dental care beginning at the age of three, prepaid dental care insurance and fiscal support for fluoridation.

● More judicious use of mass screening programs with more emphasis on high-risk groups.

● In connection with that, the task force report points out that in one province finding one case of infectious tuberculosis using mass x-ray screening (a service such as Operation Doorstep) costs about $30,000 and some of those cases are already known.

Thirty thousand dollars to detect one case of tuberculosis? Doesn't that jerk your head out of the sand?

Was This a Snow Job?

(One wonders whether this was a snow job because all the BCHA need do is telephone a hospital like St. Joseph's, which has had a work-study specialist on its staff for almost three years.)

Other task force observations:

"Doctors commit large sums of public money whenever they admit and treat a patient in hospital. Too frequently they fail to recognize and accept responsibility for the financial implications of their activities."

The report cites misuses of in-patient facilities for persons who do not need their full coverage, gross overuse of diagnostic procedures and tests, inadequate pre-admission procedures and documentation.

"It is not infrequent that doctors order procedures, the results of which they are unable to interpret," says the report.

It also suggests that tighter controls must be applied to the ordering of experimental or semi-research tests and over the mass of informal research that is often carried out by doctors so they can prepare a paper.

"Often this is done without the knowledge or permission of anyone within the hospital.

"We feel this type of research should not be undertaken in view of the heavy demands it may make on laboratory services, for example, unless it has been cleared through a special committee such as the utilization committee."

One of the most interesting contributions to the task force comes from a committee on hospital beds and facilities that was chaired by James Mainguy of Victoria, director of consultation, research and development for B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

The committee's report causes one to wonder whether the proliferation of bureaucracies might be the No. 1 threat to the health of Canadians.

This is one of that committee's 44 recommendations:

"... That administrative arrangements be established which will provide for full co-ordination of the total health care delivery system at the provincial and higher levels.

Combination Urged

"This implies arrangements whereby the fields of health, welfare, mental health, hospital plan operation and medical care plan operation can be viewed as elements of a single function and health planning body.

"In one province, as an example, there are five agencies involved in these functions."

Other suggestions of Mainguy's committee:

Small hospitals should not try to function as scale models of larger, urban hospitals, each with its own small bank of specialists and sophisticated gadgetry.

Small hospitals of between 10 and 25 beds are not conducive to efficiency and a minimum size of 75 to 100 acute-care beds is more practical.

In remote areas, a medical station that would serve as a base for a physician is all that is needed.

Paradoxically, the distrubution of services in urban areas (such as Greater Victoria) produces many more problems because it involved competitive factors and the history and aspirations of specific institutions.

The duplication of services, particularly in the large teaching centres, are paramount examples of waste and bad deployment of manpower, says the report.

The task force suggests such waste could be eliminated — and this is the objective of regional authorities here — by a clearly defined regional health planning body.

Such superboards would have immense power and their pressure would be felt not only by hospitals but by the doctors who work in those hospitals.

"If regional planning is to work, the medical profession must be directly involved. Medical staff can no longer be organized solely on a single hospital basis if effective delivery of medical care on a regional basis is to be provided."

However, that recommendation does not have a direct application here. The organization of the medical staff in Victoria is more patient than doctor or hospital-orientated.

A Shocking Paradox

Another B.C. authority who was involved in the task force report is Dr. K. I. G. Benson, director of health units for the provincial government.

His committee pointed to a shocking paradox — we spend 95 per cent of our health money curing disease but only 5 per cent trying to prevent it.

However, it not only talks about spending — it suggests more thought be given to the principle of bringing the public health worker into the mainstream of health services.

For example, home care programs might eliminate the need to admit some patients to hospital and they might reduce the length of stay in such institutions.

Services in a visible home-care program might include physician-care, nursing, physiotherapy, speech therapy, dietary counselling, certain drugs, appliances and dietary services, homemaker and housekeeping services, transportation, means-on-wheels and social work.

Other recommendations of the Benson group:

Brezhnev Now No. 1

By DON COOK, from Vienna

Specialists in Soviet affairs here believe that a power realignment has been completed in the Kremlin in which the outward appearances of collective leadership have been kept intact but the party and the government are dominated by Leonid Brezhnev.

Only time will tell what relative weight other members of the hierarchy in Russia still retain — President Nikolai Podgorny, Premier Alexei Kosygin and such key politburo members as Mikhail Suslov and Alexander Shelepin.

But what seems clear from a sifting of all evidence and intelligence to reach key sources here is that Brezhnev, the secretary general of the Communist party, is no longer first among equals — he is first.

★ ★ ★

There is a belief here that the emergence of Brezhnev will mean that decision-making on the current U.S. Soviet arms negotiations, when the time for decision arrives, will be more direct and clearcut.

It is presumed, for example, that the collective leadership had quite a time making up its collective mind whether to embark on the negotiations in the first place.

It also may be that once this week's anniversary of the birth of Lenin is out of the way, Brezhnev will embark on a reshuffle of the government.

Brezhnev

Some secondary posts involving economic direction have been shifted. Illnesses and age could provide opportunities for other shifts as well, which might mean a new cast of characters at the top under Brezhnev before too long.

No Classless Society

Lenin's Design Not Fulfilled

By HAROLD MORRISON, from London

The centenary of Vladimir Lenin is an occasion during which the Soviet Union might wish to impress on its people and on the world the full extent of its accomplishments in terms of economic benefits and international solidarity.

Although the revolutionist-tactician might justly be astonished by present results of his grand design for a classless society, some observers suggest he might also be shocked by Kremlin rigidities and the repugnant growth of a new class of privileged Soviet bureaucrats.

Any reader of his works would readily conclude that his grand design still awaits fulfilment. Instead of the relative freedom of the classless society, Lenin's legacy has led to a form of Soviet ideological imperialism with world supremacy as its major goal.

★ ★ ★

At home, Russians find their leaders still heavily preoccupied with maintenance of military strength, with its heavy drain on consumer benefits.

Leonid Brezhnev the Communist party secretary, blames defective planning for economic shortcomings.

But at the same time, the Russians have increased their fleet in the Mediterranean, increased military contributions to the Middle East, expanded missiles deployment and added to forces on the eastern frontier without reducing the number of divisions in the West.

While demonstrating willingness to negotiate arms reductions with the United States, the Soviet leadership is seen by authoritative Western strategists as still seeking full nuclear parity with the United States, and perhaps to exceed it, if this is possible.

★ ★ ★

This preoccupation with military strength may be justified by the country's new problems with China, whose leaders took the occasion to unleash a Hitler-type blitzkreig. the Kremlin of seeking to unleash a Hitler-type blitzkreig.

But there is little doubt that the Soviet Union also seeks to use this military strength to maintain its dominance over Eastern Europe and to intimidate other regions beyond its frontiers.

Lenin evolved his theories in an atmosphere of freedom —mostly in London — and if there is some sombre quality to anniversary celebrations in Moscow, it may rest partly on the knowledge that Soviet citizens who seek intellectual expression may have to practise such a privilege in an insane asylum or labor camp.

Yet the Soviet Union has come a long way since the storm on 1917. And since Lenin was a realist, as much as a theorist, he might have concluded that one form of revolution can easily give birth to another and that changes can still happen in his country as they can elsewhere in the world.

Divided Contractors Give Unions Edge

Great Lockout Becomes Great Confusion

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

Will it be recorded by history as British Columbia's Great Lockout?

Or perhaps the lockout that almost was?

Or maybe just the lockout that never grew up?

On Tuesday, one week after it all started, it wasn't hard to find people who would swear by any of these descriptions. It all depended, of course, on what side of the fence they stood.

In reality, it appeared the real answer was still hidden by the cloud of confusion that has developed since the Construction Labor Relations Association locked out seven building trade unions on a province-wide basis.

It has become increasingly more difficult to determine just how much of the province's construction has been affected and to what degree.

Hop-scotch Pattern

Neither the unions nor CLRA, which claims to represent 600 contractors, have been able to provide more than sketchy pictures of a sort of hop-scotch pattern of slow-down and stoppage.

Anyone sifting the abundant supply of conflicting stories, may draw some conclusions.

These would include:

● That strategy on the part of the unions had combined with certain lack of co-operation among some contractors to give labor an edge in the contest so far.

● That the lockout started with a mild "poof" and not the enormous explosion that had been forecast and has, as labor had predicted, barely caused a ripple on Vancouver Island.

● But even so, the longer it goes on the more serious it will become; on a gradual basis, it could create a real construction-paralysis.

By Tuesday the Vancouver-based plumbers had become union No. 8 in the lockout saga, but there was some doubt they had really stepped into the web with both feet.

Labor officials said about 2,000 of the 3,000 plumbers are actually involved in construction work. Of these, they said, many work for companies with national and international agreements where the lockout is not in effect.

They said, also, that CLRA covers only about 94 of the contractors that employed the plumbers and that there is a choice of another 120 unaffiliated contractors for whom they can work.

Plumbers from Victoria to Duncan and at Prince Rupert are bound by other agreements and are not included in the lockout.

The B.C.-Yukon Building Trades Council was still offering some fairly impressive figures Tuesday to back its claim that the lockout wasn't hurting too much as yet. Council secretary Ed Fay said in Vancouver that only 5,000 of the council's 70,000 tradesmen have been directly affected.

Projects Continue

Work was continuing at many major projects in Victoria and Vancouver, although it has slowed in most cases.

Contractors say the halting effect is due, in part, to a separate strike-lockout situation concerning the teamsters and the Lower Mainland cement industry. Union spokesmen say cement is still being brought in from Washington state and many independent B.C. companies.

"And some contractors now have their own batch plants on the job," Fay said.

At the outset, CLRA president C. J. Connaghan said the lockout would virtually tie up all major construction. The price tag he offered was $200,000,000.

Spokesmen for the contractors now admit the statement might have been a little off the mark — that the almost immediate shutdown forecast would only come about on a gradual basis.

Breath of Life

Hindering the plan further, of course, has been the chief piece of union strategy — to refrain from using picket lines. This has allowed all unaffected unions to maintain a breath of life in projects that had been expected to die.

The lockout was really the first test of strength on the part of the recently-formed CLRA. Until now the ranks of contractors have been notoriously fragmented.

"You've got to look at it this way," a Vancouver-based contractors' spokesman told the Colonist. "These guys are the ultra-free enterprise boys — guys who in many cases have pulled themselves up by the bootstraps — guys who have been involved in a highly competitive business. Now they are told to sit down and work together as a team. It isn't easy for them."

Union spokesmen quickly agree. They say there have already been many deals in which locked out employees of one company have been switched to the payroll of a subsidiary firm.

Fay says there have also been cases where a customer will cancel a contract and bring in a new company. In some cases the new company will pick up the men locked out by the original company, he said.

After the end of this month the province's 10,000 construction carpenters could either be added to the lockout, or go on strike. Their contract runs out April 30 and their negotiating committee is recommending that they reject an offer of a $1 an hour increase on top of a $4.88 rate. They sought a $2.02 hike.

The CLRA says it imposed the lockout because of unrealistic increase demands ranging from 40 per cent to 105 per cent.

In Victoria Tuesday, Vancouver Island Building Trades Council secretary John Schibli answered criticism of big construction union demands with a long list of neatly compiled figures.

Records showed the average carpenter worked about eight months in 1969 and earned wages of $5,735.40. With benefits added the figure would have been $5,916.90, he said.

Schibli said the situation was much the same for the other trades.

Talks Resume

The construction unions have also taken exception to contractors' claims that labor costs make up about half the cost of building. They say on-site labor accounts for less than 20 per cent of the cost.

Whatever happens next in the lockout, it appears both sides are willing to take steps to bring it to an end.

By Tuesday talks had resumed with three more of the locked out unions — the bricklayers, cement masons and teamsters. Others locked out are the operating engineers, plumbers, heat and frost insulators, laborers and tunnel and rock workers.

Swordsman Awaits Assault Sentencing

An Oakalla prison guard who is both a political scientist and a champion athlete wielded a stolen sword.

And another man's wife threw her arms over her husband's head when the sword was swung.

It all happened early April 12 in Esquimalt.

The story was told Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court after Gursharn Singh Mann, 28, of Vancouver, pleaded guilty to two charges of assault causing bodily harm and one charge of theft involving more than $50.

SWORD STOLEN

The charges said the sword was stolen April 12 from the Sikh Temple at 2721 Graham in Victoria, while the assaulted couple was Ragbier Singh Bhandar, 271 Nicola Place, and his wife Hargian. After the assault charge naming Bhandar was read, a charge of attempted murder of the husband was withdrawn.

Then Esquimalt Constable Robert Vining and defence lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood unfolded this story:

PRISON GUARD

A champion athlete who holds a master of arts degree in political science in India, Mann came to Canada two years ago and has been working as an Oakalla prison guard. He recently separated from his wife, and this may have caused ill feeling in the East Indian community, where Mrs. Mann has relatives.

Mann went to an East Indian celebration on the night of April 11-12 at the Dominion Hall, 802 Esquimalt, saying he was a representative of the attorney-general's department and investigating Hindu dances.

DANCE ASKED

Vining said Mann asked Mrs. Bhandar twice for a dance, was refused, became profane and was asked to leave, which he did. Owen-Flood said Mann felt he had been publicly insulted and "wished to get revenge."

He went to the Sikh Temple, arriving while a priest was reading the Bible, a reading which tradition says cannot be stopped. So, no one did anything while Mann walked up to the altar and took a $72, three-foot cavalry sword.

Mann returned to the Dominion Hall, waiting outside in a car. Bhandar and his wife were entering their car in a parking lot when Mann approached, holding the sword above his head with both hands.

ARM CUT

Mrs. Bhandar threw her arms over her husband's head and was cut twice between the left wrist and elbow, cuts that may require plastic surgery. Bhandar received a six-stitch cut on his right thumb, his suit coat was slashed and a bracelet on his left wrist was "sliced practically open."

Owen-Flood said Mann has no previous record and offered as an exhibit a letter in which Mann asked that "God forgive me." The lawyer requested both pre-sentence and psychiatric reports, and Judge William Ostler agreed, remanding the case to April 30 for sentence.

Robbery

Drugs Claim Heard

A 25-year-old man who has resolution making the union the $1,165 bank holdup Feb. 20 in Victoria claims to have taken five tranquilizers, five anti-depressant pills and 10 to 12 glasses of beer in a period of a few hours before the robbery.

Dr. Anthony Marcus, head of the UBC forensic psychiatry department, said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court he was told about the pills and beer by John Alan King, no fixed address, who pleaded guilty April 9 to a charge of robbing the Toronto-Dominion Bank at Yates and Broad.

★ ★ ★

The psychiatrist described King as "inadequate, somewhat shiftless, unstable, sometimes explosive (and sometimes) morose and depressed." He urged that psychiatric treatment and a ban on alcohol be included in the sentence for King.

The sentence, which was to have been pronounced Tuesday, was deferred to today so a policeman can testify about King's demeanor at the time of arrest shortly after the holdup.

Beer Parlor Rioting Denounced by Judge

"There's been altogether too much disorderly conduct recently in beer houses in this city," Judge William Ostler said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court.

The judge said such places are for people to go "for refreshment and quiet enjoyment ... They are not places for riots and disorderly conduct. There's far too much of it."

He was speaking to Brian James Tucker, 20, of 1551 Arrow, who pleaded guilty to a charge of wilful damage Monday evening in the beer parlor of a hotel at 1140 Government.

Court was told Tucker was evicted from the bar, damaged a table and broke some glasses by throwing a chair, was evicted again and returned to break a glass against a wall. Tucker was fined $50 and ordered to pay $3.15 for the damages.

Another 20-year-old charged as a result of a beer parlor incident was Patrick Francis Grills, 722 Pembroke, who was first charged with creating a disturbance by being drunk Monday evening in the same hotel pub.

He pleaded guilty, but a recital of the facts included a police opinion that Grills "had been drinking but was not drunk." The judge dismissed the charge and Grills was charged later with creating a disturbance by shouting in the same incident. He pleaded guilty again.

POLICE ACCUSED

Court was told two off-duty policemen in the beer parlor were asked by a staff member to get Grills to leave, but Grills refused, mouthed obscenities and spat on the policemen.

Grills told the judge he thought "the police officers themselves were drunk. They were in there all night. They had more or less harassed me for about three hours off and on."

JUDGE'S QUESTION

He also said he thought the policemen were mad because the drinking age had been lowered to 19 and they didn't have that advantage when they were young.

"Assuming that were true," said the judge, "why did you shout?"

"They were shouting at me," Grills replied.

"Oh, no ... no," said the judge, fining Grills $25.

Impaired Driving Charges Quashed

The laws against drinking drivers ran into another roadblock Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court when Judge William Ostler quashed two charges of impaired driving.

His action resulted from a March 31 ruling by B.C. Supreme Court Justice Craig Munroe in Vancouver that a Canadian law amending drinking-driving laws was proclaimed improperly before it went into effect last Dec. 1.

Lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood appeared for both Keith T. L. Webb, 32, of 2214 Florence, and Wayne Edward Roberts, 30, of 9633 8th Street in Sidney. After separate incidents in February, both were charged with impaired driving and with refusing to take a breath analysis test.

LAWS ELIMINATED

The Munroe ruling wiped out both the breath-test law and one against driving with a blood alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent.

The Criminal Code section involved also included the impaired-driving law, but its wording was identical with the law it replaced and courts had made no change in dealing with such cases.

Owen-Flood said evidence in both impaired-driving cases included breath analysis readings.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett asked for either an adjournment of the cases until the Supreme Court of Canada rules on an appeal against the Munroe ruling, or for a court ruling upholding the impaired-driving charge.

Lloyd McKenzie, appearing for the provincial government, said the attorney-general's instructions were not to oppose the bid to quash.

Ostler first declined any adjournment, then quashed the breath-test counts against both Webb and Roberts.

Air Canada's Profits Take Plunge in 1969

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Making its smallest net profit since 1964, Air Canada blamed "a crippling strike" by its ground crew employees for a performance that saw the net income of the line plunge to $1,548,000 from $8,184,000 in 1968.

The strike, which grounded all aircraft for a month during April and May, cost the company about $40,000,000 in revenues, said Yves Pratte, chairman, in the annual report tabled Tuesday in the House of Commons.

Not only was traffic lost during the strike, but it was found on resumption that a substantial volume of summer traffic had been lost to competitors.

Air Canada also suffered, along with the other scheduled carriers, a loss of business to the charter lines on the transatlantic service.

Pratte announced the line was having the first major reorganization of its administrative structure since the line was established.

Business Topics

This was a move to make marketing the "cutting edge" of the business.

□

DEBITS DOWN

Debits to individual accounts by the chartered banks in the Greater Victoria area were down again in March for the third successive month.

The total of debits on cheques drawn in the private sector of the economy amounted to $542,300,000, down from $633,000,000 in March, 1969. But with Easter in March this year, the banks operated on two fewer days than a year ago, when Easter was in April.

For the three-months period the debits were $1,499,600,000 compared with the record first quarter of $1,638,600,000 established a year ago.

□

CAPITAL SCARCE

The president of McKay Cormack Holdings Ltd. says its Victoria shipbuilding subsidiary is in difficulties, not because of shortage of marine orders, but because of difficulties in obtaining working capital.

Don Low also said that although he was president of McKay Cormack Holdings Ltd. and also of Buvel Executives Mining Industries, the latter firm did not control McKay Cormack Holdings, as was stated in this column last Friday.

He also said the debenture held by E. C. Warner was not repayable on demand, although it appears that way in the Financial Post Survey of Industrials for 1969.

He expressed the hope that the shipyard would be in a position to resume activity.

POWER'S OFFER

Power Corporation of Canada is making an unconditional offer to accept all the common shares of Consolidated Bathurst under the terms of its offer that expires April 28.

The offer is an exchange into 2½ cents of Power for each share of Consolidated Bathurst.

Originally, the offer was to become binding on receipt of not less than 2,300,000 CB shares. This proviso has now been waived.

□

COPIER NEWS

A copier that costs more than a Cadillac has been introduced by IBM, and the news has had an upsetting effect on the stock of Xerox, kingpin in the copying machine business.

The IBM copier is listed at $19,200, and its specifications claim it will turn out 600 copies an hour.

Poor little firms that cannot afford the cash outlay may rent the copier at the modest cost of $200 a month plus a royalty of 2.3 cents on every copy.

As Xerox has filed a patent infringement suit against IBM, I think meantime I will stick to the carbon copy method.

□

GOVERNMENTS BLAMED

Weldwood of Canada will make only a fraction of the profit it made a year ago in the first quarter of 1969, according to Roger Montgomery, president.

Figures for this year's quarter are not yet available, but Montgomery said sales were down to $29,528,000 from $33,428,000 a year ago.

He blamed the anti-inflationary policies of the U.S. and Canadian governments for the woes of the industry.

□

EXCHANGE COST

It is not only the big brokerage houses that are laying off staff because of the contraction of stock market business.

The American Stock Exchange itself is feeling the draft. It announced this week it would lay off 100 employees — about 10 per cent of its staff — because of dropping business.

Amex averaged 5,000,000 shares a day in the first quarter of 1969 and only 3,700,000 in the same period this year. Its April average so far is down to 3,100,000 shares a day.

□

TAX PROTEST

Another voice to be added to volume of protest against the white paper's tax reform proposals is that of Murray Brink, president of Johnston Terminals and Storage Ltd.

Brink says that Canada's resource-rich area with a small population requires a tax climate that provides all possible stimulation to the development of these natural resources and secondary industry.

"We would hope the federal government will have the courage to withdraw at least some of the tax proposals which ignore the basis premises of the company's recent growth, and which could slow its progress in the future," he said in the Johnston annual report.

□

FUTURE CLOUDY

Preston Mines Ltd. says it does not expect an early reopening of its Stanleigh uranium mine at Elliot Lake.

The mine was shut down in 1961.

Any reactivation will depend on the price levels for uranium and the availability of long term contracts. The present price of uranium was not high enough to make Stanleigh viable, said R. D. Armstrong, president of Preston Mines.

Timber Profits Decline

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. Tuesday reported first-quarter earnings of $2,011,000, down considerably from the $3,112,000 in earnings for the same period in 1969.

Company president Robert Rogers told the annual meeting that a depressed lumber market and continued inflation contributed to bringing down the earnings, despite good sales for the three months of $43,437,000. Sales for the same period in 1969 were slightly higher at $43,449,000.

MARKET BOOMING

A year ago the lumber and plywood market was booming and prices were at record levels, Rogers said, but now the company faces lower demands and price levels comparable to those of 10 years ago.

The company earlier announced year-end earnings for 1969 of $13,782,000 based on record sales of $205,043,000. Earnings in 1968 were $12,776,000.

Referring to wage negotiations now underway with the International Woodworkers of America, Rogers said although companies must offer top wages to attract the best people to the forest industry, "It is clear that 1970 is shaping up as a year when moderation and restraint are vitally necessary to keep our economy on an even keel."

Back to Quiet Side of Life

Despite vast changes from Victorian to ultramodern in building design, as here at Royal Bank of Canada building, Fort and Cook, some things, like boys and bikes, remain same. Getting breath of spring are Jack Leedham, 1715 Leighton, and Stuart Cox, 302 Irving.—(William E. John)

Auto Union Seeks Pollution Control

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—The 1,800,000-member United Auto Workers served notice Tuesday it will make development of a pollution-free car engine a bargaining issue in this year's contract talks with the industry.

Acting on the eve of Earth day, more than 3,100 UAW convention delegates adopted a resolution making the union the first to present pollution control as an issue for collective bargaining.

The resolution, which also called for enactment of "an environmental bill of rights," noted that automobiles were responsible for 60 per cent of air pollution and said:

DEVELOP ENGINE

"A rigid timetable must be imposed upon the auto industry to develop an engine that will not pollute the air."

The delegates passed the resolution after a speech by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., chairman of Wednesday's nationwide Earth day teach-in, who predicted that unless the autombile industry developed a cleaner internal combustion engine, the auto workers within six years would be producing vehicles with another type of engine emitting less pollution.

LIVING QUALITY

Nelson called on the UAW to take the lead in making pollution control a political campaign issue "to give us an ecology congress, an ecology legislature, an ecology city council and county board.

"We must be prepared to say to every candidate for office: 'We want to know where you stand on the issues of quality of living in this country,' " Nelson said. " 'If you stand right, we support you, but if you stand wrong, we turn you out of office.' "

Nelson said the United States must develop a philosophy "that places gross national quality at least on a par with gross national product."

Like the Apollo 13 spacecraft, the Earth is a "closed system" with a limited amount of air, food, water and capacity to sustain life, Nelson warned. "You can't bring anything in. You can't take anything out. You survive on what is here."

Henry Galler & Company Ltd. Appointment

RAY NEANDER

Henry Galler, president of Henry Galler & Company Ltd., is pleased to announce the appointment of Ray Neander as Vice-President of the company. Until recently, Mr. Neander was national sales manager of one of Canada's largest electronic manufacturers.

In his new position, Mr. Neander will head up a network of sales branches including showrooms, warehouses and service facilities in major cities from coast to coast.

Henry Galler & Company Ltd. is the Canadian marketing division of Hitachi Sales Corporation of Canada Ltd. and is exclusive Canadian sales agency for Hitachi colour televisions, black and white televisions, tape recorders, cassette recorders, radios and component stereos bearing the name of Hitachi—Japan's largest manufacturing company.

Man Jailed For Fraud

TERRACE (CP) — Weldon Roy Gordon, 27, of Vancouver was sentenced to 18 months in jail after he was found guilty in Terrace provincial court of defrauding a timber company.

Police said Gordon had caused cheques to be issued to persons not employed by the Twin River company between March, 1968 and August, 1969. Police said the net amount of the cheques totalled nearly $30,000.

Attack on Auditor-General

Tory Sees Plot To Bar Criticism

OTTAWA (CP)— Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday the government has attacked Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson as part of a plan to stop criticism of the government and limit debate.

"The real reason the government wants to muzzle Mr. Henderson is that this government cannot take criticism," he told the Commons.

Discussion of the role of the auditor-general, the traditional watchdog of government spending who is responsible only to Parliament, followed criticism of his 1968-69 report tabled in the Commons March 24.

Stanfield, speaking on his non-confidence motion scoring the government for criticizing Henderson, verbally thumped the government for "wanting to pull the teeth of the auditor-general."

The Conservative motion calls on the Commons to condemn the government "for criticizing the auditor-general of Canada for carrying out his duties according to law." It also reasserts Commons support of "the principle of unfettered parliamentary scrutiny of government expenditures," including the auditor-general's right to comment on the government's failure to spend money in strict compliance with parliamentary appropriations.

Stanfield said recent attacks on the auditor-general are alarming because they are part of "deliberate government actions to increase its power and break down that of its critics."

The NDP also introduced a non-confidence motion commending the auditor general for "drawing Parliament's attention to the improper concession of $180,000,000 to motor-vehicle manufacturers by order-in-council."

Canada Planning No Court Stand On Water Lines

OTTAWA (CP)— Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Wednesday Canada would not appear at the International Court of Justice in The Hague if any nation contests Canadian claims to fishing jurisdiction in waters enclosed by proposed new closing lines.

He added that his department would also use these closing lines to hold up development of such things as offshore oil drilling until pollution control measures are taken to ensure safe fishing.

★ ★ ★

The fisheries closing lines are designed to protect Canadian rights in bodies of water where Canada's primary interest relate to fishing and where Canada has historic claims. At present, Parliament is debating a bill on territorial seas and fishing zones which will give the Canadian government power to draw the closing lines.

Davis said the bill will be passed as quickly as possible.

Davis said the bill will also extend Canadian territorial waters to 12 miles from three and will not interfere with shipping in areas closed by the fishing lines provided the shipping does not imperil Canadian fishing.

Earlier External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons fisheries committee the new fishing zones established by the closing lines will result in gradual elimination of historic fishing rights of countries which have traditionally fished in the areas. These countries include Britain, Denmark, Norway, Spain, Portugal, France and Italy.

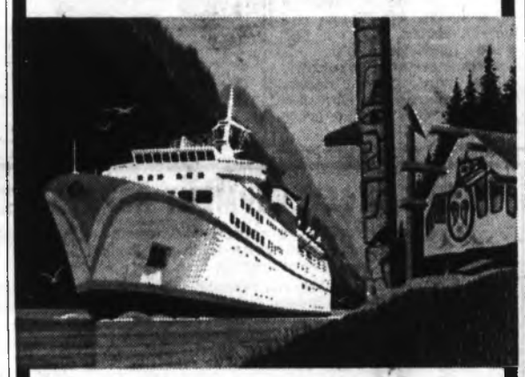

'Munro Evades Issue'

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Welfare Minister Phil Gagiardi said Tuesday that a statement by federal Health Minister John Munro that striking workers are eligible for welfare if they can prove need is "ambiguous and an attempt to evade the issue."

Gagiardi said that before a striker can apply for welfare he must first exhaust all other sources of income such as federal unemployment insurance.

When that is exhausted "the first thing we'll do is try and get him a job through the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen's Organization and if he can prove need while we look for a job for him, he'll get welfare," Gagiardi said.

Drilling 'Controlled'

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy department officials are confident they have safe control over offshore drilling operations in the search for oil on Canada's continental shelf.

D. G. Crosby, chief of the department's resource administration division, told the Commons natural resources committee Tuesday that any deep drilling by companies holding exploration permits on the shelf must first be cleared with federal authorities. No permission was given without careful examination.

Crosby said that since 1967, 14 deep holes have been drilled off the West Coast and seven off the East Coast. So far, none has resulted in producing wells.

He told the committee the department has refused permission to drill in the Boundary Bay area south of Vancouver, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence near the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon and in the Bay of Fundy.

Further drilling is expected this year, however, following completion of a $13,000,000 offshore drilling rig in Halifax, he said.

In an interview later, Crosby said an oil company wishing to drill must first submit a report to the government detailing the equipment to be used, conditions and the prognosis for the operation. The company must also file frequent reports on progress of the operation.

TV Station Asks Tax Bite For Advertising in U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — CFTO-TV of Toronto called Tuesday for a federal tax penalty against Canadian advertisers who buy commercial time on U.S. border television stations.

Lawyer E. A. Goodman, a CFTO director, appearing before the special Senate committee on mass media, recommended withdrawal of the right to count advertising costs as tax deductible for commercial time on U.S. stations.

MGM Blames Four Films For Big Loss

By ROBERT DALLOS
Colonist Los Angeles Times Service

NEW YORK — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. Tuesday reported an operating loss of $1,594,000 for the first half of fiscal 1970. The company blames the loss on the "poor performance" of high-budget films inherited from the previous MGM management.

The loss from operations MGM incurred in the first 28 weeks of the fiscal year ended March 12 compared to a much greater loss — $6,547,000 — in the same 1969 fiscal period.

Last year MGM was the object of a successful tender offer by Las Vegas hotel owner Kirk Kerkorian. In two separate offers, Kerkorian gained working control.

Kerkorian fired MGM president Louis Polk, Jr. and installed James Aubrey, Jr., former president of Columbia Broadcasting Systems television network, as the head of the company.

"The operating loss is directly related to four recently released feature films made by previous managements," Aubrey said. The films were Goodbye, Mr. Chips, The Appointment, Captain Nemo and the Underwater City and Zabriskie Point. The four films' total production cost was $20,000,000.

BLOCKBUSTER

"The current estimate is that the box office performance of these films cannot possibly fully recover their costs and therefore, the company has been forced to take write downs on them," Aubrey said.

"Without the loss incurred by the poor performance of these inherited high-budget films," he added, "the operations of the company would show a substantial profit."

Aubrey said "when a picture costs five or six million to make, the chances are slim that there will be a profit. The only way there would be a chance for a profit would be if one was a real blockbuster which could make enough money to offset the others." But this, he said, did not occur.

Square Dance Ball Slated

The Vancouver Island Western Square Dance Association and the Victoria and District Caller-Teachers Association will hold their 17th annual square dance graduation ball at 8:30 p.m. May 2 in Esquimalt junior high, 537 Head.

About 200 dancers who have been attending square dance beginner groups in the Greater Victoria area will mix with experienced groups for the first time. About 600 dancers from 23 groups will attend the ball, which is open to spectators.

'Don't Have to Look Hard'

"You don't have to look very hard" to find unlocked cars or cars with the keys still in the ignition, a 17-year-old Saanich youth told Judge William Ostler in Victoria Provincial Court Tuesday.

James Barclay, 495 Davida, was raised to adult court from juvenile court to face two charges involving the thefts of seven cars in Victoria and two more cars in Saanich, all between mid-February and last Friday.

He pleaded guilty to all nine counts, but the judge threw out one of the seven in Victoria because a wrong date was given. Barclay was remanded to Thursday for sentence on the other eight following a pre-sentence report.

The judge said Barclay must have had to look at many cars to find the ones he did, which police said were all either unlocked or had the keys in the ignition. To that, Barclay replied: "You don't have to look very hard."

□

Louis J. Sutkowski, 68, of 1003 Hillside, got a suspended sentence and six-month probationary term for shoplifting because, in Ostler's words, "You are an old man and you are in straitened circumstances."

But the judge added that "being old and somewhat hard up is no excuse for shoplifting."

Sutkowski was found guilty April 10 following a trial on a charge of theft of two food items worth a total of $1.19 March 10 from the Safeway store at 2635 Quadra. Court was told at that time he is a pensioner receiving $131 a month.

□

A suspended sentence and one-year probationary term were given to Kenneth Frederick Clements, 20, of 463 Superior, who pleaded guilty April 13 to a charge of possession of marijuana in Victoria April 10. The judge noted from a pre-sentence report that Clements had been "shockingly abused" at one stage of his life, so the court would "give you another chance."

□

Hugh Charles Smith, 51, of 724 Yates, was sentenced to 10 months in jail after pleading guilty last Saturday to a charge of possession of stolen goods worth more than $50.

The charge involved three items from a display case containing $840 worth of jewelry, which was stolen by another man last Thursday from the T. Eaton Co. Smith was sentenced after prosecutor Peter Birkett read to court Smith's criminal record, which dated back to 1940 and which Birkett described as "formidable."

□

A four-month jail term was the sentence for John Joe Bereczk, 33, of 536 Johnson, who pleaded guilty to a charge of shoplifting a $24.98 steam iron and a $22.95 sweater Monday at the T. Eaton Co. Court was told Bereczk has a criminal record dating back to 1958 and the judge said, "You are obviously a persistent thief."

□

Brian George Angus, 22, of 1145 Hadfield, was found guilty following a trial on a charge of common assault and was fined $35. Testimony during the trial was that Angus slapped the manager of a restaurant at 943 Esquimalt during an argument Feb. 7.

□

Michael Coutinho, 20, of 807 Penwell, was acquitted on a charge of possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking and was convicted by Ostler of illegal possession of hashish. He will be sentenced May 12 after a pre-sentence report.

□

Robert A. Fish, 18, of 2157 Crescent, was fined $350 after he pleaded guilty April 13 to a charge of possession of marijuana in Victoria April 10. In a separate case, Cavan Alexander Butler, 21, of 1045 Millstream, was fined $350 after he pleaded guilty April 13 to a charge of possession of marijuana near Metchosin April 10.

□

Roy Vernon Cripps, 27, of St. John, N.B., who pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of theft of $2,379 in Canadian bills being brought to Canada from the U.S. by private vessel, was remanded to April 30 for sentence after a pre-sentence report.

Tighter Rein On Hippies Due at Square

There will be a tighter control of "hippie activities" in Centennial Square, Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock said Tuesday.

"I can appreciate the position of the merchants, but I think we can go about this problem quietly. You won't see our police kicking the young people out of the square," he said.

Haddock was referring to complaints aired Monday by G. S. Voorsluys, proprietor of the Cheese Cellar, 14 Centennial Square.

Voorsluys said a Vietnam war protest meeting Saturday had been detrimental to his business and he demanded $100 compensation and a reduction of his rent to $200 from $240 a month.

MORE POLICE

"I have met with Mr. Voorsluys and the other merchants this morning and I can understand their problem. If it means that the majority is suffering from the activities of a minority, we have to do something about it," the mayor said.

"For one thing, we will have more police supervision in Centennial Square."

Haddock wouldn't comment on Voorsluys' demand for compensation. That was a matter for council to decide he said.

The mayor also said the city would use "a little more discretion" in issuing permits for protest meetings in the square.

REGULATE MEETINGS

"We'll have to work out a formula to regulate meetings on an organized basis and we'll probably have to use a little more selectivity."

Voorsluys said Tuesday he had "no comment at all" on Saturday's Vietnam rally or on his demand for compensation.

"I don't want to say anything. The less is said about this, the better it is."

The other merchants also refused to comment.

At Firestone we have a system—to save you more money on tires.

Riding System Service makes your tires last longer. There's a lot of miles built into every Firestone tire. And we want you to enjoy every one of them. That's why we offer this specialized care of your entire riding system.

Here's how it works.

Bring in your car for a free Riding System Analysis. We'll check the wheel alignment and balancing. The shock absorbers. The brakes. And other riding system components that affect tire wear.

We may find that a few dollars spent on a wheel alignment or balance can save your tires from wearing out too soon. And that's a mighty good investment.

There can be other savings too. The components of your riding system all work together. If one is out of kilter, it can lead to trouble in others. So you can save a lot by spending a little. So far we've been talking about saving money. That's important, of course.

But money isn't everything.

There is also safety. And comfort.

Nothing means so much to your safety and comfort as your riding system. That's what holds your car on the road. Stops you in time. Cushions the bumps. So, quite apart from long tire life, there are good reasons to see us for Firestone Riding System Service.

How about tires?

What if a Riding System Analysis shows that you need new tires? You are under no obligation to buy ours, just because you've had a free Riding System Analysis.

But our people can show you that you're ahead with Firestone. Ahead for mileage. Ahead for safety. Ahead for comfort. Ahead for value.

And when you get your new Firestone tires, please come back from time to time for Riding System Service.

That way, you will always get everything out of our tires that we put into them. And that's saying a lot.

Bruins Outskate Hawks For 2-0 Series Lead

Bobby Orr steps over Chicago's Tony Esposito after flipping the puck into the net for Boston's opening goal.—(AP)

CHICAGO — Boston Bruins may not have been a "road" club during the regular season but they are finding the range away from home now in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Bruins, whose inability to win from clubs in their own division during the regular National Hockey League schedule cost them the league championship, made it two straight wins in Chicago with a 4-1 victory Tuesday.

The win gives the Bruins a 2-0 lead in the best of seven Eastern Division final and a big edge in the series with the next two games in Boston, Thursday and Sunday.

Bruins have lost only three games at home this season, the last time coming Jan. 17 when they were blanked 1-0 by Tony Esposito and the Hawks.

Showing their 6-3 domination of the divisional champions in Sunday's opening game was no fluke, Bruins completely dominated Tuesday's game, outshooting Chicago, 32-23.

Bruins took a 3-0 lead into the final period, yielded Chicago's goal and Phil Esposito then ended Black Hawk hopes with his 10th goal of the playoffs on the return rush after Bill White narrowly missed a second goal.

FOURTH AGAINST TONY

It was the fourth goal in two games against his brother for the elder Esposito, bringing him to within two goals of the playoff record with at least four games remaining.

Montreal Candiens' Rocket Richard scored 12 goals in nine games in the 1944 playoffs and Montreal's Jean Beliveau tied the mark in 10 games in the 1956 season.

SHAKY DEFENCE

Esposito's goal clearly showed the collapse of the vaunted Chicago defence in the series. The rangy centre collected the puck to the right of the goal, worked his way untouched to directly in front of the net, set himself and then fired the puck past brother Tony.

Although he had little chance on any of the Boston goals, Tony Esposito appeared somewhat uncertain behind the shaky defence and Bruins were perhaps unfortunate in not adding to the score.

ORR SCORES FIRST

Bobby Orr scored the only goal of the first period on a fine rush at 5:08. Bringing the puck out from behind his own net, Orr cut straight up the middle, fed the puck to Fred Stanfield on a give-and-go play and moved right in on top of the Chicago net before beating Esposito.

It was the eighth playoff goal for Orr.

Johnny Bucyk, having a fine series, was instrumental in setting up the second goal. Left alone by the Chicago defence in the corner, he waited until the defence opened up and dropped a pass out to Stanfield.

TIPPED PUCK IN

Stanfield let go with a hard 35-yard shot and Johnny McKenzie, bursting in front of the Chicago goal, tipped the puck over Esposito.

The third goal was a complete gift. Hawks' Keith Magnuson overskated the puck in the right corner of the Chicago zone and Ken Hodge fired a perfect pass across the goal mouth which Don Marcotte tapped in for his first playoff goal.

Hawks, who perhaps played their best early in the second period but were unable to get many good shots, also started strongly in the third period.

BANGED IN REBOUND

White banged in a rebound at 2:18 on a play with Jim Pappin and Gerry Pinder. A few minutes later Stan Mikita put the defenceman through and Gerry Cheevers came up with a fine save.

Boston broke out quicky after the save, Esposito got his goal and that was it for Chicago.

Cheevers and the Boston defence, led by Rick Smith's strong play, took few chances throughout the game in their own end, freezing the puck whenever they felt threatened.

TEMPERS FLARE

Tempers almost got out of control on a few occasions but linesmen did an outstanding job of intervention. Referee Lloyd Golmour needed to call only eight minor penalties — five to Boston — and third-period majors to Magnuson and Wayne Carleton.

Chicago-coach Billy Reay experimented freely with his lineup, moving defenceman Doug Mohns up to forward, playing Paul Shmyr as a regular on defence, shuffling Bobby Hull in at centre on occasion and giving defenceman Ray McKay his first playoff action.

Tony Esposito Picked

NEW YORK (AP) — Tony Esposito, of Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, was named winner Tuesday of the March award in the S. Rae Hickok Pro Athlete of the Year poll.

Esposito beat out Lew Alcindor of basketball's Milwaukee Bucks and Bobby Orr, the Boston Bruins' hockey wizard, for the March award.

Esposito received 25 first-place votes and 105 points. Alcindor was second with 15 firsts and 87 points. Orr was third with 13½ first and 69½ points.

Chemical roadside spraying programs by the provincial highways department and B.C. Hydro were questioned this week by members of the Victoria Fish and Game Club, the Amalgamated Conservation Society, the Chinook Club and the Vancouver Island Wildlife Affiliated.

Highways crews late last week sprayed the Trans-Canada Highway verges with 24D and in some areas 245T, a chemical which has been banned in Vietnam and in the United States for transportation across state boundaries.

It has been reported B.C. Hydro plans to spray its right-of-way routes between Jordan River and Victoria, which follows the valleys of Muir and Demaniel Creeks, and the Goldstream area.

The wildlife conservation groups expressed particular concern about B.C. Hydro plans. This concern has been accentuated by Hydro chairman Gordon Shrum's recent announcement that Hydro would continue with the defoliant chemical spraying until it was proven the chemicals were harmful.

Conservationists believe that chemical users should carry the responsibility of proving a spray is not harmful before they use it.

Fish and Game Club president Bob Kennedy said: "They hire men all summer to cut down roadside growth. Why do they have to spray, too?"

ACS president Al Playfair said there was evidence of high grouse kills from spraying programs.

One of the big problems is that provincial fish and wildlife branch and federal fisheries have not the manpower to keep as careful a watch as desired on spraying programs, but there has been a welcome trend towards responsible co-operation between forestry, highways and other departments.

Spraying programs are presented to fish and wildlife biologists for information and suggestions. Crews who do the spraying attend special training courses. Spraying is not supposed to be carried out adjacent to warterflows and bridges.

Chemicals used now are nowhere near as powerful as DDT which was used in earlier spraying programs. DDT is toxic to fish at about .05 parts per million, but 24D is only toxic to fish at 50 to 70 parts per million. Specially treated short-life sprays are used now, along with weaker solutions.

The danger of these sprays may have been overdramatized, but we are still of the belief it is BETTER TO BE SAFE THAN SORRY.

Let's stop them until we are sure.

Playoff Scoring Leaders

Phil Esposito scored one goal Tuesday night to run his leading point total in the Stanley Cup playoffs to 14.

Bruin teammate Bobby Orr also scored for his 13th point but was forced to make room in the runner-up spot for St. Louis veteran Ab McDonald who picked up three assists Tuesday against Pittsburgh.

Phil Goyette of the Blues scored once and assisted on two others to move into a fourth-place tie with Bobby Hull of the Hawks who failed to pick up a point.

Stamps Add Quarter Ton

CALGARY (CP) — More than a quarter of a ton has been added to the Calgary Stampeders' defensive line with the acquisition of import-end Rich Trautwein and tackle Brent Gilbert.

Trautwein, six-foot-two and 240 pounds, is from the University of Wyoming and can switch to defensive tackle. He is 22.

Gilbert, six-foot-one and 265 pounds, was the Western Football Conference team's first choice in the 1969 Canadian League draft but remained at the University of Waterloo to obtain his degree. He is from Chatham, Ont.

NBA Bucks Give Up Two For Royals' Super Star

Robertson

CINCINNATI (AP) — Superstar basketball player Oscar Robertson was traded to Milwaukee Bucks by Cincinnati Royals Tuesday for Flynn Robinson and Charley Paulk.

The trade puts Robertson on the same team with seven-foot-two Lew Alcindor which should give the Bucks one of the most prolific one-two scoring punches in the National Basketball Association.

The trading of Robertson was no surprise. Earlier, the Royals sought to trade him to Baltimore for Gus Johnson but Robertson invoked a clause in his contract which allowed him to approve a trade. He rejected going to Baltimore.

The six-foot-five Robertson is one of the highest paid players in the National Basketball Association. He is reported to have been receiving $125,000 a year here.

His scoring average has ranged from 24.7 in 1968-69 to 31.4 in 1963-64.

Blues Dump Penguins Again

ST LOUIS — St. Louis Blues don't appear ready to relinquish their domination of the West Division berth in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup final this season.

Jumping to a 3-0 first-period lead Tuesday against Pittsburgh Penguins, they coasted to a 4-1 victory and 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven semi-final series.

Blues have not lost a playoff series against their own division, reaching the final in the first year of expansion. They advanced to the final against Montreal Canadiens in 1968 with 4-3 series' wins over Los Angeles Kings and Minnesota North Stars.

Last year, it was four straight against both Philadelphia Flyers and Los Angeles. Minnesota fell in six games this season.

Blues can now wrap up this series with wins Thursday and Sunday in Pittsburgh.

HIGH-SCORING LINE

The Phil Goyette-Larry Keenan - Ab McDonald unit was the winning combination Tuesday for coach Scotty Bowman's club, figuring in all of the first-period goals.

Goyette had a goal and two assists, McDonald tied the NHL playoff record by picking up three assists in a period and Keenan contributed what was to be the winning goal and helped set up Goyette's goal.

MOVE BACKFIRED

Pittsburgh coach Red Kelly sent out four defencemen for the opening faceoff and the move rapidly backfired. St. Louis controlled play and Goyette fed Jean-Guy Talbot who broke in on the right wing and beat Les Binkley with a 30-foot shot with only 31 seconds gone.

Keenan then scored St. Louis' 12th power-play goal of the playoffs, scooping the puck around Binkley after the goalkeeper had made a save on Goyette's 20-foot drive. Bryan Hextall was in the penalty box at the time.

PERFECT PASS

Goyette scored the third goal on a perfect pass into the slot by Keenan, giving Binkley no chance.

St. Louis dominated the second period although being outshot, 14-11. Blues put on a strong checking display to continually pen Penguins in their own end.

Binkley had to come up with great saves on two efforts by Red Berenson, sprawling to make a sensational stop five minutes into the period with Blues swarming around the net. He then stopped Berenson on a breakaway five minutes from the end of the period.

LOST SHUTOUT BID

Jacques Plante lost his shutout bid at 5:58 of the final period when Michel Briere capitalized on a rebound.

Penguins were unable to break away from the hard-checking Blues again and managed only five shots in the period.

Frank St. Marseille boosted St. Louis' margin to three goals again when he picked up his first goal of the playoffs from a goal-mouth scramble midway through the period.

There was only one major outbreak in the game. Blues' Bob Plager took on Penguins Nick Harbaruk and Glen Sather, drawing a major and minor penalty. Harbaruk was given a minor and Sather, a major.

Newcastle Tour Eligibles Include 12 Internationals

Newcastle United could well field a team plus a substitute of players who have had some degree of international soccer experience when they come to Vancouver Island in less than three weeks.

★ ★ ★

'Pop' Robson

The historic first-division English League club has 12 players with international experience on the list of 17 possibles for the tour.

Known as the Magpies, Newcastle opens with two matches on Vancouver Island against Victoria Royals, new entry in the Western Canada League. The first match will be an afternoon affair May 10 in Nanaimo and the second an 8 p.m. clash May 16 at Victoria's Royal Athletic Park.

OTHER GAMES

Newcastle then plays in Vancouver against the Spartans on the 18th and in Seattle on the 24th against that city's new Western Canada League club.

United's list for the journey includes six senior internationals — goalkeeper Iam McFaul, fullback David Craig and halfback John Cowan of Ireland; centre-half Ollie Burton of Wales, halfback Bobby Moncur of Scotland and forward Ben Arentoft of Denmark.

The list would usually include centre-forward Wyn Davies of Wales, but he will be undergoing minor surgery now that the regular season has ended.

OTHER CAPS

Forwards Geoff Allen and Allan Foggon and fullback John Craggs all have English youth-international caps. Forward Keith Dyson was an English schoolboy and under-23 international and fullback Frank Clark has England amateur and youth caps.

Halfback Tommy Gibb, obtained in 1968 from Partick Thistle, has won Scottish under-23 honors and was a teammate of captain Moncur in school.

Leading scorer for the club during the past two seasons has been 24-year-old Bryan "Pop" Robson, who had 30 goals in the 1968-69 season including several important ones in the club's march to the Inter-Cities Fairs' Cup.

Newcastle, managed by former star Joe Harvey, finished seventh in the 22-team division this season with 47 points in 42 games. United won 14 and drew two of 21 home games, scoring 42 goals and allowing 16. On the road the Magpies won three times and drew 11 matches, scoring 15 goals and allowing 19.

FANFARE

By Walt Ditzen

HARRY YOUNG

Such is the imponderability of golf that, given 20 guesses, I would not have been able in advance to name as medallist any of the three players who led the field Sunday at Uplands in the qualifying round of the Island Open.

No apologies are needed on that count for the handicaps of the successful trio gave no hint that they would be able to beat the field loaded with players — amateur and professional — ranging from plus one upwards.

Bob Herbertson of Cedar Hill, who has twice in a row held the handicap championship, is a seven handicapper; Gene Williams of Royal Colwood plays off six and Carl Zwick of Gorge Vale off five.

It is true that their scores of 73 were three over the par of the course, and there was a bothersome wind particularly for the early starters. Yet what happened to all the low handicappers.

Were they playing for safe qualifying scores? Or what?

But playing for safe scores can have its perils. In normal years those who break 80 usually feel they have a good chance of making the championship grade.

Yet this year the cut-off was lower and some of those with 77s were drawn out of the charmed circle by ballot. Those who squeaked in by this route were Norm Boden and Hal Jacobsen last year's finalists.

A year ago it will be remembered the reigning champion Vaughan Trapp was eliminated by ballot and Boden might easily have suffered the same fate.

Now the qualifiers, both championship and handicap start the match play sequence at Victoria Golf Club.

In the first two rounds the competitors will go out in fours, but this year each group will consist of one match from the top half of the draw and the other from the bottom.

This change is made so that the winners of each four would not meet in the following round. The new system makes it impossible for this to happen at any time before the final.

Only two past champions have made it and as Laurie Carroll and Norm Boden are in opposite sides of the draw, they cannot complain of squeezing one another out.

The successful qualifiers contain a fine selection of the district's most talented youngsters, and the chance of an intermediate (under 25) or a junior (under 19) as the winner is not to be dismissed.

The late start this year of the Island Open has had the effect of keeping out a number of the local professionals including Bill Wakeham, John Morgan and Trapp, all of whom elected to play in the Mainland Match Play Open.

What has been Victoria's loss has been Vancouver's gain for Wakeham is now in the semi-final, and Morgan was ousted only after an extra hole in the quarter-final.

This week Wakeham is drawn to meet an old Victoria rival in Dick Munn, who is now the professional at Vancouver's Point Grey. It should be a most interesting match.

Playing in the Rainbow Cup at Victoria on Saturday Bob Doell scored a hole in one. It was his first and he scored it at the 8th hole.

The Cup winner has yet to be decided. Jack Wintemute and George Bigelow each returned three under par 66s, and they will have to play off for the honor.

★ ★ ★

Moke Morgan and Iver Hansen of Gorge Vale are still hanging on to the senior buttons. They made their second successful defence by beating Erdley Wright and Bill Sanford of the host club on the 17th hole at Victoria.

Next challengers are Cedar Hill at Cedar Hill.

Here's one of the 1969 decisions of the Royal and Ancient Rules of Golf Committee which should be of interest in these parts where trees are a factor in play on most courses.

The question was in respect of a ball lodged in the branches of a tree. Was it permissible under the unplayable ball rule to drop the ball under penalty of one stroke not more than two club lengths from the base of the trees in which the ball lodged?

The R. and A. decided that the two club lengths must be measured from the exact spot where the ball originally was. If it is not physically possible to drop the ball within the two club lengths, then the player must adopt the alternative procedures in Rule 29-2 (b). That is the ball must be replayed as near as possible to the spot where the ball was originally played, or dropped behind the point where the ball lay, keeping that point between himself and the hole, with no limit to how far behind that point the ball must be dropped (in each case with one penalty stroke added).

It is generally accepted locally that a ball in a tree may be dropped within two club lengths from a point on the ground vertically below where it rests in the tree, but the R. and A. obviously does not agree.

Chicago White Sox' Lou Aparacio, starting his 15th season in the majors and just a week away from his 36th birthday, shows all the agility of a rookie as he goes high in the air to avoid Minnesota's George Mitterwald, who was trying in vain to break up a double play. Action came in the fifth inning of Tuesday's game won, 4-3, by the Twins.

Reds' Hitters Blast Seven More Homers

Unless rivals can find a way quickly to spike the booming guns of Cincinnati, the Western Division of the National Baseball League will become a cakewalk for the Reds early in the season.

The rampaging Reds unloaded seven more home runs Tuesday, running their total for 17 games this season to 30, on their way to a 13-8 win over Atlanta Braves.

Rookie Bernie Carbo drilled two homers, his third and fourth of the campaign, Tony Perez ran his league-leading total to eight, Johnny Bench hit his fifth, Bobby Tolan his fourth, Pete Rose his second and Dave Concepcion his first.

Perez also hit three singles to boost his league-leading batting average to .476.

CLOSE TO RECORD

Four of the homers came off Atlanta-starter Phil Niekro, who has now given up 11 in 24 and a third innings.

Atlanta got home runs from Rico Carty, Orlando Cepeda and Felix Millan and the game total of 10 was just one short of the National League record.

The win, their seventh in eight games, stretched Reds' division lead to four-and-a-half games.

Houston Astros dropped to third place behind the idle San Francisco Giants by losing, 8-9, at Pittsburgh. Roberto Clemente's first home run of the season topped off a five-run Pirate explosion in the sixth inning, which put Pittsburgh ahead, 9-4.

Houston ace Larry Dierker, unbeaten in three previous decisions, was tagged for all nine runs.

Jim Wynn, who drove in five Houston runs, slammed a two-run homer in the seventh and Astros scored two more in the ninth before reliever Joe Gibbons finally got the last out to save the win for starter Bob Veale.

CUBS CATCH CARDS

Chicago Cubs jumped into a tie for first place in the Eastern Division with St. Louis by jumping on Cards' ace Bob Gibson for five runs in the seventh inning for a 7-4 victory.

Billy Williams slammed a three-run homer and Johnny Callison followed with a two-run shot as the Cubs run their winning streak to six games. They were the first home runs given up by St. Louis pitching in 10 games this season.

SIXTH IN A ROW

In the American League, the red-hot Detroit Tigers scored their sixth straight win, 5-3, over Cleveland Indians.

Cesar Gutierrez cracked a tie-breaking double in the ninth and scored the insurance run on a single by Al Kaline.

Kaline triggered a three-run Detroit rally in the fourth to tie the game at 3-3 and robbed Ted Uhlaender of a home run in the eighth inning with a leaping catch against the right-field fence.

The win moved Detroit half a game ahead of the idle Baltimore Orioles in the eastern division.

KILLEBREW HOMERS

West Division leaders Minnesota Twins squeezed by Chicago White Sox, 4-3, as Harmon Killebrew slammed a three-run homer in the sixth inning, the 448th of his major league career. His run was the 999th of his career.

California Angels remained in a first-place tie with Minnesota with a 3-1 win over Milwaukee Brewers as Tom Murphy, who needed relief help in the ninth inning to gain his second win in three decisions, triggered a three-run third inning.

Washington shaded New York Yankees, 7-5, and Oakland topped Kansas City as Don Mincher, whose eighth-inning error had given Royals the lead, slammed a two-run homer in the bottom of the eighth for the win.

Masters' Win Increases Demand for Billy Casper

By BILL SHIRLEY
Colonist Los Angeles Times

AUGUSTA, Ga. — A Masters championship, according to the agent for Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player, is worth $1,000,000.

Mark McCormack, the agent, might have been exaggerating but Player said recently, "a million dollars is close." And the championship probably will be worth that much to Palmer and Nicklaus eventually.

On the other hand, recent champions such as Gay Brewer and Bob Goalby will exact far less from the prize.

So will George Archer. What about Billy Casper, who won his first Masters last week?

Ed Barner, president of Unimanagers Inc., the Los Angeles Firm that handles Casper's business and personal affairs, is not as optimistic as McCormack but he said that he expects Billy to profit handsomely from the victory.

In the first hour after Casper had defeated Gene Littler in an 18-hole playoff, Barner received 11 telephone calls from clients he had been negotiating with or who already had contracts with Billy.

The next day, Barner was on the phone to the east at 6 a.m. and he received his first call at 6:20 a.m. In 24 hours, all but one of Casper's 18 endorsement clients had contacted UMI. Mostly, said Barner, they were anxious to extend contracts that still had some time to run.

The championship was worth $79,000 to Casper as soon as he putted out on the 18th hole, $25,000 for his share of the purse and $54,000 in victory bonuses from equipment and clothing companies he represents.

According to Barner, Casper already is worth $1,000,000 a year, although about half the income is deferred for tax purposes. Besides selling his name and golf skill to such firms as Maytag, Palm Beach Clothing Co., Electron Industries (manufacturer of a golf computer) and the National Newspaper Syndicate, Casper has invested heavily in real estate and recreational areas bearing his name.

"Billy is interested in investing his money and name together in something that will be around when he is no longer on the tour," said Barner.

One such firm is Leisure Planning Corp. of New York, which will soon have a 350-passenger boat running to Baja, California from San Diego. Billy also has endorsed golf vacation packages, personally choosing the courses his customers will play. He also endorses golf games and has a contract with a major automobile manufacturer.

The popular "Billy Casper Says" series that runs in many major newspapers, including the Los Angeles Times, will be out in book from in mid-June. Its title: "Million Dollar Shots."

On a weekday, an exhibition by Casper will cost a client $5,000. On Saturdays the price is $7,500 and Billy will not play one on Sundays for any amount.

Recently, the U.S. government sought a professional golfer to serve in the U.S. Pavilion at Expo 70 in Japan. All the top 20 money winners were asked, says Barner, and only one responded: Billy Casper. He will leave for Osaka April 28 to give exhibitions and clinics on driving ranges and make personal appearances for the United States.

Billy is paying the tab.

New Group Hopes To Buy Pats

REGINA (CP) — A group of local businessmen has offered to buy the Regina Pats and wants to get the junior club into the Western Canada Hockey League.

The group, headed by Del Wilson, director of personnel for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, made its plans known at a news conference Monday night.

Wilson said that if the the offer is acceptable to the directorate of the Pats, a community-owned club, "We are prepared to ice a team in the WCHL this fall."

The Pats operated this season and last in the Saskatchewan Junior League. Previously, they were in the Western Canada Junior Hockey League.

John Hudson, club president, said, "the offer certainly meets with my own personal approval and appears to be the type that will be acceptable to the Pats' directorate."

He said the proposal will be presented to the club directors within two or three weeks. He said financial terms of the offer couldn ot be disclosed now.

Wings Fire Bill Gadsby

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wing officials said Tuesday night Bill Gadsby has been dismissed as chief scout of the National Hockey League team. Gadsby was told of his dismissal in a letter from club owner Bruce Norris. He was named chief scout after being relieved as head coach moments before the third game of the current season.

Home Grant Helps

School Tax Lowered For Many

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Greater Victoria school district has only slightly increased its demand for local tax revenue this year, with a rise of .07 mill over last year's rate, it was annoucned Tuesday.

For many homeowners this could mean a net reduction in school taxes because of the $10 increase in the provincial homeowner grant — from $150 to $160.

★ ★ ★

Sooke school board has decreased its demand for tax revenue, with a mill rate cut by 1.19.

Saanich school district residents, however, will have to bear a 2.25 mill increase. Saanich school district also became the only local one to push its mill rate over the provincial 1970 average of 31.81.

Saanich's rate is now 32; Greater Victoria's is 30.58; Sook's is 28.47. The figures were released Tuesday by Education Minister Donald Brothers, who also returned approved budgets to school boards all over the province.

Taxes can still go up wherever residential property assessments have risen, as in Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt.

Residential assessments in Victoria this year generally remained unchanged.

The taxes go to pay for part of the $22,959,259 budget of the Greater Victoria school board. According to figures supplied by the administration, the owner of a house and property with a taxable assessed value of $10,000 will pay net school taxes of $145.80, down $9.30 from last year's payment of $155.10 on the same assessment.

For a $9,000 assessment, taxes will be $115.22, down from $124.59. On a $7,500 assessment, the taxes will be $63.35, down from $78.83. After the homeowner grant has been used by the owner of a property assessed at $5,000, no taxes are payable for school purposes.

Taxes are arrived at by multiplying the number of thousands of dollars of taxable assessment times the mill rate. For example, on a mill rate of 30, a property assessed for tax purposes at $10,000 must pay taxes of 30 times 10, or $300. Subtracting the homeowner grant of $160 leaves a net tax payable of $140.

The assessed value of B.C. real property is, in theory, 50 per cent of the market value of the land and improvements (buildings). Taxes are levied on 75 per cent of the assessed value of improvements and on 100 per cent of the assessed value of land.

Greater Victoria school district will get an added bonus this year of having a larger share of its budget paid by provincial government edueational grants.

The government will pay 47.13 per cent as compared with last year's 45.89 per cent. The budget approved by the government will remain at its preliminary figure of $22,959,259.

★ ★ ★

Board Chairman Carron Jameson's comment on announcement of the new mill rate was that he was "very glad" and "I hope it will let some of our critics know that we have not been as profligate as they say."

The mill rates cannot be computed from the individual budget itself, since the provincial government must first set the basic province-wide mill levy, which this year has been pegged at 24.10 mills, compared with last year's 24.60.

Federal Proposal Boon to Low-Income Group

Revised Rental Scale Widely Applauded

A federal government proposal Tuesday to introduce a fairer rent scale for public housing projects was called "commendable, welcome and thrilling," by Victoria officials concerned with such projects.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock said if the plan is implemented, it would be a tremendous catalyst in the city's efforts to encourage more public housing.

Announcement of the new rental policy plan was made in the Commons Tuesday by Robert Andras, minister in charge of housing.

The revised scale would reduce the maximum proportion of income payable as rent, raise the ceiling on second incomes in a family, provide for a reduction of rent for families with more than two children and reduce the rent for one-parent families.

★ ★ ★

Andras said the revised scale would reduce to $68 a month from $80 the rent paid by a family with five children and an annual income of $4,000. Rent would drop to $43 in the case of a similar one-parent family.

He said the new scale has to be negotiated with the provinces before it can be implemented but their intitial response has shown "a substantial measure of agreement."

Haddock said Tuesday: "This is really welcome news. It will benefit those who need it most — the large families who found it hard to make ends meet in spite of the fairly low rents in public housing projects."

In Victoria, the new policy would apply to the tenants of Blanshard Court, opened this month.

Haddock said: "I only hope that this move will not mean that the federal government is going to reduce the number of public housing units needed to take care of the large waiting list of people who aren't able to live in these subsidized developments now."

Victoria City Planner Geoffrey Greenhalgh said any move to bring down rents in an inflated housing market must be welcomed.

"One can't help but commend the federal government for this proposal," he said.

Although the city was not directly involved in the administration of Blanshard Court, it was still of interest to Victoria whether or not the tenants of the development would be given a fair shake, he said.

Victoria is responsible for 12½ per cent of any deficit that might be incurred by Blanshard Court, Greenhalgh said.

★ ★ ★

"The most important thing is that we have the attempt by a government — no matter what level — to bring down the price of a commodity that has become too expensive."

Blanshard Court tenant Mrs. Daisy Beckett, who plans to organize a tenants' association at the development, said the government plan was "beautiful news."

"I'm not speaking so much for myself. I am able to get by, but there are a lot of people here with five, six and seven children. They could really benefit from a new scale."

Mrs. Beckett said a reduced rent would enable a lot of families to buy things they couldn't afford up to now.

"And I'm talking about things like shoes for the kiddies, something that isn't usually considered a luxury."

Hydro:

Homes Must Go

The five Munn Road properties that lie in the path of a proposed B.C. Hydro high-tension line will definitely have to go, the manager of the Hydro load development department said Tuesday.

C. W. Nash told about 120 persons attending a public meeting called by four of the homeowners involved that the properties would be expropriated if the owners refused to sell.

Although the meeting had been called to discuss the situation of the five property owners, Nash persistently refused to discuss their cases.

"I said we were not going to discuss these persons' personal problems," he said. "That is all there is to it."

By this time, the audience had become noisy and some members were shouting that the reason they had come was to talk about the properties, but Nash said he and his colleagues were prepared only to discuss general problems of transmission.

When he said the Hydro representatives would be meeting privately with the homeowners, P. A. Codyre of 1890 Munn, who acts as spokesman for three of the other affected owners (the fourth works for B.C. Hydro), said: "We want these discussions public knowledge."

★ ★ ★

Nash told the audience that it could cost about $500,000 per mile to put the wire underground as compared with $30,000 per mile for overhead transmission, but when questioned later on this, said it would probably be closer to $300,000.

The meeting passed a resolution calling upon B.C. Hydro to put the wiring underground from west of the Munn Road properties affected to the Horsey substation at Burnside and Douglas.

Rockland Study Provides Survival Kit for District

By HUBERT BEYER

A detailed study of Victoria's Rockland area will not only serve as a "survival kit" for one of the city's most exclusive residential districts, but provide a blueprint for the future development of other areas, Victoria city hall sources indicated Tuesday.

"Although the report deals specifically with the Rockland Avenue area, it may also be applicable to the future development of Fairfield," a spokesman said.

Among the recommendations expected to be spelled out by the closely-guarded report are:

- Permission for a certain percentage of Rockland's mansions to be converted into homes for the elderly.
- Encouragement of the establishment of such institutions as private schools and kindergartens in some of the large homes in the area.
- Possible permission for a limited number of lowrise apartments, provided they conform with the overall character of the area.
- Continuation of the present policy allowing conversion of large homes to duplexes and high-standard boarding houses, but on a limited basis.

The report is expected to recommend against:

- The construction of highrise apartments.
- The indiscriminate use of existing properties for any of the permitted purposes.
- Allowing changes to the outside appearance of existing homes in the course of conversion to another use.

★ ★ ★

"A number of people are holding onto property in the area in the hope of obtaining a zoning change permitting them to build highrise apartments," a spokesman said.

This, he said, should never be allowed. The report would be very specific in recommending against such zoning changes.

"This has happened in quite a few Canadian cities. Developers 'busted' an exclusive district, borrowed its prestige and ruined it," he said.

Although Mayor Courtney Haddock earlier predicted the report would essentially "confirm the status quo with minor alterations," a number of the expected recommendations would be a marked departure from present policy.

★ ★ ★

Last year, council rejected a number of applications for establishment of nursing homes. And at present, there is no zoning bylaw permitting construction of lowrise apartments.

The entire district, labelled Rockland Avenue area by the city's planning department is roughly bounded by Fort on the north, Richardson on the south, Moss on the west and Richmond on the east.

The report, prepared by the city's planning department, is expected to be submitted to council in about three or four weeks.

Monterey Rebuilding Approved

School Storm Subsides

The controversial question of the condition of Oak Bay's Monterey elementary school was settled Tuesday, apparently to the satisfaction of everyone concerned.

An announcement by the provincial treasury board that the Greater Victoria school board would be allowed to call for tenders for five new classrooms for Monterey school plus major heating, electrical and fire alarm renovations within an appropriation of $224,100 was greeted by Trustee Peter Bunn with the comment:

"Ah, good. I'm glad to see that common sense has prevailed."

★ ★ ★

Next hurdle, said the chairman of the school district's buildings and grounds committee would be to get a contract bid within the appropriation, after which permission would be again sought from the department to go ahead with the work.

Bunn said Tuesday two of the classroom allocations at Monterey would probably be used for a school library. The board would now go after permission to build a new auditorium at the school, he said.

The old auditorium would then be used as a library and the two library rooms be put back into service as classrooms.

★ ★ ★

Overcrowding and poor facilities at Monterey school became a burning issue early in February when Oak Bay council voted to press the provincial education department to allow construction of a permanent annex to the school as authorized by a 1966 referendum.

The storm grew in intensity when Monterey PTA entered the fray.

An offer from the education department to allocate $36,000 to repair washroom facilities in the school was rejected by John Harris, PTA president, as evasion of the main issue.

Next step was a meeting in March with Education Minister Donald Brothers attended by Bunn, Harris and others. Following the meeting, Harris said he was unhappy with the result and accused the provincial governemnt and Brothers of stalling.

However, Tuesday Bunn said that one result of the meeting was that he, school district superintendent Jake Longmore, Joseph Phillipson, provincial assistant superintendent of education and others all met at Monterey school and went over the situation on the site.

★ ★ ★

Afterward Bunn said, Phillipson said that the school board proposal seemed a fair one and he would recommend its transmission to the treasury board.

Result of that recommendation was the Tuesday announcement.

New Program Co-Ordinates Care in Home

Home care services in much of Greater Victoria for some persons needing special medical attention will be co-ordinated under a program announced Tuesday.

●

It will involve existing agencies — mainly Victorian Order of Nurses and the nursing service of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

Under the new setup, a doctor whose patient needs more than one service will telephone the co-ordinating officer.

★ ★ ★

The system will apply almost everywhere in Greater Victoria except Saanich, where property owners already pay for a home nursing service from the health board.

In the other areas, persons needing the home care — in many cases they are frail and aged — pay direct to the Red Cross and VON.

The Red Cross homemaking service costs $1.35 an hour and VON visits cost $5.25 each. Both agencies stressed that the assessments are often made on a patient's ability to pay.

The co-ordinator will be brought into action only when a doctor thinks a patient needs more than one service.

But with patients needing only one service, doctors will behave as they have in the past — by simply telephoning the agency whose service is sought.

★ ★ ★

The co-ordination was announced at a press conference attended by representatives of the health board, Red Cross, VON, Community Welfare Council and Victoria Medical Society, all of which have been involved in the arrangements.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical officer with the health board, said the co-ordination would put additional strain on his staff.

★ ★ ★

He was asked how the health board could do it in view of the pleas that have been made for more nursing and inspection personnel.

"We still need extra staff and will continue to do so for some time in the future unless there is a political change of opinion," he replied.

It is hoped co-ordinated home care will allow general hospitals, which say they have a bed shortage, to discharge more patients earlier.

Home Raided In Daylight

More than $100 American and Canadian dollars and several collector's coins were reported stolen from a home several houses away from the Oak Bay police station in broad daylight Tuesday.

Oak Bay police said the house owned by Monty Jasper at 1747 St. Ann's Street, was entered through an unlocked door between 9 and 12 a.m. when there was no one in the house. Several other items in the house including a camera were left untouched, police said.

Woman's Place In Restaurant

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Prof. John Welch of the University of Missouri thinks the feminists have been right all along—a woman's place isn't in the home. Her time is worth more than she saves slaving in the kitchen.

"Take the cost of food in a restaurant and subtract from it the cost of buying and operating kitchen equipment and the cost of food," he said.

★ ★ ★

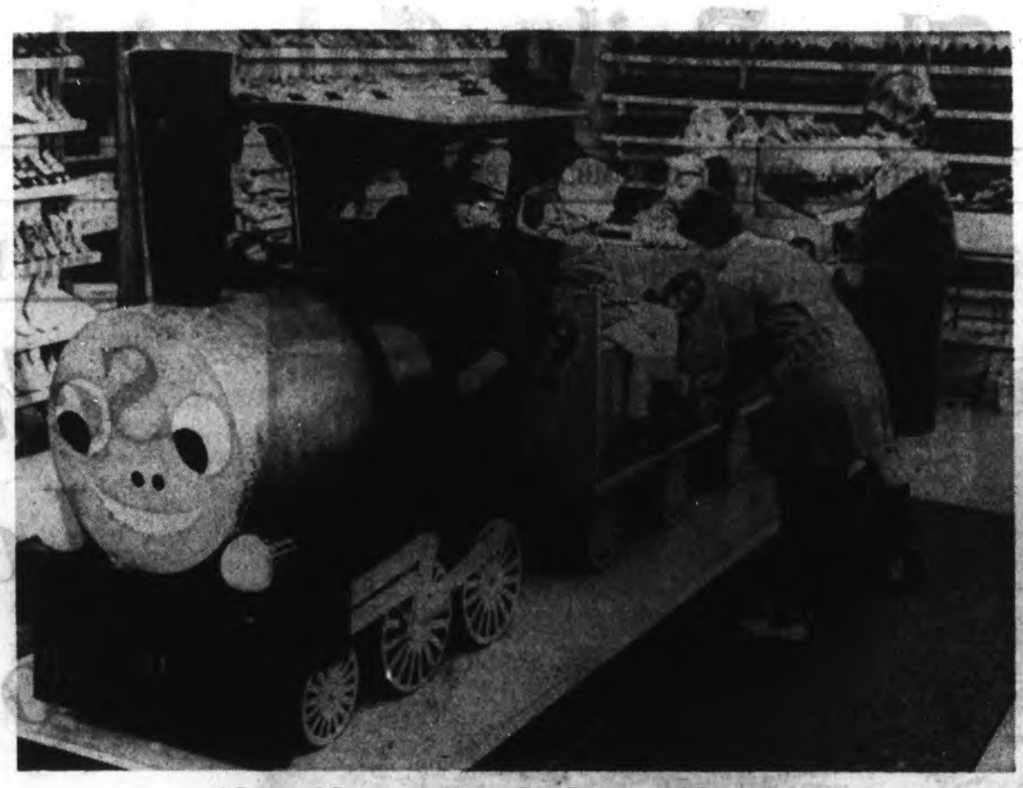

"You'll find the difference leaves about 10 cents an hour for Mom's time over a hot stove and in crowded supermarkets."

An extension economist for the Columbia, Mo., university, Welch said the trend toward eating out in North America was a healthy one. About 1900, he said, one in 20 meals was eaten in a mass food service establishment. Now the figure is one of three meals.

★ ★ ★

"Working women either have no time to cook or they're too tired to cook," he said.

"And if husbands understood what it costs to eat at home, you can be sure we'd all eat out more often."

Fischer Quints

School Starts

ABERDEEN, S.D. (UPI) — The Fischer quintuplets have quietly begun attending a rural, one-room grade school near their 800-acre farm.

The children, now 6 years old, are the first surviving set of quintuplets in the U.S.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fischer, reportedly decided not to enter the children in school last fall, although they were eligible, prefering to wait so the five and a younger sister could attend together.

Five older Fischer children attend school in Aberdeen.

Cooking Classic at San Francisco

City Enters Crab Olympics

DOROTHY WROTNOWSKI

Maybe not too many of us heard about an event held in San Francisco last year that "stirred up seafood communities from Waikiki to Wilmington and from New Orleans to Nova Scotia."

But according to a news release on my desk, "This Dungeness-happy port is preparing to defend its title as the crab cuisine capital of the continent in the second annual North American Crab Cooking Olympics, May 18."

★ ★ ★

It goes on, "The 1970 crustacean classic will be held at Fisherman's Wharf here under the joint auspices of the Wharf Merchants Association and the San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau.

"Judging will be by a panel of distinguished food experts headed by the internationally known gourmet, cook book editor and columnist, James Beard."

The competition started last year when Baltimore and San Francisco started bickering about which city's crab delicacies were the best.

In a short time, 17 U.S. and Canadian seafood centres had become embroiled — only one entry permitted from each city. San Francisco came out on top with Art Dabis of that city winning firsts in two categories — Crab Mornay and Crab Cioppino. Baltimore's Dave Gordon won the chef's speciality event with his Maryland Crab Cakes.

★ ★ ★

But the real reason we are interested is that Victoria's Clarence Butler, executive chef at the Empress Hotel, came first in the devilled crab class.

Chef Butler will be going south to enter the contest next month. And everyone is quite confident he will bring home the prize again.

Here is his recipe for devilled crab, which makes enough for six persons.

Devilled Crab

3 sliced green onions, 1 sliced green pepper, 6 mushroom caps, sliced, 1 ounce pimento, sliced, 2 tablespoons unsalted butter, 2 ounces rum (preferably white), 4 ounces dry white wine (Sauterne), 1 tablespoon Bengal chutney, 1 clove mashed garlic, touch of cayenne, 1 teaspoon Accent, 2 pounds crabmeat, 2 cups Bechamel sauce (plain white sauce may be substituted) 2 tablespoons dry mustard.

Melt butter in pan. Put in green onion, pepper and mushroom and let sweat for eight minutes. That word sweat in cooking was new to me but it is the term used by the chef and it means to cook very gently. Add rum, wine and mustard and cook until reduced by ½. Add Bechamel sauce and remove from heat. Correct seasonings, adding pimento, chutney, garlic, Accent and the crabmeat. Stir over low heat until hot. Fill crab shells with mixture and top with grated Parmesan cheese. Dot with butter and put in 400 degree oven for 10 minutes. Run under broiler if tops have not browned evenly.

BECHAMEL SAUCE
(This isn't Chef Butler's recipe.)

1 cup white stock (chicken or veal), ½ teaspoon salt, 1 small onion, 1 egg yolk, 10 black peppercorns, bouquet garni (parsley, thyme, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ bay leaf), 2 tablespoons flour, small blade of mace (optional), 1 cup milk.

Put stock, onion, peppers, bouquet garni and mace in saucepan. Cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Strain the broth and discard vegetables and seasonings. Blend butter and flour in saucepan until smooth. Slowly add the broth, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Then add milk and salt and cook over medium heat until sauce thickens, stirring all the while. Beat egg yolk, add a little of the hot sauce, stir thoroughly and return to sauce in pan, stirring again. Continue cooking over low heat but do not boil. Remove and use hot over vegetables or meat. Or cool and use in devilled crab. It will keep some time if stored in refrigerator.

Mushrooms stuffed with a crabmeat mixture make a nice taste treat at a cocktail party.

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1 pound medium mushroom caps, 6 ounce fresh crab or 1 tin crabmeat, 1 egg, well beaten, ¼ cup bread crumbs, ¼ cup tomato juice, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, dash tabasco sauce, 1 teaspoon finely chopped onion, 2 teaspoons finely chopped celery, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup bread crumbs, ¼ cup butter.

Early in the day, wash mushrooms and remove stems. These may be set aside and used for soup.

Mix together crabmeat, egg, ⅛ cup breadcrumbs, tomato juice, lemon juice, tabasco, onion, celery and salt. Stuff mushrooms with about 1 tablespoon of this mixture.

Mix ½ cup breadcrumbs with butter. Sprinkle on top of mushrooms. Chill until about 15 minutes before serving.

Broil six inches from heat for five to eight minutes, or until bread crumbs are lightly browned. Serve hot.

Food Allergy Victims Must Watch Labels

TORONTO (CP)—About 2,000,000 Canadians suffer allergies to certain foods.

These same Canadians play a variation of Russian roulette — where stakes might range from minor skin irritation to severe pain — when they eat pre-packaged foodstuffs.

Allergy Information is trying to reduce the odds.

The 650-member organization, made up of women in Canada and the United States, is lobbying to have legislation passed which would require manufacturers to list all ingredients contained in their food.

The group's main active function now is to provide information on restricted diets for people suffering allergies.

Since 1964, Allergy Information has campaigned strenuously to have ingredients listed explicitly. But so far, the only action taken in Canada has been a study by the food and drug directorate.

The Allergy Information executive noticed several years ago that many foods that caused a severe allergic reaction are listed on package labels only by such general terms as vegetable oil, sweetening, spices and so forth.

★ ★ ★

Economics are the largest factor in ingredient listings.

For example, most manufacturers watch commodity prices closely, and if an ingredient goes up in price it might be displaced by another additive which is less costly at the time. Thus, manufacturers would be faced with discarding thousands of labels every time this switch was made.

★ ★ ★

The most Allergy Information has been able to do to combat this is to issue periodic newsletters advising persons with allergies of products found to be safe and well-labelled, and warning against foods which carry labels with information which might mislead the allergic.

Allbergy Information also dispenses information to persons who suffer from dust, ragweed, goldenrod and other items which produce respiratory complaints.

But Some Look Wiggish

Even Wash Floor with It

EDMONTON (CP) — In western Canada, a woman wants to walk into a store, buy a wig, put it on and walk out looking beautiful, says a leading wig manufacturer.

However, it's not that easy, said Jack Khorsandi of Toronto, owner and president of the Classic Wig Centre.

"When a woman goes shopping for a wig she should shop for it in as many places as she would when looking for clothes," he said in an interview.

In Edmonton to promote sales of a synthetic-fibre wig he designed, Khorsandi said women should go to a hairdresses to help set the wig and touch it up for the first few months after she buys it.

"But after a while it becomes as easy and natural for her to look after it as her own hair."

★ ★ ★

He said a woman's own hair is always more beautiful than a wig, but the hairpieces are extremely useful for emergencies and for travelling.

He cautioned that there are many cheap, synthetic wigs on the market — as well as many good ones — and it is for this reason that shopping carefully is essential.

"Some wigs you can spot a mile away. A woman should look in the mirror . . . and if the hair looks wiggish she should take it off."

★ ★ ★

A woman should look for a wig made of dynel of the modacrylic fibre, he says.

"You can sleep with these on, throw them in a bag, even wash the floor with them and, with a little light brushing, put them on your head."

Synthetic wigs became popular in Canada about a year ago and now sales have reached about 40,000 a week — and this with a $35 to $40 price tag.

He said that human-hair wigs are more expensive to buy than synthetics and that only a professional hairdresser can look after them, at a cost of $10 to $15 a time.

The synthetics, on the other hand, can usually be washed at home, although he warned that heat damages them.

★ ★ ★

"I always say to wash them in cold water. If I say 'cool' water, women are likely to use warm. And, for heaven's sake, if you are wearing one, don't stick your head in the oven to take out the roast. If you do, the heat ruins the wig and you might as well throw it in the garbage."

★ ★ ★

Western Canadian women were more conservative and cautious about buying wigs than easterners.

"Here the reaction is usually 'We'll wait until someone else tries it."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: If I don't get some answers soon I'll go crazy. Please, Ann, do your best for me.

I am a married woman with children. I had an affair with a man of another race. It lasted four months. I am now about 10 weeks pregnant.

I love my family and I am heartsick over what I have done to my life. There is a possibly that the child I am carrying belongs to my husband. I am afraid, however, that is belongs to my lover. If such is the case I will surely have to leave home.

Is there any way to determine before birth who is the father of a child? Please hurry your answer. I'm going out of my mind with worry.—Georgia.

Dear Georgia: There is no way to establish the paternity of an unborn child. If you have not confided in your doctor I hope you will do so immediately.

□

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an executive secretary, age 28, in a large firm. For eleven months I've been going with a 32-year-old man who is handsome, bright, fascinating and mysterious.

Mr. Charming has a beautiful apartment but he cannot be reached on weekends. He has changed his phone number three times since we met.

We eat at my apartment Mondays and Wednesdays. On Thursdays we eat out, but never in a nice restaurant. He loves quaint little places nobody can find — except the cockroaches. His weekends, he says, are reserved for his mother.

Whenever I mention marriage he changes the subject. He has never suggested that I meet his family. They live 22 miles south of here. He couldn't be with me the night of his office Christmas party because he had to escort his boss's widowed secretary. I've never met anyone he works with.

I'm beginning to think there is something phoney about Mr. Charming. Comment, please. —Cindy.

Dear Cindy: Sounds as if Mr. Charming is leading another life on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday. Hand him his hat and stop being a fool.

□

Dear Ann Landers: What's the matter with me that I have had such rotten luck? At 16 I fell in love with my teacher. He was married and strung me along for nearly a year. He never did get a divorce like he promised. I was a fool to believe him. At age 17, I quit school and joined a magazine crew. We travelled the Dakotas, Iowa and Nebraska. I went crazy over a man in Sioux Falls. We went together for seven months. Then he told me his wife was catching wise and we'd better cool it. That was the end of him.

Now I'm in love again. This time it's an executive with quite a lot of money. The trouble is his wife is emotionally unstable and he's afraid she might do something irrational, like shoot me. He gave me a nice going-away present last night ($300) and said, "Good-bye, Honey."

I'm a decent girl who falls in love easily and gets hurt a lot. Please help me, Ann, I want a husband. —Lolly.

Dear Lolly: The key to your problem appears in your last sentence. Lay off the husbands and try to find a nice single man.

The improvement you've been hoping for is here.

Announcing Modess deodorant napkins.

Very soon, maybe even this week, you'll need a new supply of sanitary napkins. And because you have a woman's concern for your femininity, you'll probably want to try the new non-scented MODESS deodorant napkins.

Here are the answers to nine questions you may wonder about. They've been supplied by Anne Gilbert, Director of Education at Johnson & Johnson.

Q. Exactly what is a deodorant napkin?

A. A deodorant napkin is exactly what it sounds like: a sanitary napkin to which a deodorant has been added in order to retard the problem of menstrual odor.

Q. Where is the deodorant?

A. The deodorant is applied over the entire surface of the napkins while they're being manufactured.

Q. Is there a fragrance to the deodorant?

A. None whatsoever. A MODESS deodorant napkin can never clash with the perfume you happen to be wearing. More important, there's no trace of scent to reveal the fact that you're wearing a napkin.

Q. What kind of deodorant is it?

A. It is gentle and safe. Its deodorizing ingredient is hexachlorophene, well-known and medically-approved as a very effective bacteriostatic agent. In non-medical terms, that simply means hexachlorophene inhibits the growth of bacteria.

Q. That's what causes odor?

A. Yes. Menstrual odor is caused by the growth of bacteria. It's a natural process that no one can stop. You can cope with the problem, though, by being fastidious about your program of personal cleanliness and by using the new MODESS deodorant napkins.

Q. But surely not all women have odor problems?

A. In varying degrees, yes, all women do. If you haven't experienced the problem yet, unfortunately that's no guarantee it will never happen. The point is, why should you worry? Now that MODESS deodorant napkins are available, you can feel fresh and confident every day of the month.

Q. What about irritation?

A. A team of Johnson & Johnson chemists worked for months testing different deodorant formulae. The one they finally approved is not only effective, but also extraordinarily gentle and completely non-irritating. We wouldn't settle for less.

Q. How long will the deodorant stay effective?

A. If you've been buying napkins in boxes of 48's, you know the box usually lies open for several months. Well, you can continue to buy boxes of 48's. The last MODESS deodorant napkin you use will protect you just as effectively as the first one did.

Q. What about vaginal sprays and napkin powders?

A. By all means, continue to use them. Your MODESS deodorant napkin won't interfere at all. Rather, it will let you feel extra secure. And during your period, that extra feeling of confidence is especially nice to have.

Pick the MODESS deodorant napkin that's right for you.

1. MODESS Regular Napkins
Rectangular in shape, but gently molded at both ends. A moisture-proof polyethylene shield is bonded to the outside, extends across the bottom and part way up the sides. Try this exceptionally protective deodorant napkin if your flow is regular but you have spotting problems.

2. MODESS CAREFREE Napkins
They're tapered: wider in front, narrower in back. Designed to fit a youthful, slender figure best and absorb a regular flow. A moisture-proof polyethylene shield extends full-length and full-width through the centre of each CAREFREE deodorant napkin.

3. MODESS SOFF-FORM Napkins
These are deep-tapered napkins with a moisture-proof shield inside. They have extra depth for super absorbency. For you if your flow is exceptionally heavy and a tapered shape fits you best.

Anne Gilbert is Director of Education at Johnson & Johnson. It's her job to know all about sanitary napkins and to pass this knowledge on to you. If you ever have questions about MODESS deodorant napkins or feminine hygiene, write to her.

Go on Glad Kick

If there are any newcomers to gardening among my readers who haven't as yet experienced the joys and excitement of growing gladiolus, I want to urge them with all the force at my command to get into the swim and blow themselves to at least a couple of dozen glad bulbs.

It isn't only that the gladiolus is just about the easiest of all flowers to grow. My enthusiasm for glads stems, I think, from the fact that you get so much for so little, with a little inexpensive bulb developing into a majestic four-foot spike of glorious bloom which sends thrills of delight racing up and down your back just to look at it.

Gladiolus bulbs are sold ordinarily in two ways; in mixtures or collections, in which you get an assortment of unnamed bulbs, or by named varieties, in which you know beforehand exactly what you're getting.

Generally speaking, the mixtures are very good value, with the bulbs running around eight to twelve cents each. These will produce magnificent flowers as a rule, and in good variety. However, I think you'll find it a bit frustrating, as time goes on, not to know the names of your pets.

For my money, it is a lot more fun to buy your bulbs by name, even though they will cost a little more. If you label them carefully as you plant them, you'll find you develop certain favorites as they come into bloom, and you'll be able to hold forth learnedly over the back fence on the respective merits of Thunderbird and Spring Song.

When you buy your bulbs, try to think of it as starting a collection — an investment rather than an expense. Glad bulbs multiply fairly rapidly, you know, and every bulb you buy this spring may be a dozen bulbs in a few year's time. Start with bargain counter trash today and you'll wind up with a whole garden full of worthless rubbish. Start with a few pedigreed named kinds, and you can parlay them into a valuable collection of thoroughbreds.

Prices early in the season will run from about $1 to $2.50 per dozen bulbs. All-American Award winners and very new varieties may be priced as high as $4 per dozen, but I should point out that a very high price doesn't necessarily mean a more beautiful flower. It is more an indication of rarity and newness than measure of excellence.

Late in the season, as the stores start clearing away what is left stock, prices may drop as low as 49c per dozen, for a dealer can't carry unsold bulbs over to next year — they must be sold and planted this season or consigned to the incinerator.

Generally speaking, these end-of-season bargains are a pretty good buy, providing they were sound bulbs of named varieties to start with, and providing they have been given good storage conditions. The bulbs should be clean-skinned, firm and hard to the touch, never soft when squeezed, and if sprouted, the sprouts shouldn't be more than an inch long. I have bought pedigreed bulbs as late as June 8 and never had cause to regret the purchase.

If you buy your bulbs from open bins, the kind to select are not the biggest across, for the very large flattish kinds seldom produce the best spikes of bloom. For prize-winning flowers, you want a rounder, high-shouldered type of bulb, thick through from top to bottom, and with a smallish root scar on the bottom. Such a blub is "virgin"; that is, it is a young bulb grown from a cormlet rather than one formed by the splitting up of an old bulb.

Two fine flower shows are scheduled for this week. On Friday and Saturday, the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society is staging its annual show in Christ Church Memorial Hall. This is considered one of the best shows of its kind on the North American continent, and is worth a visit for its Bonsai exhibit alone.

The show is open to the public from 2 to 10 p.m. on Friday, and from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Saturday. Admission is 50 cents, children with adults free.

★ ★ ★

The annual Cadboro Bay Flower Show will be held on Saturday, in St George's Parish Hall, and this year marks the 25th anniversary for this unique fair, modelled after an English village flower show.

Doors are open from 2 to 8:30 p.m. and admission is $1, which includes tea. There is a plant stall where pulbs and plants can be purchased at much less than the usual prices, and Hilda and Jack Beastall will be in attendance from 2 to 4:30 p.m. to answer gardening questions.

ARTHUR HOPPE

Punks Off Campus!

It was on September 23, 1970, that a mob of angry adults, shouting, "Punks off campus!" stormed through the gates of Skarewe University and smashed every window in the Student Union.

"This is the dawn of the counter-revolution!" cried their leader, Sidney Snell, a 43-year-old bank teller. "We are going to tear down this decadent, nihilist, violence-prone student society and build a better, more humane one in its place."

★ ★ ★

Snell explained to the television cameras that he represented APS — the Adults for a Polite Society. And he promised further militant action. "Violence and rudeness is all these kids understand," he said.

The students were shocked. Their leader, Abbie Hayden, called a mass protest rally the next day. His remarks, however, were drowned out by a claque of APS faculty members, chanting, "Punk! Punk! Punk!"

University President Grandville Grommet, himself, poured a sack of fresh manure over young Hayden's head. Humanities Professor Hadley R. Hadley, something of a hothead, completed the disruption of the meeting by setting fire to the rostrum.

News coverage of the two events was devoured eagerly in millions of homes. It fanned a long-smoldering spark. Middle-aged eyes lit up. Over-40 shoulders squared. And more than one father told his son to go get a haircut or he'd hit him with a two-by-four.

★ ★ ★

Across the land, APS chapters sprang up. Militant middle-agers met in cells to operate clandestine mimeograph machines calling all adults to the counter-revolution.

"Off the Punks!", "Up the Bloodbath!" and "who's Running Things Around Here Anyway?" became universal rallying cries.

Allowances were cancelled, cars reclaimed and strict curfews applied in millions of homes. A group of over-40 fanatics known as The Hourmen were blamed for a series of bombings of student hangouts and rock and roll stations.

★ ★ ★

Student leaders, wary and apprehensive, demanded police protection. But there was no question whose side the police were on.

The high point came when Snell of the APS met young Hayden of the SDS on the nationally-televised program, "Jaw to Jaw."

"How do you expect to reform our student society" demanded Hayden angrily, "through rudeness and violence?"

"In exactly the same way," replied Snell smugly, as the middle-aged audience cheered, "that you expected to reform ours."

★ ★ ★

Outnumbered, out-gunned and out of money, the students finally were forced to surrender. Laws were passed raising the voting age to 30, requiring everyone under 21 to address everyone over 21 as "Sir," and combining the universities with the penal system.

"Now that the counter-revolution has at last succeeded," said Snell triumphantly, "our young people will grow up to be just as tolerant, just as humane and just as non-violent as we are."

And, by George, they did!

MGM Sells Treasures

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

On Saturday the world and his wife will be flocking inside the gates at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Culver City. There will be one week in which to view the glory and the splendor of what was the most glamorous studio on earth. The treasures from more than 2,200 films since 1916 are already spread out on three huge sound stages, spilling into the streets, for the buyers who are coming from all parts of the globe. The auction of MGM's past begins on Sunday, May 3, and continues through Wednesday, May [illegible].

I paid a visit to this fantastic collection. I had expected to find a lot of broken furniture and faded gowns. But everything was parkling and most of it looked brand new.

Even the dress Jean Crawford wore in the 20s for Our Dancing Daughter. The clothes were marvelous, but it was the furniture that knocked me for a loop. They spent real money for real antiques in those dear dead extravagant days.

★ ★ ★

The most beautiful, luxurious pieces of furniture were bought in the early 30s as a setting for Norma Shearer, then reigning queen of MGM, in Marie Antoinette. The picture, with Tyrone Power, was not filmed until 1938. The search for the right furniture and the four massive chandeliers had taken several years to collect. The chandeliers were found in a Hapsburg castle in Austria. The magnificent writing desk, signed by the maker, was found in France. I loved the padded cradle for the Dauphin. I would love to own the Louis XVI bureau which is also known as the Versailles Treaty table. It was used in Marie Antoinette, and heaven knows how many thousands of dollars it will fetch at the auction.

Barbra Streisand has had her eye on some of the French furniture and she will be in there bidding. Barbra has a surprising knowledge of antiques. Doris Duke, the richest girl in the world, has also been hovering around the fabulous merchandise, and plans to return for the auction, or have a representative there to bid for the pieces she has marked for her own.

There are 3,500 beautiful costumes to be auctioned. Strangely, the costume causing the most comment and interest is the blue and white check gingham dress with the white blouse worn by Judy Garland in The Wizard of Oz. I have a hunch this outfit will be bought by Judy's daughter Liza Minelli who is now in Hollywood staying with her father.

★ ★ ★

Every one of the previewing visitors beelines for the stand with Clark Gable's size-44 "lucky" trenchcoat, complete with shirt and tie and quite narrow brown shoes. The coat looks well worn. Clark wore it first in Comrade X, the film he made in 1939 with Hedy Lamarr. After that he wore it in every modern picture to the last film before he died.

I wonder if Greer Garson will come to buy the fancy period gown she wore in Mrs. Parkington. I remember seeing her in it when she made the film. And more recently the plaid jumper and jacket Leslie Caron wore in Gigi. It seems yesterday when I was on the sound stage watching Leslie being transformed from a little girl into a lady.

Visitors have been asking for Garbo's gloves, and Johnny Weissmuller's loin cloth when he was the best Tarzan of them all. And anything of Spencer Tracy's.

Hippies will love the long loose garments from the two Ben Hurs — Charlton Heston's and Ramon Novarro's.

And Elizabeth Taylor might decide she would like another wedding if she comes to see the sumptuous Helen Rose-designed white satin gown for her screen marriage in Father of the Bride. I can still see Spencer Tracy leading her down the aisle.

I asked the auctioneers how much they thought the auction would bring. No one was guessing. I would think it will be several million dollars.

Thinking Aloud

The chief reasons that political reforms rarely succeed is that by the time they acquire enough power for success, they are already in need of reform themselves.

Women tend to find conversation between the sexes generally so unsatisfactory because they can listen so much faster than men can talk.

When we use the word "replica" to mean simply a copy or an imitation of an original work, we are losing an important and unique sense of this word — which properly means the reproduction of a work by the original producer.

What fanatics fail to understand was succinctly expressed by Gracian, when he warned: "Push rightness to the extreme and it becomes wrong; press all the juice from an orange and it becomes bitter."

The only worthwhile "non-proliferation" treaty worth discussing is one that would put a stop to the proliferation of treaties, by substituting an international police force to resolve disputes.

In my travelling experience, airport restaurants and drug-stores are the worst gougers of all, simply because they have a geographical monopoly on their services. (The only thing I will buy in an airport shop is a newspaper or magazine, because they can't inflate the markup of these items, as they do nearly everything else.)

Most fatigue is not physical, even when it seems to be: a man can play three sets of tennis without tiring himself, but once around a museum with children in tow gives him intolerably aching calves.

Nanaimo Society Plans St. George Celebration

The newly-formed Nanaimo branch of the Royal Society of St. George is planning a big evening Thursday — St. George's Day.

The program will include "a truly English dinner and dance," says member Bruce Hewitt of Nanaimo.

"This society is making such an impact on the local scene that many people are asking 'just what is the Royal Society of St. George?' " he said.

"The Royal Society of St. George was formed in England in the year 1835 for the sole purpose of honoring and eulogizing the integrity and esteem for which England has been noted through the centuries," he said.

Hewitt said the society also wanted "to foster the love of England and to strengthen England and the Commonwealth by spreading the knowledge of English history, traditions and ideals."

Among the guests at Thursday's dinner will be Major-General George Pearkes, B.C.'s former lieutenant-governor.

Hewitt said that because the branch felt that its activities would draw considerable interest, it was inviting the general public to the evening.

"We hope to get many people from Victoria," he said. "It might well be asked how this society is pertinent to the Canadian scene. This question can be very briefly answered by pointing out that Canada is part of the Commonwealth and many of its citizens came from England or are descendants of those same people.

He added: "Tickets, which are limited because of accommodation, can be obtained by phoning 753-8763 in Nanaimo."

A. W. Johns Of UVic To Retire

Professor A. W. Johns, of University of Victoria, will retire at the end of June, closing 47 years of teaching in Victoria.

A native of Victoria, Johns has been head of the art education section at UVic for the past 10 years and started the permanent collection of paintings and art objects for the university.

★ ★ ★

He began his teaching career in elementary schools in Victoria and later taught in Central junior high, where he started the first Saturday morning art classes for children. The work of his students won awards in a worldwide competition held in Europe.

In 1942 Johns began teaching art at the Victoria Normal School and when the school was amalgamated with Victoria College was appointed associate professor on the faculty. He holds the same rank at UVic.

★ ★ ★

He received a B.A. degree in art education at the University of Washington.

Linda Goertz, a former art student now living in Vancouver, said many teachers throughout B.C. credit much of their success in teaching to the help and inspiration of Johns.

Hunting Rules Stiffen

Some hunters in British Columbia will be required to take compulsory hunting training before being licensed, Kenneth Kiernan, recreation and conservation minister, said Monday.

Kiernan said all persons involved in firearms accidents in 1969 were notified they will have to graduate from hunter training courses before their licences will be reinstated.

This year everyone under the age of 18 who has been involved in any infraction of the wildlife or firearms acts will be required to take the courses, he said.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We would like to extend sincere thanks to our many friends who offered sympathy and were so helpful during the recent loss of our dear husband and father, Mr. Henry Dewey. Also, special thanks to Dr. C. H. Fetix and to the officers of the Esquimalt Police Force whose kindness was very much appreciated.—Sheila, Dorinda and Jacqueline.

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbours to know how much their kind words, expressions of sympathy and floral tributes have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our husband and father, Claude H. Creed — The Creed Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

McLAUGHLIN — In loving memory of "Paddy", William Thomas McLaughlin, my dearly beloved husband, who departed this life April 22, 1967.
The year have rolled away on like a mournful sea,
Within my heart you live
I see your face still and hear thy voice,
O gentle God — dear treasured love —
Thy name be immortality. —
—With everlasting love, Dorothy Jean.

THOMAS — In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Fanny Thomas, who passed away April 22, 1968.
"Ever loved,
Ever remembered"
—Frances, Kitty, Dorothy, Eileen and families.

9 IN MEMORIAM

WELLS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George Wells, who passed away suddenly April 22, 1965.
We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Lilac ivy on the withered oak.
When all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.
—Ever remembered by his loving wife, Lilian, and daughter, Shirley.

Attention, baseball nuts: here's the annual radio guide for major league baseball, again thanks to postman extraordinaire Jim Eddie.

All Los Angeles Dodgers games are live on LA radio station KFI, 640 on the AM dial; Oakland Athletics games are on KNBR San Francisco, 680; Minnesota Twins games are on WCCO Minneapolis, 830, and San Francisco Giants games are on KFBK Sacramento, 1530. In addition, Sunday Giants games are on KVI Tacoma, 570, and some Milwaukee Brewers (ex-Seattle Pilots) games may be on KPUG Bellingham, 1490.

Oakland's voice this year is longtime St. Louis Cardinal broadcaster Harry Caray, who was fired by owner-beerman Gussie Busch for not being enough of a homer. I heard him last week; he's too much of a homer for me.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Tuesday's answer — We returned to the never-ending game of movie title roles with Sylvana Mangano as Anna, Eartha Kitt as Anna Lucasta, Ingrid Bergman as Anastasia and Vivien Leigh as Anna Karenina. One out of four ain't bad.

Today's question — Speaking of title roles, who was the top banana in the movie Top Banana? Speaking of Top, what was Topkapi, where was it and what was stolen from it? And once more speaking of Top, what funny little Englishman played Topper in three films? PS: who wrote the song You're the Top? Answers Thursday.

"No, we WON'T call him Engelbert Humperdinck Jones."

Wednesday Highlights

I know that this immaculate 2-plus-1 bedroom, full basement home is exceptional in every detail. You know what you want and need — probably a large living room with plush wall-to-wall carpeting, attractive fireplace and about 28 feet of color-keyed draperies. Maybe a spacious separate dining room with gleaming hardwood floors and a charming bay window, reached through double glass doors. Perhaps the beautiful ceramic vanity bath or the tasteful decor throughout. Drive-in garage, washer-dryer facilities, a rec. room or wall-to-wall carpets in all 3 bedrooms can be very appealing features. Or perhaps the 2 per cent financing is what you are after. When you see this home we both will know that this is what you are looking for. Just $26,000.

Crofton Naturalist

Swallows Can Aid Pest Battle

CROFTON — Now is the time for Crofton residents to put up birdhouses to attract swallows in the battle against mosquitoes.

That's the view of Stan Baker, who has been a naturalist, by hobby, for 15 years. He put up the last of 12 houses along Crofton Pulp mill waterfront Wednesday.

He said the reason for the houses was to attract swallows who feed on flying insects. His project is aimed at building up the swallow population to a point where they can control mosquitoes in the area.

★ ★ ★

"If we have more natural control, our problem wouldn't be as big," he said.

Baker said that he approached mill officials and asked if he could put up the houses, providing he did all the work.

"The mill supplied all of the material and cut the houses out," said Baker. "I put them together and am hanging them up. I am starting with a dozen and, if the experiment works, I am going to keep going."

★ ★ ★

Baker said that since he moved to Crofton 13 years ago, he had noticed a big drop in the swallow population.

"There are still thousands here. I don't know how good it will be this year because all the migrates aren't here but, if what I saw here this morning is any sign, there seems to be a good potential population."

The naturalist recommends controlling insects by natural means because, he said, sprays take everything and even though the battle was won the war was lost.

The birdhouse approach was not unique and Baker said he had heard of communities that had eliminated the mosquito problem by tackling it the same way.

Honeymoon Bay elementary school children have launched a similar project.

Baker said his birdhouses were just made from plywood with a 1¼ inch hole.

"The reason for a hole of this size is so the starlings will not get in. Starlings do not help in the battle for mosquito control. They do not eat flying insects. They feed on ground insects and seeds."

★ ★ ★

Baker said starlings had taken over most of the swallows' nests and that was why bird houses were needed to encourage the swallows to nest.

Although there are six different types of swallows, Baker explained the ones they hope to attract are the tree swallows — Purple Martins and Violet Green. The others have different nesting habits.

★ ★ ★

Many Crofton residents have already contacted Baker to find out details of the birdhouse.

Baker said the reason why it was a good time to put up the houses now was because the swallows were mating and would nest in about 10 days.

He said the birds were looking for nesting sites.

Ladysmith Highest In School Districts

The provincial average education tax mill rate for 1970 has risen to 31.81 from 31.72, Educa-Brothers announced Tuesday.

Of the 45 school districts which show increased mill rates, Ladysmith, is the highest, with a 6.89 jump to 43.37 or more than 35 per cent over the provincial average.

Thirty-five school districts will have a lower mill rate in 1970. Brothers predicted that the overal effect would be a school tax reduction for "the majority of residential property owners."

★ ★ ★

While the provincial government will be paying out $158,000,000 in direct grants for elementary and secondary schools, the amount not eligible for provincial grants will increase from 7.12 to 7.71 mills across the province.

Other Vancouver Island school districts whose mill rates are increased are Cowichan, up 2.27 to 32.26, Alberni, up .40 to 29.49, Campbell River, up .80 to 30.91.

Districts whose mill rates are down: Gulf Islands, down 1.72 to 25.53, Lake Cowichan, down 2.75 to 28.05, Nanaimo, down 3.11 to 32.80, Qualicum, down 2.98 to 31.83, Courtenay, down 1.76 to 32.57, Vancouver Island West, down .99 to 29.17, and Vancouver Island North, down .42 to 31.45.

Where mill rates go down, school taxes will also go down unless the assessed value of property has increased since last year.

A factor that may also reduce taxes from last year's rate is the 1970 increase in the provincial homeowner grant of $10 — from $150 to $160.

★ ★ ★

Taxes are arrived at by multiplying the local mill rate by the number of thousands of dollars of taxable assessed real property.

In B.C., land and improvements (buildings) are assessed at 50 per cent of the market value, although assessments often fall behind the market values.

Taxes are levied on 75 per cent of the assessed value of improvements and on 100 per cent of the assessed value of land.

For a $20,000 home, assessed for tax purposes at $10,000 on a mill rate of 30, the taxes are 30 times 10, or $300. Subtracting the $160 homeowner grant leaves a net school tax payable of $140.

Indian Land Basis For Study

PORT ALBERNI — Terms of reference for a study of the full potential of Indian reserve areas, affected by the west coast national park, have been forwarded to Ottawa, Clifford Hamilton, chairman of the West Coast Tribal Council, said Tuesday.

At a Council meeting early in March, a committee composed of representatives from the seven Indian bands who have property in the proposed park site, was formed to draw up immediate terms of reference.

Bill Mussel, special assistant to Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien, explained that only after the terms of reference had been received could a request be made to the treasury board for funds for the study. Mussel also promised the council that costs of the study would be born in full by the federal government and would not be taken out of the bands' Indian affairs allotments.

Despite the announcement Tuesday of a provincial-federal agreement, Hamilton said, "There is no change in our position.

"The federal government will still have to negotiate with the various bands but no decisions can be made until the study is complete."

Hamilton declined to give exact details of the terms of reference but said all facets of the problems involved would be covered — not only the value of the hundreds of acres of Indian land, some of them already being developed by the Indian people, but future potential and possibilities for tribal advancement, which was opened up by the decision to make the area a national park also, had to be considered.

"I have enough confidence in Ottawa to feel they would not ask us to submit terms of reference for this study unless they intended to deal with our claims seriously," Hamilton said.

He said the bands concerned were to have the privilege of naming an outside firm of consultants who would conduct the study. They would be talking to experts in various fields to ascertain what firms were capable of carrying out the study.

"We understand that acquisition of other property dealt with first before the needed for the park will be reserve area, and this will leave us time for the extensive study required," Hamilton said.

Lighting Approved For Gordon Head

A $54,000 street lighting project for Gordon Head was approved by Saanich council Monday night.

The project will be carried out as a local improvement, with 700 property owners paying 84 per cent of the cost.

The council-initiated plan was received by taxpayers with only a few objections.

According to a municipal official, it will be the largest single lighting project in the history of Saanich.

In other business, council:

● Approved rezoning for senior citizens' housing to be built by the Anglican Synod at Cedar Hill and Cedar Hill Cross Roads.

● Tabled for full council (Ald. Ed Lum was absent) a request for rezoning to present use of property at 4550 Cordova Bay Road, which is occupied by Seaview Motel.

● Heard a letter from the Advisory Planning Commission expressing deep concern over the proposed installation by B.C. Hydro of overhead transmission lines. The letter said the reasons given by Hydro were not acceptable.

● Decided to extend the five-acre minimum subdivision area to include subdivision districts C, E and F in the Elk Lake-Cordova Bay area.

Approved

A 24-classroom addition to Mt. Klitsa junior high school Port Alberni has been approved for tender-calling, the B.C. cabinet announced Monday.

Snow Conference Studies Forecasts

By PAT MURPHY

If there is a frivolous note in the serious-minded convention in progress at the Empress Hotel, it is in the dinky bolo-ties worn by the 200-odd delegates, and even they are not aimless ornament, but fraught with significance.

The multi-colored cords indicate the areas from which the delegates hale, and the brooch-fasteners, in the form of white-metal, conventionalized cyrstals, are what the convention is all about — they are snow flakes.

Every convention has its frolicsome moments, but there seems to be less levity at the Western Snow Conference than at most assemblies. The participants, mostly young and grave-faced, may have a certain disregard for long hair and mod styles, but there is nothing square about their academic qualifications. They are impeccable and right up to date.

SHAKE GAUGE

There are more master's degrees and doctorates than you can shake a hydrologic gauge at and just about every professional discipline is represented.

There are people there from universities, power companies, timber, railroad and agricultural interests, irrigation and flood control districts and a host of other related concerns.

Glen Castle of the United States Corps of Engineers, Sacramento, California, capsulized the importance of the convention:

WATER YIELD

"These are the people who forecast the water yield or runoff of every major stream in the western part of North America and, if you will stop and think in terms of agriculture or power alone, you can see that millions of dollars hinge on their decisions every year," he said Tuesday.

"Just about every branch of hydraulics and engineering is represented here by experts, and there are many people from such related fields as communications and computer technology and electronics," Castle said.

One of the needs of a successful water management program in any part of the world is accurate information, Castle said, and this is where electronics comes into the picture'

Electronic data gathering on water supply was expected to reach the point where pushing a button could bring the latest information on precipitation, temperature and barometric pressure from automatic instruments located in isolated points.

It had to reach this stage soon if forecasts were going to keep pace with ever-increasing demands. he said.

Biggest technological advances in forecasting have come in the past five years as the result of the space program and development of the transistor, Castle said.

"I anticipate more advances in the next 10 years than I have seen in my lifetime," he added.

If the bolo-ties indicated a certain light-heartedness among the delegates, there was nothing frivolous about their attitude as they discussed such papers as Simulating Snowmelt, Hydrographs for the Fraser River System and the Surface Instrument Network of the Upper Colorado River Project.

The conference, which began Tuesday morning and will continue until Thursday noon is not all work.

HOSPITALITY HOUR

Tonight there will be a hospitality hour, after which a banquet and presentation of awards will be made.

Toastmaster at the banquet will be B.C. Deputy Minister of Water Resources Valter Raudsepp and speaker will be provincial librarian and archivist Willard Ireland.

Housing Proposed

Saanich Approves Lots Listing

Four municipal lots on Rutledge Street will be listed for sale as a site for low-cost housing, Saanich lands and housing committee decided in principle Tuesday night.

The decision followed an offer by Danish Designers & Builders, 1235 Balmoral, of $12,000 for the lots.

Saanich assessment department has evaluated the four lots at $24,000.

Kaj Pedersen of Danish Designers showed the committee a plan for an eight-unit development on the four lots.

The one-storey building would be built with L-shaped living units, each with its private patio and lawn. The two-bedroom, one bathroom units of 1,020 square feet each would sell for $16,900 each and strata titles would be drawn up.

Pedersen said he had access to private money to finance mortgages and the units, with a $5,000 provincial government second mortgage, could be carried for under $150 a month, including principal, interest and taxes.

Ald. Edith Gunning, chairman of the committee, said the property was zoned for town housing "but the appraisal is so high it couldn't be done economically."

Pedersen pointed out that he couldn't pursue his plan at Saanich's price of $24,000 but he could if the lots could be bought at $12,000.

The chairman said she wouldn't mind taking a loss on the land to start some innovated housing produced at a moderate price.

"I'd like to see some attractive renewal of this area started," she added.

When the land is put on the sales list, it will go to the highest bidder.

The committee moved to have conditions for sale to make sure the municipal solicitor draw up that the land would be used for low-cost housing.

Treaty Eases Coast Fishing

A treaty allowing Canadians and Americans to fish with official blessing three miles off each other's coasts is expected to reach the signing stage at Ottawa Friday.

Pacific Trollers Association manager Michael Guns of Victoria said Tuesday night his group and others on the West Coast had negotiated with the federal fisheries department last February for just such a ruling.

The fishermen of both nations had followed the three-mile practice for the past several years with unofficial authorization, he said, but wanted an actual treaty "as a matter of cleaning the thing up."

The treaty would apply to both east and west coasts.

So far Canadians are said to have shown more interest in developing fishing grounds off the U.S. West Coast than the Americans have off the Canadian coast.

Guns pointed out that the harvest of troll salmon has been decreasing in Canadian waters.

Cowichan-Malahat

Wood Chip Spillage

DUNCAN — Cowichan-Malahat branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control has asked the federal fisheries department to take legal action against Crofton Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd.

Branch president Kurt Horn has written to the federal fisheries protection officer at Nanaimo about the wood chip spillage situation at the B.C. Forest Products mill.

He has asked for the letter to be considered a formal request for legal action under section three of the Fisheries Act.

He said the branch had an alternative plan in mind if the department's powers proved ineffectual.

Protest at Clover Point

Nerve Gas Rally Saturday

A rally protesting the planned shipment of U.S. nerve gas through the Juan de Fuca Strait will be held at noon Saturday at Clover Point.

Victoria City Manager Dennis Young's office confirmed Tuesday that The Collective, a local action group, was given permission to launch its Operation Nerve Gas following consultation with individual aldermen.

"Mr. Young referred that application to the mayor, who told the group to canvas the aldermen. Seven were available and they all gave their individual permission," a spokesman in Young's office said.

A second group had inquired about picketing the ferry arriving from Port Angeles at the Black Ball terminal, the spokesman said, but had not applied for a permit.

"It was felt that they should amalgamate their efforts with the group at Clover Point. Therefore it's doubtful they would get permission to go ahead with their plan," the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, Governors Dan Evans of Washington and Tom McCall of Oregon Tuesday asked the U.S. district court to stop the shipment to Umatilla Ordnance deport in Oregon.

Oregon Attorney-General Lee Johnson, on behalf of the two governors, said Defence Secretary Melvin Laird acted illegally when he gave military and civil defence groups of the two states the responsibility of safeguarding the train shipments from Bangor, Wash. to Umatilla.

B.C.'s University Grant Shy of Program Needs

The provincial government has sliced up its $77,000,000 annual university operating grant pie, giving $12,608,700 to the University of Victoria.

The shares, announced Tuesday by Education Minister Donald Brothers, are the same as recommended by a special advisory board.

The University of British Columbia gets $46,279,870 and Simon Fraser University gets $18,111,430.

The amount granted to UVic is approximately $1,200,000 short of the university's request, UVic Bursar Robert McQueen said Tuesday night. But the announcement was not a surprise, since a UVic official is represented on the board that advises on allocation of the operating grants.

McQueen said that three major programs already approved by the senate and board of governors cannot proceed because of the amount received. They are a social welfare program, a law school and a nursing school. Some other smaller projects also must be scrapped for the present, he said.

Last year, UVic received $10,311,406 out of the total grant of $65,000,000.

Music Festival:

Brass Loss Cuts Interest Value

By BERT BINNY

The Greater Victoria Music Festival rolled through its seventh day Tuesday.

A dozen sessions and 52 classes became matters of memory or, perhaps in a few instances, matters better forgotten.

The highest mark in the morning vocal section was achieved by John McVie with an 87 in the folk song class, 17 to 21, but, in the same age bracket, Maureen Best had an 86 in the sacred solo competition.

No mark, however, fell below 81.

BACH AWARD

The piano classes produced another big 90 which was earned by Jamie Ramsay in the Bach class, under 17. There is an award, the Xi Nu Chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority prize, for the highest mark in the Bach classes.

However, there are four more classes to be heard from, the last Thursday morning, so Jamie's 90 has to stand up against considerable competition.

Heline Barker was back again to win the Bach under-14 class of 14 entrants with an 88. Sydney Condrashoff was one mark off the winning pace with 87.

Identical scores of 87 won the under-15 and under-19 Bach classes for Margaret-Anne Maclure and Janet Pennington respectively.

LOVELY SOUND

Woodwind classes were heard at Blanshard elementary school by adjudicator Dr. William Revelli, and here the highest mark of the morning was scored: a 92 by Chris Salm in the senior woodwind solo. This matched Chris's 92 in the woodwind concerto class Monday.

Chris plays the flute and was highly commended by Revelli for "a lovely sound."

Sandra Pumfrey won the intermediate woodwind solo with 89, and Janet Munday had the junior division all to herself. She scored 82.

In the speech arts section, Nona Avren was back again for her fifth win in as many attempts when she won the under-12 sight reading class with 87.

No fewer than 16 entrants contested the class for girls under 8, which was won by Kathy Groves with 88 points.

TIE PLACE

Julie Patterson and Sarah Wood both received 87 to tie for second.

The afternoon instrumental classes went from woodwind to brass but four withdrawals cut down on the length and indeed, the interest of the program. Two competitions disappeared completely, another was reduced from two entries to one and a fourth from three to two.

The brass ensemble from Mount Douglas senior high had the highest mark of the afternoon, an 86.

Colquitz junior high presented the only percussion ensemble, four boys and a girl. They received 81 points.

Four further contests in the speech arts division went on at St. Ann's Academy in the afternoon.

In three of these classes, competitors from up-Island took first and second places, although Rosalind Scott of Victoria shared top spot in the class for Canadian poetry, under 16.

Kim Cattrall, who is 13 and comes from Comox, has very winning ways. On Monday afternoon she won the prose, under-16 class with 89. Yesterday she shared top spot with Rosalind Scott in the under-16 Canadian poetry with 90 points and also won the dramatic monologue class with 91 over nine other performers.

Second in the dramatic monologue was Kathleen Stupich of Nanaimo. Her sister, Marjorie, was second in Canadian poetry, under 21. This class was won by Marie Stillin with 91 points, and her sister, Roberta, was second in the under-16 division with 89. They are from Ladysmith.

POETRY CLASS

Victoria's Rosalind Scott, who is also an instrumentalist, shared first place in the under-16 Canadian poetry class and third place in the dramatic monologue.

The afternoon piano session produced a fine contest in the under-19 class. It was won by Mary Chard with 92 points; second was Carrie Humpherys with 90 and third, Janet Pennington with 89.

Jamie Ramsay's mark of 90 is the Bach competitions stood up during the afternoon; an 87 was the nearest approach.

Carrie Humperys received another 90 in the modern compositions, under 19, class.

Afternoon vocal sessions were highlighted by a 90-90 mark awarded by adjudicator Rankin Bushby to the Gladys Pearcy Singers.

Susan Word had a very creditable 88 in the division for high voices, 17 to 21 and John McVie had 86 to take the class for baritones, 17 to 21.

The operatic and oratorio classes in the vocal division highlighted the evening session.

OPERATIC WIN

Evelyn Westinghouse, who scored 180 points to win the open Lieder class on Monday, came back to take the operatic with a commanding 92. One point behind was Adele Lewis and, in third place, Judy Temple with 86.

Miss Westinghouse also won the Bach sacred class and was second in the class for mezzo-sopranos.

Miss Temple headed the senior oratorio class and Susan Word, who won the high voice, 17 to 21, class in the afternoon, returned in the evening to come out on top in the senior soprano. In both cases, her mark was 88.

CONCERT GROUP

In the piano division Jocelyn Abbott won the under-19 concert group class, receiving 270 points out of a possible 300. Second was Wendy Stofer with 266.

In the Bach open class Susan de Burgh achieved 90 points so that, in the matter of the Bach Award, she is now tied with Jamie Ramsay, who received the same mark in the under-17 division.

Six junior high school bands performed in a non-competitive class at Central junior high yesterday evening: Colquitz, Gordon Head, Oak Bay, S. J. Willis, Lansdowne and Central.

Three classes in speech arts were also decided yesterday evening. Marks were again close: 89 won the first, under-21 class for Pamela Stamford while 88 was top mark for Roberta and Marie Stillin in the under-21 dramatic monologue and for Mary Robertson in the open prose competition.

The festival continues today as Tuesday and the day before with one exception.

There are no band classes in the evening.

SCHEDULE CHANGE

However, senior vocal classes are scheduled for tonight along with two open and an under-19 piano class. The piano concert group class, No. 132, postponed from last night, takes place at 8:30 p.m. today The concerto, under-19 and the open concerto, originally scheduled for this evening, now go to 2 and 3 p.m. Friday.

There are three sessions of speech arts at St. Ann's Academy today with the morning brass and afternoon woodwind classes taking place at Blanshard elementary school.

Eight Days Left for Hospital

'Now Everything Is Gone'

Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, administrator of Oak Lodge Private Hospital, has eight days in which to find places for 15 aged and fragile patients.

When 10 of them are moved — and they'll have to go because the hospital is closing at the end of this month — they will be in ambulances. That's the gravity of their illness.

As guest speaker at a meeting of Saanich Kiwanis club Tuesday night, Mrs. Reynolds presented a calm resume of the problem of caring for this community's aging and ailing citizens.

HEART-BREAKING

"Oak Lodge's closing has done much to bring this frightening situation to the attention of everyone," she said.

"It just pulls at your heart strings . . . these people are so alone and they depend on you. So when Oak Lodge decided it would close I faced the dreadful problem of finding other accommodation for 41 of them.

"It was a most heart-breaking thing despite the many offers of tag days and marathon walks, especially from young people, to keep the hospital open.

START PACKING

"We have some lovely people in Oak Lodge, very determined and very proud.

"Tomorrow I am renting a pickup truck and will start packing away the things they have collected for years and some of them have been with us for many, many years.

"Next week, when the deadline is up, I will be calling the ambulance to take them to Sandringham if they can't go elsewhere. I will be putting them in the sunroom if there is no place else in this city."

(Mrs. Reynolds also is administrator of Sandringham Private Hospital.)

'EVERYTHING IS GONE'

"They found life in Oak Lodge wonderful. The hospital's friends donated fruit and the girls who worked there took patients' clothes home to sew.

"But now just about everything is gone for them."

Mrs. Reynolds told the Kiwanians she did not have any instant solutions to the private hospital's problems. However; Oak Lodge was closing because it could not make ends meet financially. One solution might be for the provincial government to increase its allowance for welfare patients, she said.

The government now pays $9.25 a day, but Mrs. Reynolds said any hospital would need $12 to break even. Patients who are not supported by welfare pay $18 a day for a private room and $13 or $14 for semi-private accommodation.

She told the Kiwanians that the standards of private hospitals are carefully patrolled by a government that apparently is not prepared to pay for that level of care.

In addition to the problems of simply paying for the cost of the care — Oak Lodge had 43 persons on staff — there is the problem of too few beds.

"When I am trying to find beds for the people I have to move, I still get five or six telephone calls a day from people, trust companies, and so on, who want space for relatives and clients," said Mrs. Reynolds.

Piped-In Music 'Invades Privacy'

Victoria public works committee's recommendation to permit installation of a "motivational background music system" on a six-month trial basis in certain parts of city hall has drawn fire from a number of citizens.

City Clerk Morrin Waller said Tuesday he had received six letters protesting the canned music plan.

"It seems that a number of people don't like the idea. Most of the writers claim piped-in music is an invasion of their privacy," he said.

Council will deal with the committee's recommendation at Thursday's meeting.

Ottawa, B.C. Sign Agreement

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

A new national park on Vancouver Island — marking several firsts in the development of Canada's national parks system — was brought into existence here Tuesday with the signing of a formal agreement between B.C. and Ottawa.

● Ottawa will study affect on reserves. Page 19

The agreement, completed after many months of intensive study and negotiations, was signed by Indian Affairs and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien and B.C. Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

It provides for establishment of a national park on the west coast of Vancouver Island which includes Long Beach, the Effingham Islands, and a 50-mile swath of virgin coastline between Bamfield and Port Renfrew.

★ ★ ★

Among the firsts are:

● This is the 21st national park to be established in Canada but it is the first coastal park on the Pacific and it also has the longest coastline of any park in Canada.

There are 25 miles of shoreline facing the open Pacific at Long Beach, plus five miles on sheltered Browning Passage and four miles on nearby Kennedy Lake.

No attempt has been made so far to assess the shoreline of the Effingham Islands section of the park but B.C. officials said this area covers more than 60 identifiable islands in the space of 43 square miles of land and water.

There are also more than 50 miles of Pacific coastline along the Lifesaving Trail which runs from just south of Bamfield to a point near Port Renfrew on the south.

● This is the first national park established under an agreement by which the federal and provincial governments share equally in the cost of land acquisition.

Just before the formal agreement was signed in Kiernan's office Tuesday the

Narcotics Trial

Offered $10,000 Says Juror's Wife

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver man has been ordered to appear in British Columbia Supreme Court today to face a charge that he tried to tamper with the jury in a narcotics trail.

Justice W. R. McIntyre Tuesday issued the order to David Galloway of Vancouver after being told that the wife of juror Herbert Grimley was offered $10,000 to persuade her husband to arrange a hung jury.

McIntyre is presiding over the retrail of Conrad William Gunn, Edward Ponak, Ido Zamai and John McKeoff, all charged with consiracy to traffic in narcotics.

The retrial was ordered after an earlier trial resulted in a hung jury.

McIntyre was told that Hilda Grimley was offered the money to persuade her husband to arrange a second hung jury.

She said a man told her one of the four accused was a friend of his who had been framed and that two witnesses in the trial were "stool pigeons" for the RCMP.

The jury in the second trial was discharged and a third trial has been ordered.

Breath Test Set May 19

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada has set May 19 as the date for hearing argument on the question of the federal government's compulsory breath test legislation.

A reference of the question to the country's highest court was made after a British Columbia court ruled the legislation invalid.

EXPO 70 FEELING JADED

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — A 24-ton plock of jade, described as the heaviest jade stone in the world and valued at 500,000,000 yen (nearly $1,500,000), went on display today at the British Columbia Pavilion at Expo '70.

Legend has it that people who touch the jade stone, discovered two years ago near Ogden, B.C., will be assured of happiness.

Touching the stone, however, apparently was no help to the men who moved it to Expo

After a stormy crossing of the Pacific, in which the stone broke loose and damaged the freighter Hi King and some of its other cargo, the stone snapped the cable being used and made a hole in the pavement.

Escaper Killed in Battle

VANCOUVER (CP) — An escaper from the B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster was killed in a gun battle with police Tuesday night in the city's East End.

The man, whose name was withheld, was dead on arrival at hospital after exchanging shots with police near a community centre.

Police said the man, accompanied by an unidentified girl, opened fire on them after ramming a cruiser with his pickup truck.

The girl escaped injury, but was reported from suffering from shock.

The dead man was one of two escapers who fled the B.C. Penitentiary in January.

Riot Deaths Fuel Crisis In Trinidad

PORT OF SPAIN (Reuters) — Two persons were killed when Black Power demonstrators defied a government-imposed state of emergency in Trinidad Tuesday and police opened fire on rioting mobs.

A 16-year-old boy, Phil St. Louis, died of a gunshot wound in the head.

The other victim was identified as Clyde Bailey, 28, a member of the Trinidad and Tobago Regiment, which along with the police and coast guard, is the main security force at the government's disposal.

★ ★ ★

Reports said Bailey was also shot in the head as the whole country was put under dusk to dawn curfew.

Rioting erupted in the city as Balck Power demonstrators defied a national state of emergency and paraded through Port of Spain's business section, smashing windows and looting shops.

Police clashed with the demonstrators several times and had to use tear gas and batons to restore order. But as soon as they restored order in one section, the demonstrators carried on with their smashing sprees in other parts of the city.

★ ★ ★

The state of emergency was declared in the face of a massive demonstration scheduled by the National Joint Action Committee, the main Black Power organization in the country.

Black Power demonstrations have been continuing here since late Febuary with the Black Power advocates demanding the resignation of the prime minister, more black economic power and a solution to the nation's huge unemployment problem.

State of Siege In Colombia

BOGOTA (UPI) — The government declared a state of siege as serious clashes erupted in Bogota Tuesday night when mobs demanded that former dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla be named president over Misael Pastrana Borrero, the official candidate and apparent winner.

Outgoing President Carlos Lleras Restrepo warned the nation Tuesday night that it is now "under the rules permitted in nations at war" so it would be able to face the "danger of a general revolt in our country."

The president accused the movemept led by Rojas of planning to overthrow the government.

Lleras reiterated his decision to carry on his duties as president of Colombia up to the expiration of his mandate on Aug. 7. "Before Aug. 7 I will never leave the presidential palace unless I am dead," he said.

Inflation War

'Working Despite Jobless'

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons Tuesday that government policies to fight inflation are gradually working.

However, "nobody likes the very high rate of unemployment in the country" that accompanies the battle, he told New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas.

The rate of unemployment in March, 1970, had been equalled or exceeded in eight of the last 14 years, Benson said. The record was in March, 1961, under a Conservative government.

★ ★ ★

Prime Minister Trudeau told Douglas the government has policies for areas affected by high unemployment. Douglas had asked whether the government would end inflation restraints in cities hit by high unemployment.

Replying to George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings), Trudeau said the government is fighting inflation to prevent greater unemployment.

'No One Else Involved, No Money Left'

Robber Recants Conspiracy Story

By BRUCE LOWTHER

There was no conspiracy, no MPs, no MLA, no magazine and book publisher, no research assistant, no photographer.

And there is no money left.

Jon Donald McDermott, the 27-year-old Burnaby man who had admitted eight holdups of financial firms, said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court that he told two lies. That meant he went through an estimated $17,300 between Jan. 5 and March 31 of this year.

★ ★ ★

He pleaded guilty to a charge of public mischief laid by Saanich police and received from Judge William Ostler a two-year prison term to run at the same time as the seven 12-year concurrent Terms Ostler gave him last Thursday.

The former newspaperman and radio-TV worker pleaded guilty April 1 to four charges involving holdups at five banks and one financial firm in Victoria, Saanich, Vancouver and New Westminster between Jan. 5 and March 31.

Then he pleaded guilty April 10 to one charge involving two bank holdups in Calgary March 9, but Ostler threw out one charge because it was drafted improperly.

Money taken at the eight firms totalled $19,046 and Saanich police recovered $1,730 when McDermott was arrested March 31, a difference of $17,318.

McDermott told court April 10, under oath at his request, that he staged the holdups to get into prison so he could write a book about life there and that might bring about prison reform.

He said the "group of people who support me in this venture" would be named shortly, including one member of the Legislature from each of B.C. and Ontario, two MPs, the publisher, the research aide and the photographer.

His lengthy statement was sprinkled with references to the others, including a lifetime deal with the publisher and photographs of every holdup. He also said all the money would be returned with interest "in the very near future."

★ ★ ★

That led Saanich police to investigate a possible conspiracy, the inquiry starting with questioning of McDermott by Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart in the Saanich cells. Police indicated McDermott made a voluntary statement

Great Lockout Becomes Great Confusion

By DON COLLONS
Colonist Labor Reporter

Will it be recorded by history as British Columbia's Great Lockout?

Or perhaps the lockout that almost was?

Or maybe just the lockout that never grew up?

On Tuesday, one week after it all started, it wasn't hard to find people who would swear by any of these descriptions. It all depended, of course, on what side of the fence they stood.

In reality, it appeared the real answer was still hidden by the cloud of confusion that has developed since the Construction Labor Relations Association locked out seven building trade unions on a province-wide basis.

It has become increasingly more difficult to determine just how much of the province's construction has been affected and to what degree.

Hop-scotch Pattern

Neither the unions nor CLRA, which claims to represent 600 contractors, have been able to provide more than sketchy pictures of a sort of hop-scotch pattern of slowdown and stoppage.

Anyone sifting the abundant supply of conflicting stories, may draw some conclusions.

These would include:

● That strategy on the part of the unions had combined with certain lack of cooperation among some contractors to give labor an edge in the contest so far.

● That the lockout started with a mild "poof" and not the enormous explosion that had been forecast and has, as labor had predicted, barely caused a ripple on Vancouver Island.

● But even so, the longer it goes on the more serious it will become; on a gradual basis, it could create a real construction paralysis.

By Tuesday the Vancouver-based plumbers had become union No. 8 in the lockout saga, but there was some doubt they had really stepped into the web with both feet.

Labor officials said about 2,000 of the 3,000 plumbers are actually involved in construction work. Of these, they said, many work for companies with national and international agreements where the lockout is not in effect.

They said, also, that CLRA covers only about 94 of the contractors that employed the plumbers and that there is a choice of another 120 unaffiliated contractors for whom they can work.

Plumbers from Victoria to Duncan and at Prince Rupert are bound by other agreements and are not included in the lockout.

The B.C.-Yukon Building Trades Council was still offering some fairly impressive figures Tuesday to back its claim that the lockout wasn't hurting too much as yet. Council secretary Ed Fay said in Vancouver that only 5,000 of the council's 70,000 tradesmen have been directly affected.

Projects Continue

Work was continuing at many major projects in Victoria and Vancouver, although it has slowed in most cases.

Contractors say the halting effect is due, in part, to a separate strike-lockout situation concerning the teamsters and the Lower Mainland cement industry. Union spokesmen say cement is still being brought in from Washington state and many independent B.C. companies.

"And some contractors now have their own batch plants on the job," Fay said.

At the outset, CLRA president C. J. Connaghan said the lockout would virtually tie up all major construction. The price tag he offered was $200,000,000.

Spokesmen for the contractors now admit the statement might have been a little off the mark — that the almost immediate shutdown forecast would only come about on a gradual basis.

Breath of Life

Hindering the plan further, of course, has been the chief piece of union strategy — to refrain from using picket lines. This has allowed all unaffected unions to maintain a breath of life in projects that had been expected to die.

The lockout was really the first test of strength on the part of the recently-formed CLRA. Until now the ranks of contractors have been notoriously fragmented.

"You've got to look at it this way," a Vancouver-based contractors' spokesman told the Colonist. "These guys are the ultra-free enterprise boys — guys who in many cases have pulled themselves up by the bootstraps — guys who have been involved in a highly competitive business. Now they are told to sit down and work together as a team. It isn't easy for them."

Union spokesmen quickly agree. They say there have already been many deals in which locked out employees of one company have been switched to the payroll of a subsidiary firm.

Fay says there have also been cases where a customer will cancel a contract and bring in a new company. In some cases the new company will pick up the men locked out by the original company, he said.

After the end of this month the province's 10,000 construction carpenters could either be added to the lockout, or go on strike. Their contract runs out April 30 and their negotiating committee is recommending that they reject an offer of a $1 an hour increase on top of a $4.88 rate. They sought a $2.02 hike.

The CLRA says it imposed the lockout because of unrealistic increase demands ranging from 40 per cent to 105 per cent.

In Victoria Tuesday, Vancouver Island Building Trades Council secretary John Schibli answered criticism of big construction union demands with a long list of neatly compiled figures.

Records showed the average carpenter worked about eight months in 1969 and earned wages of $5,735.40. With benefits added the figure would have been $5,916.90, he said.

Schibli said the situation was much the same for the other trades.

Talks Resume

The construction unions have also taken exception to contractors' claims that labor costs make up about half the cost of building. They say on-site labor accounts for less than 20 per cent of the cost.

Whatever happens next in the lockout, it appears both sides are willing to take steps to bring it to an end.

By Tuesday talks had resumed with three more of the locked out unions — the bricklayers, cement masons and teamsters. Others locked out are the operating engineers, plumbers, heat and frost insulators, laborers and tunnel and rock workers.

Swordsman Awaits Assault Sentencing

An Oakalla prison guard who is both a political scientist and a champion athlete wielded a stolen sword.

And another man's wife threw her arms over her husband's head when the sword was swung.

It all happened early April 12 in Esquimalt.

The story was told Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court after Gursharn Singh Mann, 28, of Vancouver, pleaded guilty to two charges of assault causing bodily harm and one charge of theft involving more than $50.

SWORD STOLEN

The charges said the sword was stolen April 12 from the Sikh Temple at 2721 Graham in Victoria, while the assaulted couple was Ragbier Singh Bhandar, 271 Nicola Place, and his wife Hargian. After the assault charge naming Bhandar was read, a charge of attempted murder of the husband was withdrawn.

Then Esquimalt Constable Robert Vining and defence lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood unfolded this story:

PRISON GUARD

A champion athlete who holds a master of arts degree in political science in India, Mann came to Canada two years ago and has been working as an Oakalla prison guard. He recently separated from his wife, and this may have caused ill feeling in the East Indian community, where Mrs. Mann has relatives.

Mann went to an East Indian celebration on the night of April 11-12 at the Dominion Hall, 802 Esquimalt, saying he was a representative of the attorney-general's department and investigating Hindu dances.

DANCE ASKED

Vining said Mann asked Mrs. Bhandar twice for a dance, was refused, became profane and was asked to leave, which he did. Owen-Flood said Mann felt he had been publicly insulted and "wished to get revenge."

He went to the Sikh Temple, arriving while a priest was reading the Bible, a reading which tradition says cannot be stopped. So, no one did anything while Mann walked up to the altar and took a $72, three-foot cavalry sword.

Mann returned to the Dominion Hall, waiting outside in a car. Bhandar and his wife were entering their car in a parking lot when Mann approached, holding the sword above his head with both hands.

ARM CUT

Mrs. Bhandar threw her arms over her husband's head and was cut twice between the left wrist and elbow, cuts that may require plastic surgery. Bhandar received a six-stitch cut on his right thumb, his suit coat was slashed and a bracelet on his left wrist was "sliced practically open."

Owen-Flood said Mann has no previous record and offered as an exhibit a letter in which Mann asked that "God forgive me." The lawyer requested both pre-sentence and psychiatric reports, and Judge William Ostler agreed, remanding the case to April 30 for sentence.

Robbery

Drugs Claim Heard

A 25-year-old man who has resolution making the union the $1,165 bank holdup Feb. 20 in Victoria claims to have taken five tranquilizers, five anti-depressant pills and 10 to 12 glasses of beer in a period of a few hours before the robbery.

Dr. Anthony Marcus, head of the UBC forensic psychiatry department, said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court he was told about the pills and beer by John Alan King, no fixed address, who pleaded guilty April 9 to a charge of robbing the Toronto-Dominion Bank at Yates and Broad.

★ ★ ★

The psychiatrist described King as "inadequate, somewhat shiftless, unstable, sometimes explosive (and sometimes) morose and depressed." He urged that psychiatric treatment and a ban on alcohol be included in the sentence for King.

The sentence, which was to have been pronounced Tuesday, was deferred to today so a policeman can testify about King's demeanor at the time of arrest shortly after the holdup.

Beer Parlor Rioting Denounced by Judge

"There's been altogether too much disorderly conduct recently in beer houses in this city," Judge William Ostler said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court.

The judge said such places are for people to go "for refreshment and quiet enjoyment ... They are not places for riots and disorderly conduct. There's far too much of it."

He was speaking to Brian James Tucker, 20, of 1551 Arrow, who pleaded guilty to a charge of wilful damage Monday evening in the beer parlor of a hotel at 1140 Government.

Court was told Tucker was evicted from the bar, damaged a table and broke some glasses by throwing a chair, was evicted again and returned to break a glass against a wall. Tucker was fined $50 and ordered to pay $3.15 for the damages.

Another 20-year-old charged as a result of a beer parlor incident was Patrick Francis Grills, 722 Pembroke, who was first charged with creating a disturbance by being drunk Monday evening in the same hotel pub.

He pleaded guilty, but a recital of the facts included a police opinion that Grills "had been drinking but was not drunk." The judge dismissed the charge and Grills was charged later with creating a disturbance by shouting in the same incident. He pleaded guilty again.

POLICE ACCUSED

Court was told two off-duty policemen in the beer parlor were asked by a staff member to get Grills to leave, but Grills refused, mouthed obscenities and spat on the policemen.

Grills told the judge he thought "the police officers themselves were drunk. They were in there all night. They had more or less harassed me for about three hours off and on."

JUDGE'S QUESTION

He also said he thought the policemen were mad because the drinking age had been lowered to 19 and they didn't have that advantage when they were young.

"Assuming that were true," said the judge, "why did you shout?"

"They were shouting at me," Grills replied.

"Oh, no ... no," said the judge, fining Grills $25.

Impaired Driving Charges Quashed

The laws against drinking drivers ran into another roadblock Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court when Judge William Ostler quashed two charges of impaired driving.

His action resulted from a March 31 ruling by B.C. Supreme Court Justice Craig Munroe in Vancouver that a Canadian law amending drinking-driving laws was proclaimed improperly before it went into effect last Dec. 1.

Lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood appeared for both Keith T. L. Webb, 32, of 2214 Florence, and Wayne Edward Roberts, 30, of 9633 8th Street in Sidney. After separate incidents in February, both were charged with impaired driving and with refusing to take a breath analysis test.

LAWS ELIMINATED

The Munroe ruling wiped out both the breath-test law and one against driving with a blood alcohol reading of more than .08 per cent.

The Criminal Code section involved also included the impaired-driving law, but its wording was identical with the law it replaced and courts had made no change in dealing with such cases.

Owen-Flood said evidence in both impaired-driving cases included breath analysis readings.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett asked for either an adjournment of the cases until the Supreme Court of Canada rules on an appeal against the Munroe ruling, or for a court ruling upholding the impaired-driving charge.

Lloyd McKenzie, appearing for the provincial government, said the attorney-general's instructions were not to oppose the bid to quash.

Ostler first declined any adjournment, then quashed the breath-test counts against both Webb and Roberts.

Mosquito Action Draws Attack

WESTHOLME — Complaints have been made by Westholme area farmers and the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control about a mosquito control measure taken by North Cowichan municipality.

Involved is land along the CPR tracks and part of a farm owned by Henry Bonsall where Abate 5C capsules were dropped by municipal employees.

★ ★ ★

Kurt Horn, chairman of the Malahat-Cowichan branch of SPEC, said Tuesday that the capsules, used to destroy mosquito larvae were too densely placed and could endanger wildlife and fish for 72 hours after application.

Horn also charged that the capsules were placed by persons not licenced to carry out that type of operation.

★ ★ ★

Quoting from a container label, Horn said Abate 5C was to be applied at one capsule per 1,000 square feet of water and one capsule for each additional 1,000 square feet. He said that was not observed. The capsules had been distributed in a far greater density which could be harmful, he said.

One farmer Bill Bonsall claimed that the capsules were dropped in a density 500 times as strong as allowed in the instructions.

"We agreed with the entomologist that the mosquito control program should be carried out under his direction and the entomologist told us he would prepare a solution," he said.

"We also were told that we were to be notified before they would carry out the program and that we were to be present. But then they came in behind our backs and dropped the capsules without us knowing it."

★ ★ ★

Henry Bonsall said that municipal employees have dropped five capsules of the chemical onto his land in a much smaller area than allowable.

"If my cows drink the water, they'll die," he said.

David Kearns of Simon Fraser University, hired by North Cowichan as an entomologist for the summer month said he had recommended use of the chemical. He was away when it was applied.

★ ★ ★

Kearns hold a BA degree and is working on his master's. He said he has been studying for the past six years. Kearns is also a member of SPEC and has given talks on pollution during the last two years.

He stressed that the chemical had already killed many miosquito breeding grounds. Unlike DDT, he said, the chemical would break down in relatively short time.

Kearns pointed out that a permanent solution to the problem would be drainage of the swamp area which would be very costly.

Municipal engineer John Sansom said municipal employees applied the capsules on Thursday and that one of the farmers had been present.

The first application had already been very successful according to the engineer.

★ ★ ★

He said many musquito larvae had been destroyed and other insects had not been harmed by the chemical.

Another area was treated Monday and more applications would be made.

Sansom said other landowners at Westholme had given them permission to drop Abate 5C capsule.

★ ★ ★

"I am prepared to take some criticism from SPEC if it means a relief from the mosquito plague and from the suffering last year.

"If we continue with the program we probably will be able to solve it but we have to get the larvae now."

For the past two years, Crofton and Westhome areas were attacked by large swarms of mosquitos and several measures were considered by a special mosquito control committee.

Crofton Naturalist

Swallows Can Aid Pest Battle

CROFTON — Now is the time for Crofton residents to put up birdhouses to attract swallows in the battle against mosquitoes.

That's the view of Stan Baker, who has been a naturalist, by hobby, for 15 years. He put up the last of 12 houses along Crofton Pulp mill waterfront Wednesday.

He said the reason for the houses was to attract swallows who feed on flying insects. His project is aimed at building up the swallow population to a point where they can control mosquitoes in the area.

★ ★ ★

"If we have more natural control, our problem wouldn't be as big," he said.

Baker said that he approached mill officials and asked if he could put up the houses, providing he did all the work.

"The mill supplied all of the material and cut the houses out," said Baker. "I put them together and am hanging them up. I am starting with a dozen and, if the experiment works, I am going to keep going."

★ ★ ★

Baker said that since he moved to Crofton 13 years ago, he had noticed a big drop in the swallow population.

"There are still thousands here. I don't know how good it will be this year because all the migrates aren't here but, if what I saw here this morning is any sign, there seems to be a good potential population."

The naturalist recommends controlling insects by natural means because, he said, sprays take everything and even though the battle was won the war was lost.

The birdhouse approach was not unique and Baker said he had heard of communities that had eliminated the mosquito problem by tackling it the same way.

Honeymoon Bay elementary school children have launched a similar project.

Baker said his birdhouses were just made from plywood with a 1¼ inch hole.

"The reason for a hole of this size is so the starlings will not get in. Starlings do not help in the battle for mosquito control. They do not eat flying insects. They feed on ground insects and seeds."

★ ★ ★

Baker said starlings had taken over most of the swallows' nests and that was why bird houses were needed to encourage the swallows to nest.

Although there are six different types of swallows, Baker explained the ones they hope to attract are the tree swallows — Purple Martins and Violet Green. The others have different nesting habits.

★ ★ ★

Many Crofton residents have already contacted Baker to find out details of the birdhouse.

Baker said the reason why it was a good time to put up the houses now was because the swallows were mating and would nest in about 10 days.

He said the birds were looking for nesting sites.

Ladysmith Highest In School Districts

The provincial average education tax mill rate for 1970 has risen to 31.81 from 31.72, Educa-Brothers announced Tuesday.

Of the 45 school districts which show increased mill rates, Ladysmith, is the highest, with a 6.89 jump to 43.37 or more than 35 per cent over the provincial average.

Thirty-five school districts will have a lower mill rate in 1970. Brothers predicted that the overal effect would be a school tax reduction for "the majority of residential property owners."

★ ★ ★

While the provincial government will be paying out $158,000,000 in direct grants for elementary and secondary schools, the amount not eligible for provincial grants will increase from 7.12 to 7.71 mills across the province.

Other Vancouver Island school districts whose mill rates are increased are Cowichan, up 2.27 to 32.26, Alberni, up .40 to 29.49, Campbell River, up .80 to 30.91.

Districts whose mill rates are down: Gulf Islands, down 1.72 to 25.53, Lake Cowichan, down 2.75 to 28.05, Nanaimo, down 3.11 to 32.80, Qualicum, down 2.98 to 31.83, Courtenay, down 1.76 to 32.57, Vancouver Island West, down .99 to 29.17, and Vancouver Island North, down .42 to 31.45.

Where mill rates go down, school taxes will also go down unless the assessed value of property has increased since last year.

A factor that may also reduce taxes from last year's rate is the 1970 increase in the provincial homeowner grant of $10 — from $150 to $160.

Taxes are arrived at by multiplying the local mill rate by the number of thousands of dollars of taxable assessed real property.

In B.C., land and improvements (buildings) are assessed at 50 per cent of the market value, although assessments often fall behind the market values.

★ ★ ★

Taxes are levied on 75 per cent of the assessed value of improvements and on 100 per cent of the assessed value of land.

For a $20,000 home, assessed for tax purposes at $10,000 on a mill rate of 30, the taxes are 30 times 10, or $300. Subtracting the $160 homeowner grant leaves a net school tax payable of $140.

Indian Land Basis For Study

PORT ALBERNI — Terms of reference for a study of the full potential of Indian reserve areas, affected by the west coast national park, have been forwarded to Ottawa, Clifford Hamilton, chairman of the West Coast Tribal Council, said Tuesday.

At a Council meeting early in March, a committee composed of representatives from the seven Indian bands who have property in the proposed park site, was formed to draw up immediate terms of reference.

Bill Mussel, special assistant to Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien, explained that only after the terms of reference had been received could a request be made to the treasury board for funds for the study. Mussel also promised the council that costs of the study would be born in full by the federal government and would not be taken out of the bands' Indian affairs allotments.

Despite the announcement Tuesday of a provincial-federal agreement, Hamilton said, "There is no change in our position.

"The federal government will still have to negotiate with the various bands but no decisions can be made until the study is complete."

★ ★ ★

Hamilton declined to give exact details of the terms of reference but said all facets of the problems involved would be covered — not only the value of the hundreds of acres of Indian land, some of them already being developed by the Indian people, but future potential and possibilities for tribal advancement, which was opened up by the decision to make the area a national park also, had to be considered.

"I have enough confidence in Ottawa to feel they would not ask us to submit terms of reference for this study unless they intended to deal with our claims seriously," Hamilton said.

He said the bands concerned were to have the privilege of naming an outside firm of consultants who would conduct the study. They would be talking to experts in various fields to ascertain what firms were capable of carrying out the study.

"We understand that acquisition of other property dealt with first before the needed for the park will be reserve area, and this will leave us time for the extensive study required," Hamilton said.

$3,000 Monthly from Court Fines

Courtenay Keeps Same Rate

COURTENAY — Courtenay city council has adopted the 1970 budget, setting the mill rate at 60 — the same as last year.

Broken down into four parts, it established the general mill rate at 20.045; debt at 4.810, regional hospital district, .785 and schook 34.360. The school mill rate will also remain the same as last year.

★ ★ ★

Several budget items were hard to determine, administrator W. C. Moore stated.

He pointed out that court fines had been averaging about $3,000 a month and said that if the breath test law remained in force, the fines would probably remain about the same.

General taxation is expected to provide the city with $273,355 this year. The sum of $2,000 has been transferred from reserves and $15,000 has been utilized from previous years' surplus.

★ ★ ★

The city will spend $147,000 on fire, police and other protection. Public works is expected to need $66,000 and sanitation and waste removal is expected to cost $97,000.

Total revenue is estimated at $1,502,700, compared to $1,315,224 last year.

Council heard a presentation from I. Bremner, Goodwill Enterprises, in which he asked for "financial help, no matter how minimal."

★ ★ ★

Bremner told aldermen: "We're not here to make money, we're here to help people."

He pointed out that Goodwill was a non-profit society and did not make money.

"It helps Courtenay people," he stated.

The society didn't pay income tax and donations to the group were tax deductible.

Two Courtenay men are on the board of directors. Wilf Anderton and A. Piercy. All directors function in a volunteer capacity he said.

★ ★ ★

Bremner noted that some Island centres did not charge Goodwill a business licence, while in Greater Victoria area, a grant equal to the taxes is picked up by the four municipalities.

The salary of five professional people on staff, including a doctor, was paid up to 80 per cent by the provincial government.

Speaking of donations in Goodwill collection boxes placed in this area of the island, the speaker called it "simply magnificent."

He pointed out that the staff in the Courtenay store had been increased from five to 12 and noted that Goodwill had an alliance with Bevan Lodge, a retarded adults boarding facility in the area, and with the Workmen's Compensation Board.

★ ★ ★

One-seventh of the business of the Goodwill organization was done in the Courtenay store, he said.

Bremner also praised support from technicians at CFB Comox, who volunteered their time to help Goodwill.

Council referred the matter to the finance committee for its recommendation.

Addition Approved

A 24-classroom addition to Mt. Klitsa junior high school Port Alberni has been approved for tender-calling, the B.C. cabinet announced Monday.

The addition is expected to cost $714,558.

A science laboratory conversion job at Nanaimo District secondary worth $5,542 was also approved.

Taxpayers Face Mill Hike

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River taxpayers face one-third of a mill tax increase this year.

Council was told Tuesday evening that the hike amounts to $11,000 in actual expenditures, bringing the total municipal budget to $2,100,000.

The figure is $100,000 less than the original provisional budget. Three budget readings will be heard Tuesday at the municipal hall, with the budget being officially struck May 12 — three days before the deadline required by the Municipal Act.

School Plan Approved At Nanaimo

NANAIMO — The provincial government has given the go-ahead for tenders to be called in connection with a $5,542 science laboratory conversion project at Nanaimo district secondary school.

School board chairman Mrs. Margaret Fuller said Tuesday that the work was not included in the operating budget, defeated a few weeks ago in a referendum vote.

She said it was covered by a building referendum passed two years ago. Although Mrs. Fuller said she had not spoken to any board members yet — she only heard the news Tuesday — she felt that they would go ahead. However she said she would not venture to guess at a date.

The proposal will be discussed at a board meeting April 29.

The government has also approved a Port Hardy elementary school construction project, costing $572,732.

Cowichan-Malahat

Wood Chip Spillage Protested at Mill

DUNCAN — Cowichan-Malahat branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control has asked the federal fisheries department to take legal action against Crofton Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd.

★ ★ ★

Branch president Kurt Horn has written to the federal fisheries protection officer at Nanaimo about the wood chip spillage situation at the B.C. Forest Products mill.

He has asked for the letter to be considered a formal request for legal action under section three of the Fisheries Act.

"Since it appears evident that the company has taken only taken measures since 1958 to correct rhe wood chip spillage, we feel that legal action may be the only procedure sufficient to compel the company to develop and adopt more effective controls," wrote Horn.

"We have gathered evidence over the last two weeks of their daily spillage. We have divers who will testify as to the extent of the bottom coverage of chips and wood fibres we can present underwater photographs of the area adjacent to the mill and we have an expert available who will testify as to the harmful effects of the chips on the bottom biota.

★ ★ ★

"We will be pleased to make any or all of this available to your department.

Horn said Tuesday that they would wait for a reply but they would not wait too long.

He said the branch had an alternative plan in mind if the department's powers proved ineffeotual.

Admiral 'Pulled Ashore'

Dry Land Can't Block Traditional Ceremony

COMOX — Dry land did not stop men at CFB Comox from giving the traditional farewell to Vice-Admiral John C. O'Brien of Halifax, when he paid his last official visit Monday. He leaves shortly to take up a NATO appointment in Rome.

The admiral arrived in Comox by air and was welcomed by Col. Grant Nichols, base commander.

Travelling with Admiral O'Brien was rear-admiral Harry Porter who will succeed him as Maritime commander. He has been senior officer on the Pacific Coast.

After a general salute from a 48-man guard of honor, Admiral O'Brien spoke to officers in the wardroom. From there he was "pulled ashore" in a whaler with six base officers acting as rowing crew.

The fact that the boat had wheels under it did not detract from the traditional aspect of the ceremony.

Nanaimo Society Plans St. George Celebration

The newly-formed Nanaimo branch of the Royal Society of St. George is planning a big evening Thursday — St. George's Day.

The program will include "a truly English dinner and dance," says member Bruce Hewitt of Nanaimo.

"This society is making such an impact on the local scene that many people are asking 'just what is the Royal Society of St. George?'" he said.

"The Royal Society of St. George was formed in England in the year 1835 for the sole purpose of honoring and eulogizing the integrity and esteem for which England has been noted through the centuries," he said.

Hewitt said the society also wanted "to foster the love of England and to strengthen England and the Commonwealth by spreading the knowledge of English history, traditions and ideals."

Among the guests at Thursday's dinner will be Major-General George Pearkes, B.C.'s former lieutenant-governor.

Hewitt said that because the branch felt that its activities would draw considerable interest, it was inviting the general public to the evening.

"We hope to get many people from Victoria," he said. "It might well be asked how this society is pertinent to the Canadian scene. This question can be very briefly answered by pointing out that Canada is part of the Commonwealth and many of its citizens came from England or are descendants of those same people.

He added: "Tickets, which are limited because of accommodation, can be obtained by phoning 753-8763 in Nanaimo."

Johns

A. W. Johns Of UVic To Retire

Professor A. W. Johns, of University of Victoria, will retire at the end of June, closing 47 years of teaching in Victoria.

A native of Victoria, Johns has been head of the art education section at UVic for the past 10 years and started the permanent collection of paintings and art objects for the university.

★ ★ ★

He began his teaching career in elementary schools in Victoria and later taught in Central junior high, where he started the first Saturday morning art classes for children. The work of his students won awards in a worldwide competition held in Europe.

In 1942 Johns began teaching art at the Victoria Normal School and when the school was amalgamated with Victoria College was appointed associate professor on the faculty. He holds the same rank at UVic.

★ ★ ★

He received a B.A. degree in art education at the University of Washington.

Linda Goertz, a former art student now living in Vancouver, said many teachers throughout B.C. credit much of their success in teaching to the help and inspiration of Johns.

Hunting Rules Stiffen

Some hunters in British Columbia will be required to take compulsory hunting training before being licensed, Kenneth Kiernan, recreation and conservation minister, said Monday.

Kiernan said all persons involved in firearms accidents in 1969 were notified they will have to graduate from hunter training courses before their licences will be reinstated.

This year everyone under the age of 18 who has been involved in any infraction of the wildlife or firearms acts will be required to take the courses, he said.

Greater Victoria Trustees

Single Constituency Vote Passes

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Greater Victoria school trustees voted Monday night to remake their district into a single constituency, abolishing municipal representation on the board.

The move was approved by a five-to-four vote, despite warnings that trustee election will become "big politics" that denies office to the "working class."

Trustees Peter Bunn, Daphne Temple, Les Karagianis and chairman Carron Jameson voted against the measure which was first introduced some months ago and promoted by Donald Shorting.

If the details are worked out in time for the next trustee election, municipal voters will cast ballots for all positions open, whether or not the candidates live in the municipality of the voter.

Shorting said after the vote in an interview that he expected no trouble through either municipal voting procedures or the Public Schools Act.

The move will require amendments to the bylaws of the school district, which comprises Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, part of Saanich, and part of the unorganized area of View Royal.

It was because of an attempt last election by View Royal voters to get representation on the board that Shorting promoted the move to a single constituency.

The current voting structure provides for nine representatives: three from Victoria, three from Saanich, two from Oak Bay and one from Esquimalt.

★ ★ ★

It is not clear yet as to who will vote for whom in the 1970 elections which fall in December, because trustees are currently elected for two-year terms, some of which overlap others.

The only two trustees who spoke Monday night in support of the change said it would bring about more democratic and fair representation and would end election by acclamation.

Victor Rogers also said candidates for trusteeship would have to "exert themselves far more" in order to get elected because they would have to appeal to more voters under greater competition.

He said it was an "imaginary eventuality" that a political power group could take over board representation because of the change. Trustee Allan McKinnon said that there is already "partisan politics" on the board in any case.

★ ★ ★

Bunn called it "change for change's sake" and said it would not help either parent or student. He added that political groups could put a lot of money behind a slate of candidates and control the board.

Jameson said it would be "a shame" when trustees lost the close ties they now have with their individual communities. "I think its depersonalization . . . I think we just have to guard against bigness."

Until such time as the individual municipalities pooled their tax-gathering functions, the school board should keep its present electoral system, he contended.

More Cuts Forced In Saanich

It was bad news night Monday at Saanich council's regular meeting.

Council was told that, through an error in the assessment department that added $3,000,000 to an assessment total, an additional $118,000 had to be hacked from the 1970 budget in order to keep to the mill rate set last Wednesday.

And council also learned it took two years for the municipality to bill local improvement costs to property owners of Sea Point Drive and Bedford Road.

The property owners weren't happy about it, either. They were informed at the end of March they had bills of up to $2,500 owing to the municipality, due within 30 days.

A third blunder turned up when it was reported the Victoria Operatic Society was informed by letter that permission had been granted to erect a banner across Douglas Street, when, in fact, a committee had turned down the request.

A later letter turned down the request but council Monday voted in favor of it.

"It's too bad they're not putting on Gilbert and Sullivan," said Mayor Hugh Curtis.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Ben Turner, 3908 Bedford Road who acted as spokesman for at least eight owners of new houses, said they were "quite upset" by the late payment notices.

He pointed out that storm sewers and road paving were completed in March, 1968, and "two years later we get notice of large assessments and 30 days in which to pay."

He said the assessments amounted to "hidden costs" because there was no record available of the charges against the properties even though thorough checks had been made during purchase procedures.

Comptroller-Treasurer John Tribe told council, such charges are not noted on tax cards while work is in progress but they would be from now on.

Turner said that, during the period in question, municipal hall had given the information there were "no pending local improvements."

★ ★ ★

This was in fact true, he said, because the improvements had been done at the time, but the property owners didn't find out they were liable for a share of the costs until the end of last month.

"Why the long delay?" he asked. "Why did it take two years to reach us?"

Tribe detailed negotiations on the improvements starting in July, 1966, with a petition which did not pass, proceeding through long discussions about Sea Point Park and ending finally with cost statements in December, 1969.

★ ★ ★

He suggested the property owners be given one year to pay the assessment, without interest, in monthly payments.

Council moved approval of the suggestion.

Ald. Foster Isherwood said the situation was "regrettable." Ald. Alan Newberry said it was "unacceptable that this delay has taken place."

The following items were cut from the budget:

- Improvement of Gordon Head Road, $58,000.
- Two drainage works under local improvement, Gorge View and Pear, $12,700.
- Purchase of Zamboni ice machine for arena, $15,000.

Federalists Back Move On Arctic

Approval of the government's attempt to control possible pollution of Arctic waters by asserting its jurisdiction over the Northwest Passage was proposed by the Victoria branch of the World Federalists of Canada last week and forwarded to Ottawa.

The branch elected the following officers for a term of one year: Dr. W. E. Mitchell, president; Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, vice-president; Rose Evans, financial secretary; Marsha Navran, executive secretary; Waveney Burchill, membership secretary; Pat St. Denis, treasurer; David S. Prosser, publicity; Jack Drummond, education; Kay Stone, recruitment; Prof. C. S. Burchill, policy, and Bruce McKeen, university liaison.

Water Rates In Oak Bay May Climb

Oak Bay residents who use large amounts of water will find themselves paying rates second in the area only to those under direct control of the Greater Victoria Water Board if rate increases approved by Oak Bay council Monday night are finalized.

It is proposed that the basic rate for 1,200 cubic feet of water be raised from $3.75 for a two-month period to $4, and the rate for every extra 100 cubic feet up to 40,000 cubic feet be raised from 17 cents to 22 cents. Amounts in excess of 40,000 would be billed at 15 cents per cubic foot.

This will mean the person who uses about 50 units of water, as for a garden, would find his two-month bill rising from $10.21 to $12.36.

It will also mean the municipal water budget will jump from a projected $16,000 deficit to a possible $10,500 surplus for the remainder of this year.

The move was opposed by Ald. Ian Horne and Brian Smith, who said it would have a detrimental effect on the municipality because persons with the large gardens that are assets to Oak Bay would try to use less water to hold costs down.

Horne suggested that the basic rate be raised further so that the increase for more usage could be made proportionate and attacked the idea that water resale should be a source of profit.

It was noted that even with the proposed 25-cent increase, the charge for the basic rate would still be the lowest in the area.

In the same meeting, council decided to support a Victoria resolution commending the prime minister for his legislation designed to prevent Arctic pollution.

Esquimalt Passes Raised Budget

Esquimalt council Monday night approved a 1970 budget of $2,026,000, an increase of $180,000 over last year.

The largest spending increases will be for public works (up $50,000 over 1969), welfare (up $30,000) and $35,000 worth of capital improvements at the municipality's sports centre.

Mayor Arthur Young explained that the general mill rate will remain unchanged at 33.6, but increased assessments mean most property-owners will pay higher tax bills.

Monday night's budget did not include money that Esquimalt will collect on behalf of local school boards. That means the school mill rate, always separate from the general mill rate, will be set later.

Mayor Young said if the school mill rate is unchanged, taxes will go up about $5 on a house that would sell for $12,500. On a house with a sale value of $30,000, the taxes will increase $19.

The figures take into consideration the provincial homeowners' grant.

This year's budget includes two new items:

- A reserve equipment fund of $26,500 and money needed to assemble enough property so that the municipality can donate land for a low-rental senior citizens' housing project.
- The general mill rate in Esquimalt includes all services except local improvements such as curb and gutters, concrete sidewalks and new sewers.

Sources of Esquimalt's revenue during the coming year: taxes $762,000, licences and fees $44,000, federal and provincial grants $842,000 and a 1969 surplus of $287,000.

Earlier during council's regular meeting, Ald. Arthur Cuthbert urged that council earlier approved preparation of bylaws that would allow for condominium and row-house types of dwellings.

Spring Conference Arranged by Women

COURTENAY — Elizabeth Clement of Victoria, national public affairs chairman of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, was a special guest in Courtenay at the weekend when the club's spring conference was held in the area.

About 40 delegates attended Courtenap, Comox, Campbell the conference, representing River area, Nanaimo, Duncan, Victoria, Oak Bay and Sydney.

Resolutions covered pollution, changing the B.C. Civil Service Commission so that a woman is a member at all times, and establishment of day nurseries by the provincial government.

Alice Ross of Nanaimo, retiring regional director, chaired the business session. Reports were given by delegates who outlined the work carried out by various island groups. Audrey Babb of Comox was elected new regional director.

Guest speaker was Miss Ruth Adams of Victoria provincial president. She is also past president of the Penticton and Victoria clubs.

In 1966, she was co-ordinator for the national convention.

Expectation was the topic of her address which dealt chiefly with membership and the role of a member.

"What should the organization expect of and from its members?" she asked. Members should keep the purpose of the club in mind at all times and utilize their skills to carry out that purpose, she pointed out.

The speaker said new members must be told, before joining the club, what the purposes were, she named some of these as developing and training of women in leadership, learning to implement the economy, active engagement in all social, civic and economic conditions affecting women and children, knowledge of all levels of government and public interpretation.

She also listed a few of the things to be gained by new members — an open door to friendship, contacts in employment, a voice to provincial, national and international bodies, gaining skills and becoming knowledgeable people.

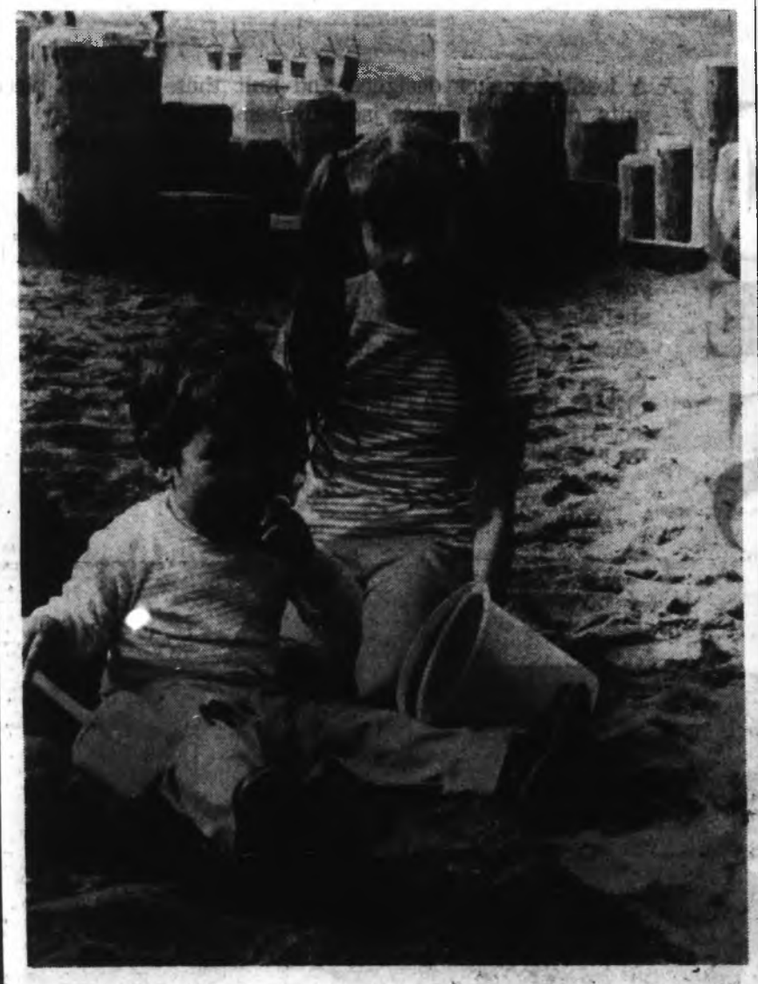

Miss Adams said the club emblem indicated involvement, carrying on the job of today, looking to the future and becoming absorbed in a vision of achievement.

She pointed out that it was the duty of every member of all clubs to consider material which came from provincial, national or international organizations as those were lines of communication.

Northern Trip Goes Slowly

ABOARD ST. LAURENT (CP) — Progress through the ice was easier for the supertanker Manhattan Tuesday, but blowing snow and 25-mile-an-hour winds were forcing the United States ship to go slowly into Baffin Bay, 150 miles northwest of Greenland's Disko Island.

The conditions restricted the tanker and her Canadian icebreaker escort, the Louis S. St. Laurent, to a travelling distance of 15 miles in six hours.

Music Festival:

Brass Loss Cuts Interest Value

By BERT BINNY

The Greater Victoria Music Festival rolled through its seventh day Tuesday.

A dozen sessions and 52 classes became matters of memory or, perhaps in a few instances, matters better forgotten.

The highest mark in the morning vocal section was achieved by John McVie with an 87 in the folk song class, 17 to 21, but, in the same age bracket, Maureen Best had an 86 in the sacred solo competition.

No mark, however, fell below 81.

BACH AWARD

The piano classes produced another big 90 which was earned by Jamie Ramsay in the Bach class, under 17. There is an award, the Xi Nu Chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority prize, for the highest mark in the Bach classes.

However, there are four more classes to be heard from, the last Thursday morning, so Jamie's 90 has to stand up against considerable competition.

Heline Barker was back again to win the Bach under-14 class of 14 entrants with an 88. Sydney Condrashoff was one mark off the winning pace with 87.

Identical scores of 87 won the under-15 and under-19 Bach classes for Margaret-Anne Maclure and Janet Pennington respectively.

LOVELY SOUND

Woodwind classes were heard at Blanshard elementary school by adjudicator Dr. William Revelli, and here the highest mark of the morning was scored: a 92 by Chris Salm in the senior woodwind solo. This matched Chris's 92 in the woodwind concerto class Monday.

Chris plays the flute and was highly commended by Revelli for "a lovely sound."

Sandra Pumfrey won the intermediate woodwind solo with 89, and Janet Munday had the junior division all to herself. She scored 82.

In the speech arts section, Nona Avren was back again for her fifth win in as many attempts when she won the under-12 sight reading class with 87.

No fewer than 16 entrants contested the class for girls under 8, which was won by Kathy Groves with 88 points.

TIE PLACE

Julie Patterson and Sarah Wood both received 87 to tie for second.

The afternoon instrumental classes went from woodwind to brass but four withdrawals cut down on the length and indeed, the interest of the program. Two competitions disappeared completely, another was reduced from two entries to one and a fourth from three to two.

The brass ensemble from Mount Douglas senior high had the highest mark of the afternoon, an 86.

Colquitz junior high presented the only percussion ensemble, four boys and a girl. They received 81 points.

Four further contests in the speech arts division went on at St. Ann's Academy in the afternoon.

In three of these classes, competitors from up-Island took first and second places, although Rosalind Scott of Victoria shared top spot in the class for Canadian poetry, under 16.

Kim Cattrall, who is 13 and comes from Comox, has very winning ways. On Monday afternoon she won the prose, under-16 class with 89. Yesterday she shared top spot with Rosalind Scott in the under-16 Canadian poetry with 90 points and also won the dramatic monologue class with 91 over nine other performers.

Second in the dramatic monologue was Kathleen Stupich of Nanaimo. Her sister, Marjorie, was second in Canadian poetry, under 21. This class was won by Marie Stillin with 91 points, and her sister, Roberta, was second in the under-16 division with 89. They are from Ladysmith.

POETRY CLASS

Victoria's Rosalind Scott, who is also an instrumentalist, shared first place in the under-16 Canadian poetry class and third place in the dramatic monologue.

The afternoon piano session produced a fine contest in the under-19 class. It was won by Mary Chard with 92 points; second was Carrie Humpherys with 90 and third, Janet Pennington with 89.

Jamie Ramsay's mark of 90 is the Bach competitions stood up during the afternoon; an 87 was the nearest approach.

Carrie Humperys received another 90 in the modern compositions, under 19, class.

Afternoon vocal sessions were highlighted by a 90-90 mark awarded by adjudicator Rankin Bushby to the Gladys Pearcy Singers.

Susan Word had a very creditable 88 in theidivision for high voices, 17 to 21 and John McVie had 86 to take the class for baritones, 17 to 21.

The operatic and oratorio classes in the vocal division highlighted the evening session.

OPERATIC WIN

Evelyn Westinghouse, who scored 180 points to win the open Lieder class on Monday, came back to take the operatic with a commanding 92. One point behind was Adele Lewis and, in third place, Judy Temple with 86.

Miss Westinghouse also won the Bach sacred class and was second in the class for mezzo-sopranos.

Miss Temple headed the senior oratorio class and Susan Word, who won the high voice, 17 to 21, class in the afternoon, returned in the evening to come out on top in the senior soprano. In both cases, her mark was 88.

CONCERT GROUP

In the piano division Jocelyn Abbott won the under-19 concert group class, receiving 270 points out of a possible 300. Second was Wendy Stofer with 266.

In the Bach open class Susan de Burgh achieved 90 points so that, in the matter of the Bach Award, she is now tied with Jamie Ramsay, who received the same mark in the under-17 division.

Six junior high school bands performed in a non-competitive class at Central junior high yesterday evening: Colquitz, Gordon Head, Oak Bay, S. J. Willis, Lansdowne and Central.

Three classes in speech arts were also decided yesterday evening. Marks were again close: 89 won the first, under-21 class for Pamela Stamford while 88 was top mark for Roberta and arie Stillin in the under-21 dramatic monologue and for ary Robertson in the open prose competition.

The festival continues today as Tuesday and the day before with one exception.

There are no band classes in the eveing.'

SHCEDULE HANGEC

However, senior vocal classes are schedule for tonight along with two open and an under-19 piano class. The piano concert group class, No. 132, postponed from last night, takes plaee at 8:30 p.m. today The concerto, under-19 and the open concerto, originally scheduled for this evening, now go to 2 and 3 p.m. Friday.

There are three sessions of speech arts at St. Ann's Academy today with the morning brass and afternoon woodwind classes taking place at Balanshard elementary school.

Eight Days Left for Hospital

'Now Everything Is Gone'

Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, administrator of Oak Lodge Private Hospital, has eight days in which to find places for 15 aged and fragile patients.

When 10 of them are moved — and they'll have to go because the hospital is closing at the end of this month — they will be in ambulances. That's the gravity of their illness.

As guest speaker at a meeting of Saanich Kiwanis club Tuesday night, Mrs. Reynolds presented a calm resume of the problem of caring for this community's aging and ailing citizens.

HEART-BREAKING

"Oak Lodge's closing has done much to bring this frightening situation to the attention of everyone," she said.

"It just pulls at your heart strings . . . these people are so alone and they depend on you. So when Oak Lodge decided it would close I faced the dreadful problem of finding other accommodation for 41 of them.

"It was a most heart-breaking thing despite the many offers of tag days and marathon walks, especially from young people, to keep the hospital open.

START PACKING

"We have some lovely people in Oak Lodge, very determined and very proud.

"Tomorrow I am renting a pickup truck and will start packing away the things they have collected for years and some of them have been with us for many, many years.

"Next week, when the deadline is up, I will be calling the amublance to take them to Sandringham if they can't go elsewhere. I will be putting them in the sunroom if there is no place else in this city."

(Mrs. Reynolds also is administrator of Sandringham Private Hospital.)

'EVERYTHING IS GONE'

"They found life in Oak Lodge wonderful. The hospital's friends donated fruit and the girls who worked there took patients' clothes home to sew.

"But now just about everything is gone for them."

Mrs. Reynolds told the Kiwanians she did not have any instant solutions to the private hospital's problems. However, Oak Lodge was closing because it could not make ends meet financially. One solution might be for the provincial government to increase its allowance for welfare patients, she said.

The government now pays $9.25 a day, but Mrs. Reynolds said any hospital would need $12 to break even. Patients who are not supported by welfare pay $18 a day for a private room and $13 or $14 for semi-private accommodation.

She told the Kiwanians that the standards of private hospitals are carefully patrolled by a government that apparently is not prepared to pay for that level of care.

In addition to the problems of simply paying for the cost of the care — Oak Lodge had 43 persons on staff — there is the problem of too few beds.

"When I am trying to find beds for the people I have to move, I still get five or six telephone calls a day from people, trust companies, and so on, who want space for relatives and clients," said Mrs. Reynolds.

Piped-In Music 'Invades Privacy'

Victoria public works committee's recommendation to permit installation of a "motivational background music system" on a six-month trial basis in certain parts of city hall has drawn fire from a number of citizens.

City Clerk Morrin Waller said Tuesday he had received six letters protesting the canned music plan.

"It seems that a number of people don't like the idea. Most of the writers claim piped-in music is an invasion of their privacy," he said.

Council will deal with the committee's recommendation at Thursday's meeting.

DEATHS FUEL CRISIS

PORT OF SPAIN (Reuters) — Two persons were killed when Black Power demonstrators defied a government-imposed state of emergency in Trinidad Tuesday and police opened fire on rioting mobs.

A 16-year-old boy, Phil St. Louis, died of a gunshot wound in the head.

The other victim was identified as Clyde Bailey, 28, a member of the Trinidad and Tobago Regiment, which along with the police and coast guard, is the main security force at the government's disposal.

★ ★ ★

Reports said Bailey was also shot in the head as the whole country was put under dusk to dawn curfew.

Rioting erupted in the city as Black Power demonstrators defied a national state of emergency and paraded through Port of Spain's business section, smashing windows and looting shops.

Police clashed with the demonstrators several times and had to use tear gas and batons to restore order. But as soon as they restored order in one section, the demonstrators carried on with their smashing sprees in other parts of the city.

★ ★ ★

The state of emergency was declared in the face of a massive demonstration scheduled by the National Joint Action Committee, the main Black Power organization in the country.

Black Power demonstrations have been continuing here since late Febuary with the Black Power advocates demanding the resignation of the prime minister, more black economic power and a solution to the nation's huge unemployment problem.

Ottawa, B.C. Sign Agreement

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

A new national park on Vancouver Island — marking several firsts in the development of Canada's national parks system — was brought into existence here Tuesday with the signing of a formal agreement between B.C. and Ottawa.

The agreement, completed after many months of intensive study and negotiations, was signed by Indian Affairs and Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien and B.C. Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

It provides for establishment of a national park on the west coast of Vancouver Island which includes Long Beach, the Effingham Islands, and a 50-mile swath of virgin coastline between Bamfield and Port Renfrew.

★ ★ ★

Among the firsts are:

● This is the 21st national park to be established in Canada but it is the first coastal park on the Pacific and it also has the longest coastline of any park in Canada.

There are 25 miles of shoreline facing the open Pacific at Long Beach, plus five miles on sheltered Browning Passage and four miles on nearby Kennedy Lake.

No attempt has been made so far to assess the shoreline of the Effingham Islands section of the park but B.C. officials said this area covers more than 60 identifiable islands in the space of 43 square miles of land and water.

There are also more than 50 miles of Pacific coastline along the Lifesaving Trail which runs from just south of Bamfield to a point near Port Renfrew on the south.

★ ★ ★

● This is the first national park established under an agreement by which the federal and provincial governments share equally in the cost of land acquisition.

EXPO 70 FEELING JADED

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — A 24-ton block of jade, described as the heaviest jade stone in the world and valued at 500,000,000 yen (nearly $1,500,000), went on display today at the British Columbia Pavilion at Expo '70.

Legend has it that people who touch the jade stone, discovered two years ago near Ogden, B.C., will be assured of happiness.

Touching the stone, however, apparently was no help to the men who moved it to Expo

After a stormy crossing of the Pacific, in which the stone broke loose and damaged the freighter Hi King and some of its other cargo, the stone snapped the cable being used and made a hole in the pavement.

Narcotics Trial

Offered $10,000 Says Juror's Wife

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver man has been ordered to appear in British Columbia Supreme Court today to face a charge that he tried to tamper with the jury in a narcotics trail.

Justice W. R. McIntyre Tuesday issued the order to David Galloway of Vancouver after being told that the wife of juror Herbert Grimley was offered $10,000 to persuade her husband to arrange a hung jury.

McIntyre is presiding over the retrail of Conrad William Gunn, Edward Ponak, Ido Zamai and John McKeoff, all charged with consiracy to traffic in narcotics.

The retrial was ordered after an earlier trial resulted in a hung jury.

McIntyre was told that Hilda Grimley was offered the money to persuade her husband to arrange a second hung jury.

She said a man told her one of the four accused was a friend of his who had been framed and that two witnesses in the trial were "stool pigeons" for the RCMP.

The jury in the second trial was discharged and a third trial has been ordered.

Escaper Killed in Battle

VANCOUVER (CP) — An escaper from the B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster was killed in a gun battle with police Tuesday night in the city's East End.

The man, whose name was withheld, was dead on arrival at hospital after exchanging shots with police near a community centre.

Police said the man, accompanied by an unidentified girl, opened fire on them after ramming a cruiser with his pickup truck.

The girl escaped injury, but was reported from suffering from shock.

The dead man was one of two escapers who fled the B.C. Penitentiary in January.

State of Siege In Colombia

BOGOTA (UPI) — The government declared a state of siege as serious clashes erupted in Bogota Tuesday night when mobs demanded that former dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla be named president over Misael Pastrana Borrero, the official candidate and apparent winner.

Outgoing President Carlos Lleras Restrepo warned the nation Tuesday night that it is now "under the rules permitted in nations at war" so it would be able to face the "danger of a general revolt in our country."

The president accused the movement led by Rojas of planning to overthrow the government.

Lleras reiterated his decision to carry on his duties as president of Colombia up to the expiration of his mandate on Aug. 7. "Before Aug. 7 I will never leave the presidential palace unless I am dead," he said.

Inflation War

'Working Despite Jobless'

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons Tuesday that government policies to fight inflation are gradually working.

However, "nobody likes the very high rate of unemployment in the country" that accompanies the battle, he told New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas.

The rate of unemployment in March, 1970, had been equalled or exceeded in eight of the last 14 years, Benson said. The record was in March, 1961, under a Conservative government.

★ ★ ★

Prime Minister Trudeau told Douglas the government has policies for areas affected by high unemployment. Douglas had asked whether the government would end inflation restraints in cities hit by high unemployment.

Replying to George Hees (PC — Prince Edward-Hastings), Trudeau said the government is fighting inflation to prevent greater unemployment.

'No One Else Involved, No Money Left'

Robber Recants Conspiracy Story

By BRUCE LOWTHER

There was no conspiracy, no MPs, no MLA, no magazine and book publisher, no research assistant, no photographer.

And there is no money left.

Jon Donald McDermott, the 27-year-old Burnaby man who had admitted eight holdups of financial firms, said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court that he told two lies. That meant he went through an estimated $17,300 between Jan. 5 and March 31 of this year.

★ ★ ★

He pleaded guilty to a charge of public mischief laid by Saanich police and received from Judge William Ostler a two-year prison term to run at the same time as the seven 12-year concurrent Terms Ostler gave him last Thursday.

The former newspaperman and radio-TV worker pleaded guilty April 1 to four charges involving holdups at five banks and one financial firm in Victoria, Saanich, Vancouver and New Westminster between Jan. 5 and March 31.

Then he pleaded guilty April 10 to one charge involving two bank holdups in Calgary March 9, but Ostler threw out one charge because it was drafted improperly.

Money taken at the eight firms totalled $19,046 and Saanich police recovered $1,730 when McDermott was arrested March 31, a difference of $17,318.

★ ★ ★

McDermott told court April 10, under oath at his request, that he staged the holdups to get into prison so he could write a book about life there that might bring about prison reform.

He said the "group of people who support me in this venture" would be named shortly, including one member of the Legislature from each of B.C. and Ontario, two MPs, the publisher, the research aide and the photographer.

His lengthy statement was sprinkled with references to the others, including a lifetime deal with the publisher and photographs of every holdup. He also said all the money would be returned with interest "in the very near future."

★ ★ ★

That led Saanich police to investigate a possible conspiracy, the inquiry starting with questioning of McDermott by Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart in the Saanich cells. Police indicated McDermott made a voluntary statement

Home Grant Helps

School Tax Lowered For Many

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Greater Victoria school district has only slightly increased its demand for local tax revenue this year, with a rise of .07 mill over last year's rate, it was annoucned Tuesday.

For many homeowners this could mean a net reduction in school taxes because of the $10 increase in the provincial homeowner grant — from $150 to $160.

★ ★ ★

Sooke school board has decreased its demand for tax revenue, with a mill rate cut by 1.19.

Saanich school district residents, however, will have to bear a 2.25 mill increase. Saanich school district also became the only local one to push its mill rate over the provincial 1970 average of 31.81.

Saanich's rate is now 32; Greater Victoria's is 30.58; Sook's is 28.47. The figures were released Tuesday by Education Minister Donald Brothers, who also returned approved budgets to school boards all over the province.

Taxes can still go up wherever residential property assessments have risen, as in Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt.

Residential assessments in Victoria this year generally remained unchanged.

★ ★ ★

The taxes go to pay for part of the $22,959,259 budget of the Greater Victoria school board. According to figures supplied by the administration, the owner of a house and property with a taxable assessed value of $10,000 will pay net school taxes of $145.80, down $9.30 from last year's payment of $155.10 on the same assessment.

For a $9,000 assessment, taxes will be $115.22, down from $124.59. On a $7,500 assessment, the taxes will be $63.35, down from $78.83. After the homeowner grant has been used by the owner of a property assessed at $5,000, no taxes are payable for school purposes.

Taxes are arrived at by multiplying the number of thousands of dollars of taxable assessment times the mill rate. For example, on a mill rate of 30, a property assessed for tax purposes at $10,000 must pay taxes of 30 times 10, or $300. Subtracting the homeowner grant of $160 leaves a net tax payable of $140.

The assessed value of B.C. real property is, in theory, 50 per cent of the market value of the land and improvements (buildings). Taxes are levied on 75 per cent of the assessed value of improvements and on 100 per cent of the assessed value of land.

Greater Victoria school district will get an added bonus this year of having a larger share of its budget paid by provincial government educational grants.

The government will pay 47.13 per cent as compared with last year's 45.89 per cent. The budget approved by the government will remain at its preliminary figure of $22,959,259.

★ ★ ★

Board Chairman Carron Jameson's comment on announcement of the new mill rate was that he was "very glad" and "I hope it will let some of our critics know that we have not been as profligate as they say."

The mill rates cannot be computed from the individual budget itself, since the provincial government must first set the basic province-wide mill levy, which this year has been pegged at 24.10 mills, compared with last year's 24.60.

Federal Proposal Boon to Low-Income Group

Revised Rental Scale Widely Applauded

A federal government proposal Tuesday to introduce a fairer rent scale for public housing projects was called "commendable, welcome and thrilling," by Victoria officials concerned with such projects.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock said if the plan is implemented, it would be a tremendous catalyst in the city's efforts to encourage more public housing.

Announcement of the new rental policy plan was made in the Commons Tuesday by Robert Andras, minister in charge of housing.

The revised scale would reduce the maximum proportion of income payable as rent, raise the ceiling on second incomes in a family, provide for a reduction of rent for families with more than two children and reduce the rent for one-parent families.

★ ★ ★

Andras said the revised scale would reduce to $68 a month from $80 the rent paid by a family with five children and an annual income of $4,000. Rent would drop to $43 in the case of a similar one-parent family.

He said the new scale has to be negotiated with the provinces before it can be implemented but their intitial response has shown "a substantial measure of agreement."

Haddock said Tuesday: "This is really welcome news. It will benefit those who need it most — the large families who found it hard to make ends meet in spite of the fairly low rents in public housing projects."

In Victoria, the new policy would apply to the tenants of Blanshard Court, opened this month.

Haddock said: "I only hope that this move will not mean that the federal government is going to reduce the number of public housing units needed to take care of the large waiting list of people who aren't able to live in these subsidized developments now."

Victoria City Planner Geoffrey Greenhalgh said any move to bring down rents in an inflated housing market must be welcomed.

"One can't help but commend the federal government for this proposal," he said.

Although the city was not directly involved in the administration of Blanshard Court, it was still of interest to Victoria whether or not the tenants of the development would be given a fair shake, he said.

Victoria is responsible for 12½ per cent of any deficit that might be incurred by Blanshard Court, Greenhalgh said.

★ ★ ★

"The most important thing is that we have the attempt by a government — no matter what level — to bring down the price of a commodity that has become too expensive."

Blanshard Court tenant Mrs. Daisy Beckett, who plans to organize a tenants' association at the development, said the government plan was "beautiful news."

"I'm not speaking so much for myself. I am able to get by, but there are a lot of people here with five, six and seven children. They could really benefit from a new scale."

Mrs. Beckett said a reduced rent would enable a lot of families to buy things they couldn't afford up to now.

"And I'm talking about things like shoes for the kiddies, something that isn't usually considered a luxury."

Hydro:

Homes Must Go

The five Munn Road properties that lie in the path of a proposed B.C. Hydro high-tension line will definitely have to go, the manager of the Hydro load development department said Tuesday.

C. W. Nash told about 120 persons attending a public meeting called by four of the homeowners involved that the properties would be expropriated if the owners refused to sell.

Although the meeting had been called to discuss the situation of the five property owners, Nash persistently refused to discuss their cases.

★ ★ ★

"I said we were not going to discuss these persons' personal problems," he said. "That is all there is to it."

By this time, the audience had become noisy and some members were shouting that the reason they had come was to talk about the properties, but Nash said he and his colleagues were prepared only to discuss general problems of transmission.

When he said the Hydro representatives would be meeting privately with the homeowners, P. A. Codyre of 1890 Munn, who acts as spokesman for three of the other affected owners (the fourth works for B.C. Hydro), said: "We want these discussions public knowledge."

★ ★ ★

Nash told the audience that it could cost about $500,000 per mile to put the wire underground as compared with $30,000 per mile for overhead transmission, but when questioned later on this, said it would probably be closer to $300,000.

The meeting passed a resolution calling upon B.C. Hydro to put the wiring underground from west of the Munn Road properties affected to the Horsey substation at Burnside and Douglas.

Rockland Study Provides Survival Kit for District

By HUBERT BEYER

A detailed study of Victoria's Rockland area will not only serve as a "survival kit" for one of the city's most exclusive residential districts, but provide a blueprint for the future development of other areas, Victoria city hall sources indicated Tuesday.

"Although the report deals specifically with the Rockland Avenue area, it may also be applicable to the future development of Fairfield," a spokesman said.

Among the recommendations expected to be spelled out by the closely-guarded report are:

- Permission for a certain percentage of Rockland's mansions to be converted into homes for the elderly.
- Encouragement of the establishment of such institutions as private schools and kindergartens in some of the large homes in the area.
- Possible permission for a limited number of lowrise apartments, provided they conform with the overall character of the area.
- Continuation of the present policy allowing conversion of large homes to duplexes and high-standard boarding houses, but on a limited basis.

The report is expected to recommend against:

- The construction of highrise apartments.
- The indiscriminate use of existing properties for any of the permitted purposes.
- Allowing changes to the outside appearance of existing homes in the course of conversion to another use.

★ ★ ★

"A number of people are holding onto property in the area in the hope of obtaining a zoning change permitting them to build highrise apartments," a spokesman said.

This, he said, should never be allowed. The report would be very specific in recommending against such zoning changes.

"This has happened in quite a few Canadian cities. Developers 'busted' an exclusive district, borrowed its prestige and ruined it," he said.

Although Mayor Courtney Haddock earlier predicted the report would essentially "confirm the status quo with minor alterations," a number of the expected recommendations would be a marked departure from present policy.

★ ★ ★

Last year, council rejected a number of applications for establishment of nursing homes. And at present, there is no zoning bylaw permitting construction of lowrise apartments.

The entire district, labelled Rockland Avenue area by the city's planning department is roughly bounded by Fort on the north, Richardson on the south, Moss on the west and Richmond on the east.

The report, prepared by the city's planning department, is expected to be submitted to council in about three or four weeks.

Monterey Rebuilding Approved

School Storm Subsides

The controversial question of the condition of Oak Bay's Monterey elementary school was settled Tuesday, apparently to the satisfaction of everyone concerned.

An announcement by the provincial treasury board that the Greater Victoria school board would be allowed to call for tenders for five new classrooms for Monterey school plus major heating, electrical and fire alarm renovations within an appropriation of $224,100 was greeted by Trustee Peter Bunn with the comment:

"Ah, good. I'm glad to see that common sense has prevailed."

★ ★ ★

Next hurdle, said the chairman of the school district's buildings and grounds committee would be to get a contract bid within the appropriation, after which permission would be again sought from the department to go ahead with the work.

Bunn said Tuesday two of the classroom allocations at Monterey would probably be used for a school library. The board would now go after permission to build a new auditorium at the school, he said.

The old auditorium would then be used as a library and the two library rooms be put back into service as classrooms.

★ ★ ★

Overcrowding and poor facilities at Monterey school became a burning issue early in February when Oak Bay council voted to press the provincial education department to allow construction of a permanent annex to the school as authorized by a 1966 referendum.

The storm grew in intensity when Monterey PTA entered the fray.

An offer from the education department to allocate $36,000 to repair washroom facilities in the school was rejected by John Harris, PTA president, as evasion of the main issue.

Next step was a meeting in March with Education Minister Donald Brothers attended by Bunn, Harris and others. Following the meeting, Harris said he was unhappy with the result and accused the provincial govermennt and Brothers of stalling.

However, Tuesday Bunn said that one result of the meeting was that he, school district superintendent Jake Longmore, Joseph Phillipson, provincial assistant superintendent of education and others all met at Monterey school and went over the situation on the site.

Afterward Bunn said, Phillipson said that the school board proposal seemed a fair one and he would recommend its transmission to the treasury board.

Result of that recommendation was the Tuesday announcement.

New Program Co-Ordinates Care in Home

Home care services in much of Greater Victoria for some persons needing special medical attention will be co-ordinated under a program announced Tuesday.

•

It will involve existing agencies — mainly Victorian Order of Nurses and the nursing service of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

Under the new setup, a doctor whose patient needs more than one service will telephone the co-ordinating officer.

The system will apply almost everywhere in Greater Victoria except Saanich, where property owners already pay for a home nursing service from the health board.

In the other areas, persons needing the home care — in many cases they are frail and aged — pay direct to the Red Cross and VON.

The Red Cross homemaking service costs $1.35 an hour and VON visits cost $5.25 each. Both agencies stressed that the assessments are often made on a patient's ability to pay.

The co-ordinator will be brought into action only when a doctor thinks a patient needs more than one service.

But with patients needing only one service, doctors will behave as they have in the past — by simply telephoning the agency whose service is sought.

The co-ordination was announced at a press conference attended by representatives of the health board, Red Cross, VON, Community Welfare Council and Victoria Medical Society, all of which have been involved in the arrangements.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical officer with the health board, said the co-ordination would put additional strain on his staff.

He was asked how the health board could do it in view of the pleas that have been made for more nursing and inspection personnel.

"We still need extra staff and will continue to do so for some time in the future unless there is a political change of opinion," he replied.

It is hoped co-ordinated home care will allow general hospitals, which say they have a bed shortage, to discharge more patients earlier.

Home Raided In Daylight

More than $100 American and Canadian dollars and several collector's coins were reported stolen from a home several houses away from the Oak Bay police station in broad daylight Tuesday.

Oak Bay police said the house owned by Monty Jasper at 1747 St. Ann's Street, was entered through an unlocked door between 9 and 12 a.m. when there was no one in the house. Several other items in the house including a camera were left untouched, police said.
